Stock Margin Requirements Raised To 75%

Anti-Inflation Step By Reserve Board

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board tonight raised the required down payment on purchases of stock to 75 per cent of the value, effective tomorrow. The previous requirement was 50 per cent down.

The 75 per cent down payment, another anti-inflation step, will apply to "short sales" as well as to purchases.

It was the first change in market credit terms, known as "margin requirements," in about two years.

Brief Announcement

The board's brief announcement simply said:

"The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System today amended its Regulations T and U relating respectively to margin requirements of brokers and dealers, by increasing the requirements from 50 to 75 per cent, effective January 17, 1951.

"The increased requirements apply to both purchases and short sales. No other change is made in the regulations."

The timing of the action was something of a surprise because use of credit had not been considered a major factor in the relatively brisk volume of trading on the stock market recently.

Psychological Aim

Neither had there been any sign that Washington officials considered the rising trend of stocks as any especial inflation danger, although there have been official urgings against "speculation" in any form. In some official quarters, the new increase in margin requirements was described as having chiefly a psychological aim, to help dampen any speculative tendencies.

During much of World War II, and for a period thereafter, the board required full cash payment for stock purchases.

Gehr Acquitted In Wife's Slaying

CARMEL, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Herbert Gehr was acquitted today in the slaying of his divorce-seeking wife as she prowled around a mountain cabin where he was weekending with another woman.

The handsome, 40-year-old New York City television director broke down and sobbed at a jury's verdict of "not guilty" second degree murder charges.

He could have drawn life in prison if convicted.

A packed courtroom burst into applause as Foreman Nicholas Lorenz announced the jury's verdict. The panel deliberated two hours and 21 minutes.

There were seven women—all mothers—and five men on the jury. Gehr, himself, is the father of two young daughters.

Absent from the courtroom at the climax of the trial was Mrs. Dorothea Matthews, 31, the trim and sultry other woman in the case.

She testified for the state but even the prosecution admitted she was on Gehr's side.

Gehr, a German immigrant and one-time $16,000-a-year Life magazine photographer, admitted shooting his 31-year-old wife, Andrea, last July 10.

But he said he thought prowlers were bothering the cottage door and that he fired through it with no idea his wife was outside.

Army Rookie Will Be Private Again

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Army rookie again will be called a private, instead of a recruit.

The Army announced today the change will be made Jan. 21 for morale and administrative reasons.

Since August 1, 1948, soldiers in the first four months of basic Army training have been called recruits. But under the present accelerated training program, the Army said, many soldiers complete basic work in less than four months and go into specialist training still with the title of recruit. The Army said it found this had a bad effect on morale.

Senate Showdown On Issue Of U. S. Troops For Europe Is Scheduled Next Tuesday

Demos Will Attempt To Sidetrack Wherry's Resolution Challenging Truman's Authority

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP) — Senate administration leaders decided today to try to sidetrack the Wherry resolution challenging President Truman's authority to send American troops to Europe without the consent of Congress.

The strategy is to put off a real showdown until after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the proposed international army in Western Europe, returns from his present European tour. Administration officials believe his report will back up the idea of sending troops to Europe.

By agreement, the Senate will begin voting next Tuesday on what to do with the Wherry resolution. The Democratic Policy Committee of the Senate decided today to try to send it to committee for "study."

There were reports that Sen. Connally (D-Tex), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, might later offer a substitute resolution saying it is desirable to send troops to Europe.

Sen. Wherry (R-Neb), GOP floor leader in the Senate, has called his resolution the "crux" of the Great Debate on foreign policy now raging in Congress and across the nation.

The resolution would oppose—but not prohibit — the President's acting alone in committing troops to the defense of Europe.

Mr. Truman has said he will "consult" with Congress, but will not be bound by its decisions. He has contended that under the Constitution, as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, he has authority to send troops anywhere in the world.

Wherry's resolution would put the Senate on record as declaring that "no ground forces of the United States should be assigned to duty in the European area for the purpose of the North Atlantic treaty pending the adoption of a policy with respect thereto by the Congress."

In a formal speech today, Wherry told the Senate:

"The meaning of this resolution is plain. It neither approves nor disapproves the sending of United State ground forces to Atlantic treaty countries to become part of a peacetime international army.

"The only purpose of this resolution is to hold in abeyance the assignment of United States troops to Western Europe until the Congress — as the policy-making branch of the government — acts upon the matter."

Argument Over 18-Year Draft Grows Warmer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP) — Renewed backing from Defense Secretary George C. Marshall for a draft of 18-year-olds failed today to shake hardening opposition in the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee.

Directly, Gen. Marshall's new arguments were only against a suggested compromise under which youths might be drafted earlier but could not be sent overseas until they reached 19, the present draft age. He said that would "hamstring" the services.

But Chairman Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex) rejected the whole 18-year idea, at least as a measure necessary to reach present goals.

"You do not have to touch 18-year-olds to make up that force," he said, referring to administration plans for armed forces totaling 3,500,000 by June 30.

And Sen. Stennis (D-Miss) put in:

"We are asked to leave the 20 and 21-year-old at home simply because he has a wife, and she may be earning more than he is. I want more light before I support such legislation."

The Defense Department says the alternative to an 18-year draft age is to take husbands, and perhaps fathers and veterns.

Johnson and Stennis were not alone in their stand. They only happened to be the most vocal in a hearing session that showed evidence of sharpening tempers.

For instance, Chairman Russell (D-Ga) of the Armed Services Committee, of which the Johnson group is a subcommittee, greeted the 18-year draft proposal last week with a comment that the idea already had "two strikes" on it.

Since then senators have reported a growing flow of messages from home protesting the plan to lower the induction age.

Md. State Trooper Breathes New Life Into Crash Victim

BEL AIR, Md., Jan. 16 (AP) — A Maryland state trooper breathed new life into a three-year-old boy strangling to death early today in the wreckage of a highway smashup.

William T. Conley, Jr., whose parents live in the Baltimore suburb of Dundalk, is in Harford Memorial Hospital here with a fractured skull and a brain injury.

Doctors said he would be dead except for the quick action taken by Trooper B. T. Haywood.

The little boy was trapped when a car and a big trailer-truck collided near Wonowingo. His neck was caught between the car's roof and the top of the front seat. He apparently was dead when Trooper Haywood reached him.

For five minutes, Haywood breathed down the boy's throat. Billy began crying. The other rescuers doubled their feverish efforts and pried the wreckage open enough to get the boy out.

State Senate Unanimously Approves "Frisking" Bill

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 16 (AP) — The Senate passed unanimously today a bill to make carrying concealed firearms a felony, the most serious of crime.

It marked the first time either house of the General Assembly had ever approved one of the so-called "frisking" bills which have animated the last four sessions.

Senators turned the statewide measure over to delegates for consideration in an afternoon which saw:

1. Sen. Turnbull (D-Baltimore County) demand a complete airing of mystery construction at Maryland State College for Negroes at Princess Anne.

2—Delegate Sklar (D-Balto 4th) propose a permanent 15-member House committee on civil defense.

3—The Legislature's special mental hospitals committee agree informally on Delegate Robinson (D-Balto 4th) as chairman.

4. The Senate pass five bills, the first they have cleared since the session began 13 days ago.

5. A proposal to authorize sale of Camp Ritchie to the federal government referred to Gov. McKeldin.

The concealed arms measure had been endorsed by the Legislative Council. By making the crime a felony, it would accomplish the same objective as previously doomed "frisking" bills. In effect, it would legalize as evidence any arms seized without a warrant.

Turnbul's resolution, calling for "pitiless publicity" of premature work on a proposed $271,000 agricultural engineering building at Princess Anne, was turned over to the Senate Rules Committee.

Both the Senate and House met for only a short time. The Senate passed measures to waive the auto titling tax for new residents transferring their registration from another state; to place responsibility for damage in the city or county whose police commandeer a private citizens' car; to require a clear statement of insurance coverage in installment contracts for car sales; and to legalize reproductions of ancient Baltimore city records.

10 Lose Lives In Plane Crash Near Spokane

EDWALL, Wash., Jan. 16 (AP) —A twin-engined passenger plane carried 10 persons to their deaths today as it hurtled down through the snow and crashed near an Eastern Washington farmhouse.

All aboard the Northwest Airlines plane died—seven passengers and three crew members.

Pilot Lloyd Rickman, Seattle, said in his last radio message he was at an elevation of 6,000 feet and "in trouble."

The plane—a Martin 202 capable of carrying 36 passengers—hit the ground and burned on the L. E. Bundy farm about 800 feet from the farmhouse. It had taken off from Spokane 15 or 20 minutes before on a flight to Seattle.

Airlines officials in Spokane said they couldn't tell yet what had happened.

No Complete Bodies Found

"There just wasn't anything left to see," a reporter said after visiting the scene 20 miles west of Spokane. "The plane just isn't there. Mr. Bundy, the farm owner, couldn't even tell it was a plane until he saw the largest piece left — an engine."

Sgt. William Todd, of the state patrol, said there were no complete bodies found, "all there was left was pieces, and small ones."

Bundy said he ran out to the scene of the crash and found little left.

"It looked then just like it does now (three hours after the crash), just pieces. x x x"

"I kicked around until I found a book that said Northwest Airlines on it—then I knew what it was.

Crash Is Described

This was Mrs. Bundy's description of the crash:

"I was in the house with my husband and two children. The first we heard was a roar, like it was trying to gain altitude. Then it started down. It flew right over our house and crashed just beyond.

"We didn't see it before the crash because it came so fast, we didn't know which way to look. It was snowing and blowing fairly hard.

"It was headed back toward Spokane. If it was flying toward Seattle it must have turned around to fly back to Spokane. It was awfully low over the house. It was frightening."

French Check Vietminh Drive

SAIGON, Indochina, Jan. 16 (AP)—French forces have temporarily checked the attack of 30,000 Vietminh troops in a toe-to-toe fight 30 miles northwest of Hanoi, army spokesmen announced tonight.

The contending armies, however, apparently were throwing their reserves into a crucial battle, which could end in breaking the back of Ho Chi Minh's Communist-led attack or the swift fall of Hanoi, capital of Northern Indochina.

Like the Chinese Communists in Korea, the Vietminh had large reserves, which the French could not match to fill gaps caused by casualties.

Attacking frontally for the first time in the four years of the Indochina war, the Vietminh first throw about 20 battalions, or about 20,000 men, into a narrow salient in the Vinh Yen area, 30 miles northwest of Hanoi, the French said.

Reported Marriage Of Girl, 12, Is Probed

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 16 (AP)—The reported marriage of a 12-year-old rural school girl to a 26-year-old rubber plant worker is being investigated by county officials.

The girl is Helen Ford. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Ford of nearby Clay Township. She left her sixth grade class and has started housekeeping in nearby Mishawaka.

The girl told newsmen she was married to George Ford at Alcorn, Miss., Dec. 23. She said Ford is a brother of her stepfather.

Donald Coleman, county attendance officer, said the girl's mother told him her daughter eloped against her will. Coleman said, however, "I gather that the mother did not object to the marriage."

Dewey Says Truman Is Playing Politics

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey accused President Truman today of playing "politics as usual" and endangering national safety by his proposed $1,400,000,000 increase in non-defense spending in the new federal budget.

Plane Crashes In Field, Disintegrates

The wreckage of a Northwest Airlines passenger plane is strewn over a snow-covered field near Edwall, Wash., after it crashed yesterday, killing seven passengers and three crew members.

Nation Moves Closer General Price Controls

Government Moves To Set Up Machinery

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The government sought to speed the creation of price control machinery today, amid new indications that a general price freeze will be ordered as soon as officials consider it feasible.

An official who was extremely influential in last week's decision against immediate issuance of a 30-day price freeze made it clear today that he is not opposing a freeze—but is concerned with the timing of it.

He outlined the conditions under which he would be willing to risk a freeze without having a large and experienced staff on hand.

Favors Out-And-Out Freeze

And he said that when the time comes, he favors an out-and-out freeze, rather than the sidetracked proposal which would have required business firms to give 30 days notice before raising prices.

This man declined to be quoted by name. Nevertheless his views are important to the public because of the weight he swings in the government on the critical question of price and wage controls

Meanwhile, other officials disclosed that the Economic Stabilization Agency expects to have its 13 regional offices open for business by Feb. 1.

They said no regional directors have been appointed so far, but that some competent federal official in each of the 13 cities is being asked to serve as acting director until a permanent head is chosen.

13 Regional Offices

It has already been announced that the regional offices will be in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Richmond, Atlanta, Cleveland, Chicago, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas, Denver, San Francisco and Seattle.

Existence of a field organization was one of the minimum conditions laid down for a general price freeze by the influential official who opposes a freeze immediately. He feels that a certain number of district offices should be opened, in addition to the regional offices.

Railroad Freight Rate Hike Asked

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today was asked to approve a $470,000,000 a year jump in the nation's railroad freight charges. It would be the ninth boost since World War II.

Some 466 lines joined in the petition, presented on behalf of the industry as a whole.

It asked for a general six per cent advance in the rates, but with increases on fresh fruits, vegetables and melons held to six cents per hundred pounds; on lumber and sugar to four cents per hundred; and on coal to 18 cents per net ton and 20 cents per gross ton.

The railroads gave notice that they will come before ICC next Friday to propose that the revisions be made effective at once, on an emergency basis.

Baltimore Waterfront Fire Destroys Decommissioned Troopship, $5,000,000 Pier

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16 (AP) — The old troopship which took Woodrow Wilson to Europe in 1918 was gutted tonight by a raging fire that swept Baltimore's south waterfront and injured seven persons.

The flames, swept by 40-mile winds, also destroyed a $5,000,000 empty ammunition pier, and burned a large tug and barges of equipment collected for work on the Chesapeake Bay bridge.

Only one of the seven was reported hurt seriously. Coast Guardsman Robert Long, 17, fell from the upper deck of the CGC Chinook while manning a hose. His head struck an anchor.

He was taken to Marine Hospital and was under observation for possible brain hemorrhage. He also suffered minor cuts and bruises on both arms.

The other six received minor cuts, bruises and burns and were treated on the scene.

The 40-year-old transport George Washington caught fire shortly after flames swept down the 1,000-foot timber pier from a small blaze in a shack at the head of the pier.

A tug trying to nose in between the burning pier and the George Washington caught fire itself and had to be abandoned.

Later efforts freed the ship and a sister transport, the Gen. Edmund B. Alexander. The Alexander was towed to safety in a nearby cove and did not catch fire.

Both the old vessels had been decommissioned.

It was the George Washington on which President Wilson traveled at the end of World War I to attend the Versailles peace conference.

The blaze began about 4 p. m. By the time the first fire-fighting equipment had threaded its way through the heavy rush-hour traffic the fire had eaten its way the length of the pier.

In all, there were 11 alarms sounded for the spectacular blaze.

At 9 p. m. the danger of further spread of the flames seemed past, but an all night fire lighting up the waterfront was in prospect.

It appeared that nothing could be done to save the old ammunition loading pier or any of the burning craft. The flames would just have to burn out.

Food Prices Reach New All-Time High

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—Retail food prices reached a new all-time high during the last two weeks of December, the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated today.

An increase of 1.2 per cent between Dec. 15 and Jan. 2 was enough to establish a record one per cent higher than the previous peak of July 15, 1948.

The price index on Jan. 2 was estimated at 218.9 per cent of the 1935-39 average, based on a survey of 50 foods in eight cities. That was 1.2 per cent above Dec. 15 and 6.9 per cent above June 15, prior to the Korean conflict.

The largest price increase was 4.7 per cent for fats and oils.

Enlistments Are Curbed By USAF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Air Force announced tonight the suspension of enlistments except for personnel with previous Air Force service.

A spokesman said the action was taken due to heavy enlistments and overcrowding of facilities at Air Force indoctrination centers. He said it is hoped the suspension can be lifted about Feb. 1.

There are three exceptions to the order, he said. Still being accepted are personnel with prior Air Force service, applicants for the Women's Air Force (WAF), and young men who have been appointed to aviation cadet courses for pilots and navigators.

The Air Force spokesman told a reporter that it is hoped to have the new Sampson Air Force base at Geneva, N. Y., ready for operation by the middle of February. He said this would greatly facilitate handling of enlistees.

Desperado Will Be Tried In Oklahoma

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Department of Justice said tonight that William E. Cook, 23-year-old desperado suspected of killing eight persons in western states, will be prosecuted in Oklahoma City on federal kidnapping charges.

A department official said U. S. Attorney Ernest Tolin in Los Angeles has been directed to transfer Cook to custody of federal authorities in Oklahoma.

"Ike" Reaches Lisbon On His Defense Tour

LISBON, Portugal, Jan. 16 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower arrived tonight on the southern leg of his tour of Atlantic pact powers after declaring in Britain that no free nation, no matter how strong, can afford an attempt to stand alone.

This statement was made at a news conference in London before the supreme commander of the Atlantic treaty organization took off for Lisbon and other capitals to view prospects for defense against Communist aggression.

Escaped Prisoner Caught After Wild 200-Mile Flight

WILLARD, Utah, Jan. 16 (AP)—An escaped Idaho prisoner took three hostages on a wild 200-mile flight today. But he couldn't fire his gun fast enough to prevent recapture when officers surprised him as he pulled into this little Northern Utah town.

Robert Lee Gilford, 35, used a butcher knife to threaten a guard and escape from the county jail in Twin Falls, Idaho. He gained possession of a gun, then forced a deputy sheriff and two city policemen to drive him away in a city police car.

Originally held on a minor charge, Gilford now faces a federal charge of kidnaping.

Three times on his flight Gilford used the car's police radio to warn officers against trying to stop him. He said he'd kill his three hostages if they did.

Federal, state and county officers were in on the arrest. Gilford was taken to Brigham City, Utah, and placed in the Box Elder County jail.

Combat Team Enters Suwon, Then Pulls Out

Takes Up Positions Just South Of Town

TOKYO, Wednesday, Jan. 17 (AP)—A fast-moving Allied combat team, paced by tanks and fiery air attacks, jabbed into Suwon, 17 air miles south of Communist-occupied Seoul, Tuesday to harass three Chinese Red armies massing for a new onslaught in South Korea.

Uncovering an apparent weakness on the west flank of the Chinese forces, the Eighth Army smashed a small Communist unit of 100 men inside Suwon's ancient walls, then pulled back after dusk to defensive positions south of the town.

It was the second straight day of sharp, aggressive actions which the Eighth Army termed "reconnaissance in force."

Armor-led infantry entered Osan, 28 air miles south of Seoul, Monday, then swerved northeast nine miles and captured Kumyangjang and nearby Chon.

Entire Front Fluid

The whole Korean front was so fluid that Eighth Army censors ordered correspondents to refrain from identifying any units below army level.

Apparently one purpose of the Eighth Army's lightning-left jabs in the west was to throw off balance the typically slow Chinese buildup of an estimated 120,000 men south of the Han River.

Allied airmen struck this force and claimed 1,750 casualties in two days.

The strikes in the west coincided with the withdrawal of United Nations forces from the 16-day old Wonju salient in Central Korea.

American, French and Dutch troops, in hard fighting there for 11 out of the past 16 days, plugged the two best highways leading south through the snow-mantled Sobaek mountains.

The gallant Allied stand was intended to straighten Eighth Army lines, a communique announced Tuesday night.

Reds Dispersed In East

The communique also said a United Nations force had dispersed 200 Reds 20 miles northwest of Samchok, some 45 miles down the east coast from the 38th parallel. This was the first action reported in the east coast sector in almost two weeks.

Eighth Army tactics in Korea appear to be to pull back whenever Communist pressure gets too heavy. The policy covering the hard-hitting withdrawal is to preserve maximum Allied strength while sapping the enemy.

On the 17th day of the Communist offensive aimed at sweeping Gen. MacArthur's forces from South Korea, the Chinese and Korean Reds have advanced in force from 45 to 70 miles below the 38th parallel. The front lines extend 150 miles from west to east and run through the rugged central mountain spine.

Pravda Attacks U. N. Truce Plan

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru told newsmen today the United Nations cease-fire plan for Korea meets many of Red China's basic conditions for a settlement and Peiping has promised it a careful study.

However, word reached here from Moscow even while the Indian leader was speaking that Pravda had taken a long-distance swipe at the plan. The Communist Party newspaper declared the plan is a device by which the U. S. State Department intends to gain time in order to reinforce and reorganize the American troops in Korea for continued warfare. The article was written by Pravda's Lake Success correspondent, A. Rassadin.

Nehru's government, of all non-Communist governments which have missions in Peiping, is in close touch with the Red Chinese regime. He is understood to have sent a message to Premier Chou En-Lai urging acceptance of the plan, stressing the sincerity of its sponsors and arguing a Far Eastern settlement would help ease world tension.

Soldier Sent To Prison For Sex Attack On WAC

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16 (AP)—James L. Farrar, 23-year-old soldier from Clifton Forge, Va., convicted of a sex attack on a 41-year-old WAC sergeant, was sentenced today to eight years in federal prison.

The attack occurred last Sept. 30 at Fort Meade, Md.

The WAC, a native of Pittsburgh, testified she struggled with Farrar for 45 minutes. The soldier weighs 235 pounds and is six feet seven inches tall.

The Defense Department says the alternative to an 18-year draft age is to take husbands, and perhaps fathers and veterns.

Johnson and Stennis were not alone in their stand. They only happened to be the most vocal in a hearing session that showed evidence of sharpening tempers.

For instance, Chairman Russell (D-Ga) of the Armed Services Committee, of which the Johnson group is a subcommittee, greeted the 18-year draft proposal last week with a comment that the idea already had "two strikes" on it.

Since then senators have reported a growing flow of messages from home protesting the plan to lower the induction age.

Md. State Trooper Breathes New Life Into Crash Victim

BEL AIR, Md., Jan. 16 (AP) — A Maryland state trooper breathed new life into a three-year-old boy strangling to death early today in the wreckage of a highway smashup.

William T. Conley, Jr., whose parents live in the Baltimore suburb of Dundalk, is in Harford Memorial Hospital here with a fractured skull and a brain injury.

Doctors said he would be dead except for the quick action taken by Trooper B. T. Haywood.

The little boy was trapped when a car and a big trailer-truck collided near Wonowingo. His neck was caught between the car's roof and the top of the front seat. He apparently was dead when Trooper Haywood reached him.

For five minutes, Haywood breathed down the boy's throat. Billy began crying. The other rescuers doubled their feverish efforts and pried the wreckage open enough to get the boy out.

State Senate Unanimously Approves "Frisking" Bill

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 16 (AP) — The Senate passed unanimously today a bill to make carrying concealed firearms a felony, the most serious of crime.

It marked the first time either house of the General Assembly had ever approved one of the so-called "frisking" bills which have animated the last four sessions.

Senators turned the statewide measure over to delegates for consideration in an afternoon which saw:

1. Sen. Turnbull (D-Baltimore County) demand a complete airing of mystery construction at Maryland State College for Negroes at Princess Anne.

2—Delegate Sklar (D-Balto 4th) propose a permanent 15-member House committee on civil defense.

3—The Legislature's special mental hospitals committee agree informally on Delegate Robinson (D-Balto 4th) as chairman.

4. The Senate pass five bills, the first they have cleared since the session began 13 days ago.

5. A proposal to authorize sale of Camp Ritchie to the federal government referred to Gov. McKeldin.

The concealed arms measure had been endorsed by the Legislative Council. By making the crime a felony, it would accomplish the same objective as previously doomed "frisking" bills. In effect, it would legalize as evidence any arms seized without a warrant.

Turnbul's resolution, calling for "pitiless publicity" of premature work on a proposed $271,000 agricultural engineering building at Princess Anne, was turned over to the Senate Rules Committee.

Both the Senate and House met for only a short time. The Senate passed measures to waive the auto titling tax for new residents transferring their registration from another state; to place responsibility for damage in the city or county whose police commandeer a private citizens' car; to require a clear statement of insurance coverage in installment contracts for car sales; and to legalize reproductions of ancient Baltimore city records.

10 Lose Lives In Plane Crash Near Spokane

EDWALL, Wash., Jan. 16 (AP) —A twin-engined passenger plane carried 10 persons to their deaths today as it hurtled down through the snow and crashed near an Eastern Washington farmhouse.

All aboard the Northwest Airlines plane died—seven passengers and three crew members.

Pilot Lloyd Rickman, Seattle, said in his last radio message he was at an elevation of 6,000 feet and "in trouble."

The plane—a Martin 202 capable of carrying 36 passengers—hit the ground and burned on the L. E. Bundy farm about 800 feet from the farmhouse. It had taken off from Spokane 15 or 20 minutes before on a flight to Seattle.

Airlines officials in Spokane said they couldn't tell yet what had happened.

No Complete Bodies Found

"There just wasn't anything left to see," a reporter said after visiting the scene 20 miles west of Spokane. "The plane just isn't there. Mr. Bundy, the farm owner, couldn't even tell it was a plane until he saw the largest piece left — an engine."

Sgt. William Todd, of the state patrol, said there were no complete bodies found, "all there was left was pieces, and small ones."

Bundy said he ran out to the scene of the crash and found little left.

"It looked then just like it does now (three hours after the crash), just pieces. x x x"

"I kicked around until I found a book that said Northwest Airlines on it—then I knew what it was.

Crash Is Described

This was Mrs. Bundy's description of the crash:

"I was in the house with my husband and two children. The first we heard was a roar, like it was trying to gain altitude. Then it started down. It flew right over our house and crashed just beyond.

"We didn't see it before the crash because it came so fast, we didn't know which way to look. It was snowing and blowing fairly hard.

"It was headed back toward Spokane. If it was flying toward Seattle it must have turned around to fly back to Spokane. It was awfully low over the house. It was frightening."

French Check Vietminh Drive

SAIGON, Indochina, Jan. 16 (AP)—French forces have temporarily checked the attack of 30,000 Vietminh troops in a toe-to-toe fight 30 miles northwest of Hanoi, army spokesmen announced tonight.

The contending armies, however, apparently were throwing their reserves into a crucial battle, which could end in breaking the back of Ho Chi Minh's Communist-led attack or the swift fall of Hanoi, capital of Northern Indochina.

Like the Chinese Communists in Korea, the Vietminh had large reserves, which the French could not match to fill gaps caused by casualties.

Attacking frontally for the first time in the four years of the Indochina war, the Vietminh first throw about 20 battalions, or about 20,000 men, into a narrow salient in the Vinh Yen area, 30 miles northwest of Hanoi, the French said.

Reported Marriage Of Girl, 12, Is Probed

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 16 (AP)—The reported marriage of a 12-year-old rural school girl to a 26-year-old rubber plant worker is being investigated by county officials.

The girl is Helen Ford. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Ford of nearby Clay Township. She left her sixth grade class and has started housekeeping in nearby Mishawaka.

The girl told newsmen she was married to George Ford at Alcorn, Miss., Dec. 23. She said Ford is a brother of her stepfather.

Donald Coleman, county attendance officer, said the girl's mother told him her daughter eloped against her will. Coleman said, however, "I gather that the mother did not object to the marriage."

Dewey Says Truman Is Playing Politics

Plane Crashes In Field, Disintegrates

Nation Moves Closer General Price Controls

Government Moves To Set Up Machinery

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The government sought to speed the creation of price control machinery today, amid new indications that a general price freeze will be ordered as soon as officials consider it feasible.

An official who was extremely influential in last week's decision against immediate issuance of a 30-day price freeze made it clear today that he is not opposing a freeze—but is concerned with the timing of it.

He outlined the conditions under which he would be willing to risk a freeze without having a large and experienced staff on hand.

Favors Out-And-Out Freeze

And he said that when the time comes, he favors an out-and-out freeze, rather than the sidetracked proposal which would have required business firms to give 30 days notice before raising prices.

This man declined to be quoted by name. Nevertheless his views are important to the public because of the weight he swings in the government on the critical question of price and wage controls

Meanwhile, other officials disclosed that the Economic Stabilization Agency expects to have its 13 regional offices open for business by Feb. 1.

They said no regional directors have been appointed so far, but that some competent federal official in each of the 13 cities is being asked to serve as acting director until a permanent head is chosen.

13 Regional Offices

It has already been announced that the regional offices will be in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Richmond, Atlanta, Cleveland, Chicago, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas, Denver, San Francisco and Seattle.

Existence of a field organization was one of the minimum conditions laid down for a general price freeze by the influential official who opposes a freeze immediately. He feels that a certain number of district offices should be opened, in addition to the regional offices.

Railroad Freight Rate Hike Asked

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today was asked to approve a $470,000,000 a year jump in the nation's railroad freight charges. It would be the ninth boost since World War II.

Some 466 lines joined in the petition, presented on behalf of the industry as a whole.

It asked for a general six per cent advance in the rates, but with increases on fresh fruits, vegetables and melons held to six cents per hundred pounds; on lumber and sugar to four cents per hundred; and on coal to 18 cents per net ton and 20 cents per gross ton.

The railroads gave notice that they will come before ICC next Friday to propose that the revisions be made effective at once, on an emergency basis.

Actress Weds Doctor

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (AP)—Actress June Lockhart and Dr. John Francis Maloney, a New York physician, were married today.

Baltimore Waterfront Fire Destroys Decommissioned Troopship, $5,000,000 Pier

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16 (AP) — The old troopship which took Woodrow Wilson to Europe in 1918 was gutted tonight by a raging fire that swept Baltimore's south waterfront and injured seven persons.

The flames, swept by 40-mile winds, also destroyed a $5,000,000 empty ammunition pier, and burned a large tug and barges of equipment collected for work on the Chesapeake Bay bridge.

Only one of the seven was reported hurt seriously. Coast Guardsman Robert Long, 17, fell from the upper deck of the CGC Chinook while manning a hose. His head struck an anchor.

He was taken to Marine Hospital and was under observation for possible brain hemorrhage. He also suffered minor cuts and bruises on both arms.

The other six received minor cuts, bruises and burns and were treated on the scene.

The 40-year-old transport George Washington caught fire shortly after flames swept down the 1,000-foot timber pier from a small blaze in a shack at the head of the pier.

A tug trying to nose in between the burning pier and the George Washington caught fire itself and had to be abandoned.

Later efforts freed the ship and a sister transport, the Gen. Edmund B. Alexander. The Alexander was towed to safety in a nearby cove and did not catch fire.

Both the old vessels had been decommissioned.

It was the George Washington on which President Wilson traveled at the end of World War I to attend the Versailles peace conference.

The blaze began about 4 p. m. By the time the first fire-fighting equipment had threaded its way through the heavy rush-hour traffic the fire had eaten its way the length of the pier.

In all, there were 11 alarms sounded for the spectacular blaze.

At 9 p. m. the danger of further spread of the flames seemed past, but an all night fire lighting up the waterfront was in prospect.

It appeared that nothing could be done to save the old ammunition loading pier or any of the burning craft. The flames would just have to burn out.

Food Prices Reach New All-Time High

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—Retail food prices reached a new all-time high during the last two weeks of December, the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated today.

An increase of 1.2 per cent between Dec. 15 and Jan. 2 was enough to establish a record one per cent higher than the previous peak of July 15, 1948.

The price index on Jan. 2 was estimated at 218.9 per cent of the 1935-39 average, based on a survey of 50 foods in eight cities. That was 1.2 per cent above Dec. 15 and 6.9 per cent above June 15, prior to the Korean conflict.

The largest price increase was 4.7 per cent for fats and oils.

Enlistments Are Curbed By USAF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Air Force announced tonight the suspension of enlistments except for personnel with previous Air Force service.

A spokesman said the action was taken due to heavy enlistments and overcrowding of facilities at Air Force indoctrination centers. He said it is hoped the suspension can be lifted about Feb. 1.

There are three exceptions to the order, he said. Still being accepted are personnel with prior Air Force service, applicants for the Women's Air Force (WAF), and young men who have been appointed to aviation cadet courses for pilots and navigators.

The Air Force spokesman told a reporter that it is hoped to have the new Sampson Air Force base at Geneva, N. Y., ready for operation by the middle of February. He said this would greatly facilitate handling of enlistees.

Desperado Will Be Tried In Oklahoma

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Department of Justice said tonight that William E. Cook, 23-year-old desperado suspected of killing eight persons in western states, will be prosecuted in Oklahoma City on federal kidnapping charges.

A department official said U. S. Attorney Ernest Tolin in Los Angeles has been directed to transfer Cook to custody of federal authorities in Oklahoma.

Escaped Prisoner Caught After Wild 200-Mile Flight

WILLARD, Utah, Jan. 16 (AP)—An escaped Idaho prisoner took three hostages on a wild 200-mile flight today. But he couldn't fire his gun fast enough to prevent recapture when officers surprised him as he pulled into this little Northern Utah town.

Robert Lee Gilford, 35, used a butcher knife to threaten a guard and escape from the county jail in Twin Falls, Idaho. He gained possession of a gun, then forced a deputy sheriff and two city policemen to drive him away in a city police car.

Originally held on a minor charge, Gilford now faces a federal charge of kidnaping.

Three times on his flight Gilford used the car's police radio to warn officers against trying to stop him. He said he'd kill his three hostages if they did.

Federal, state and county officers were in on the arrest. Gilford was taken to Brigham City, Utah, and placed in the Box Elder County jail.

"Ike" Reaches Lisbon On His Defense Tour

LISBON, Portugal, Jan. 16 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower arrived tonight on the southern leg of his tour of Atlantic pact powers after declaring in Britain that no free nation, no matter how strong, can afford an attempt to stand alone.

This statement was made at a news conference in London before the supreme commander of the Atlantic treaty organization took off for Lisbon and other capitals to view prospects for defense against Communist aggression.

Combat Team Enters Suwon, Then Pulls Out

Takes Up Positions Just South Of Town

TOKYO, Wednesday, Jan. 17 (AP)—A fast-moving Allied combat team, paced by tanks and fiery air attacks, jabbed into Suwon, 17 air miles south of Communist-occupied Seoul, Tuesday to harass three Chinese Red armies massing for a new onslaught in South Korea.

Uncovering an apparent weakness on the west flank of the Chinese forces, the Eighth Army smashed a small Communist unit of 100 men inside Suwon's ancient walls, then pulled back after dusk to defensive positions south of the town.

It was the second straight day of sharp, aggressive actions which the Eighth Army termed "reconnaissance in force."

Armor-led infantry entered Osan, 28 air miles south of Seoul, Monday, then swerved northeast nine miles and captured Kumyangjang and nearby Chon.

Entire Front Fluid

The whole Korean front was so fluid that Eighth Army censors ordered correspondents to refrain from identifying any units below army level.

Apparently one purpose of the Eighth Army's lightning left jabs in the west was to throw off balance the typically slow Chinese buildup of an estimated 120,000 men south of the Han River.

Allied airmen struck this force and claimed 1,750 casualties in two days.

The strikes in the west coincided with the withdrawal of United Nations forces from the 16-day old Wonju salient in Central Korea.

American, French and Dutch troops, in hard fighting there for 11 out of the past 16 days, plugged the two best highways leading south through the snow-mantled Sobaek mountains.

The gallant Allied stand was intended to straighten Eighth Army lines, a communique announced Tuesday night.

Reds Dispersed In East

The communique also said a United Nations force had dispersed 200 Reds 20 miles northwest of Samchok, some 45 miles down the east coast from the 38th parallel. This was the first action reported in the east coast sector in almost two weeks.

Eighth Army tactics in Korea appear to be to pull back whenever Communist pressure gets too heavy. The policy covering the hard-hitting withdrawal is to preserve maximum Allied strength while sapping the enemy.

On the 17th day of the Communist offensive aimed at sweeping Gen. MacArthur's forces from South Korea, the Chinese and Korean Reds have advanced in force from 45 to 70 miles below the 38th parallel. The front lines extend 150 miles from west to east and run through the rugged central mountain spine.

Pravda Attacks U. N. Truce Plan

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru told newsmen today the United Nations cease-fire plan for Korea meets many of Red China's basic conditions for a settlement and Peiping has promised it a careful study.

However, word reached here from Moscow even while the Indian leader was speaking that Pravda had taken a long-distance swipe at the plan. The Communist Party newspaper declared the plan is a device by which the U. S. State Department intends to gain time in order to reinforce and reorganize the American troops in Korea for continued warfare. The article was written by Pravda's Lake Success correspondent, A. Rassadin.

Nehru's government, of all non-Communist governments which have missions in Peiping, is in close touch with the Red Chinese regime. He is understood to have sent a message to Premier Chou En-Lai urging acceptance of the plan, stressing the sincerity of its sponsors and arguing a Far Eastern settlement would help ease world tension.

Soldier Sent To Prison For Sex Attack On WAC

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16 (AP)—James L. Farrar, 23-year-old soldier from Clifton Forge, Va., convicted of a sex attack on a 41-year-old WAC sergeant, was sentenced today to eight years in federal prison.

The attack occurred last Sept. 30 at Fort Meade, Md.

The WAC, a native of Pittsburgh, testified she struggled with Farrar for 45 minutes. The soldier weighs 235 pounds and is six feet seven inches tall.

Seven City Engineering Employes Retire; Department Reorganized

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, has announced a program for reorganizing routine duties of employes in the Engineering Department.

At the same time, the commissioner said that seven employes at the city warehouse have reached retirement age and are no longer on city payrolls. One of the seven retired because of ill health.

Mrs. Roeder said the men will not be replaced as their duties will be absorbed by others. This will mean a saving of $17,774 a year, she added.

A change was also announced in the janitorial setup at City Hall and the Public Safety Building. One of the three shifts has been abandoned, occasioned by the retirement of W. A. Brubaker. His duties are incorporated into the other two shifts. One of the janitor jobs at the Public Safety Building has been abolished since the death of an employe and his duties incorporated into two other jobs.

The two moves mean a total saving of $4,092 a year, Mrs. Roeder said.

In the reorganizing of the engineering routine, Mrs. Roeder has prepared list of "duties" for each member of the department.

Here are three examples: Draftsman—1. Repair maps which are in bad condition; 2. If maps are too bad, tracings are to be made and old maps destroyed; 3. Fill in for crew members, if necessary; 4. Look up information for crew when they call or come in to get same; 5. Look up information regarding bench marks, elevations and profiles in reply to requests for same; 6. Procure information for the public regarding establishing plumbing connections, depths of sewers, etc.; 7. Post plan of work on bulletin board and check off when completed. (Mrs. Roeder notes that there is enough needed work on map repairs and tracings to last for years.)

For the assistant city engineer and his crew the following is designated—1. Upon request, make survey and establish grades for streets, alleys, sewers, water lines and gas lines; 2. Upon request, run true courses for different streets; 3. Establish more bench marks and inspect old ones; 4. Establish grades on unpaved streets for future paving; 5. Cut brush on city limit line; 6. Notify the office of any persons on the crew off sick or on vacation; 7. Responsible for safety measures of crew on job; 8. Responsible for use and care of instruments and vehicles in Engineering Department; 9. Responsible for six months inventory report of instruments and supplies under his jurisdiction; 10. Post daily plan of work on bulletin board in Engineering Department; 11. Design construction jobs and projects; 12.Inspection of construction works; 13. Make lists in accordance with the order of their importance, of dirt streets which should be improved with gutters and curbs and have engineering plans completed before July 1, 1951 on most urgent ones.

For the construction foreman, the duties listed include—1. Receive all requests for construction jobs; 2. Responsible for carrying out work on all construction jobs; 3. Responsible to supervise men working on construction jobs; 4. Get design from Engineering Department for all construction jobs before starting; 5. At the conclusion of each construction job, request and see that an inspection of the job is made by a member of the Engineering Department and date of inspection marked on design sheet by engineer; 6. Report to Engineering Department any changes in any construction job which has already been completed; 7. Turn in to warehouse clerk the daily time sheets for his men; 8. See that, emergency requests on construction jobs are taken care of first. 9. Set up a schedule of jobs or projects for future construction and discuss with the street superintendent and commissioner, and when agreed upon, to send a list to Engineering Department for design and basic engineering work; 10. At least two days in advance, notify Engineering Department of requests for placing of stakes (since this cannot be done any longer ahead); 11. Train men in safety measures on job.

Containers Are Placed As Polio Drive Begins

Canisters for the 1951 March of Dimes drive were distributed to business establishments, social, fraternal and veteran organizations over the weekend, according to John M. Robb, chairman of the Allegany county campaign.

The campaign got underway yesterday and will continue until January 31.

A miniature reproduction of respirator, or iron lung, the co collector is an improved version the initial container of this ty first used last year, Robb stated.

For counter display the coin co lector is equipped with an ea bearing the picture of Larry M Kenzie, Jr., 1951 March of Dim poster boy, whose arms were affec ed by polio.

COLD DUNKING MIGHT BE ALL RIGHT IN SUMMER—

but in WINTER—

Get an Automatic GAS Water Heater and have lots of hot water!

Nice, warm soothing baths! Everyone in the family—instead of just the first one in the bathroom—can enjoy this luxurious treat—when you have an Automatic GAS Water Heater. Heat, applied right under the water, keeps the water at an even temperature all the time. It saves fuel, saves time. Three times as fast as any other type, it heats water as fast as it's used.

Abundant hot water on washday! Skim through your washing without annoying delays caused by waiting for more water to heat. Your Automatic GAS Water Heater keeps you supplied with all the hot water you need. And when you're through washing, there's still plenty for other things.

Any time you need hot water—it's there! because an automatic GAS WATER HEATER has:

- Temperature Control Dial—heats water to suit you.
- Heavy Insulation—keeps heat in the water, saves fuel.
- Automatic—You use only the gas you need—it comes on and goes off without attention from you.
- Burner Underneath—Heats the water directly . . . all the heat goes right to the tank.
- A size to suit YOU—20, 30, 40, 50, 60, and 75-gallon capacity.

An Automatic GAS Water Heater COSTS LESS!

You buy it, install it, use it—for less than you would any other type.

Gas of course is the economy fuel. It provides you with lots of hot water at a fraction of the cost of other fuels.

See the new Automatic GAS Water Heaters at your Gas Appliance Dealer's or your Gas Company Office.

and informed the jurors of each move of the defendant from before the accident until he was taken into custody December 20 at 11 p. m. in his opening statement yesterday morning.

At one point in his statement to the jury Fletcher said that Darr, after the accident, had another man drive his tractor-trailer cab to Cresaptown where he (Darr) drank a doubleheader of whisky and then purchased a fifth of whisky.

"When he was taken into custody about five hours after his wife was fatally injured Darr was thoroughly under the influence of intoxicants," Fletcher declared.

Fletcher said the state would show by witnesses that Mrs. Darr had crossed the highway near her home and was standing three or four feet off the right side of the road when Darr's vehicle struck her.

One of the front wheels of the truck ran over her and her body was "rolled along by the dual rear wheels for some distance," Fletcher stated.

James Alfred Avirett is attorney for Darr.

Red China's Appeal

Copying from the book of Hitler, Red China has established a commission to engage in propaganda among Chinese living outside China. These total approximately 10,000,000, most of them in southeastern Asia but a sizable number in America and elsewhere.

This commission calls upon these scattered Chinese to establish strong united fronts against "imperialist" aggression. It promises them relief from "inhuman arrests and mass exile" when the great day comes and China, along with Russia, stands astride Asia and the world.

Letters from China are received by American Chinese reading like this: "When the liberation of America comes, the Chinese in America will also be liberated. Then, I believe, I will be able to return to a free, liberated America and be with you again."

Hitler shed tears of anguish over the "herrenvolk" whom he pictured as oppressed in other lands. Since they belonged to a race of "supermen," they would be rescued and placed in control over the common herd.

Red China's introduction of racism into world turmoil is as frankly aggressive as Hitler's scheme, and it will meet with the same lack of success. Currently a Chinese daily newspaper in New York follows the Pravda line and daily attacks the United States.

Few Chinese in the U. S. would willingly return to China today. But Dictator Mao may succeed in stirring up more trouble by convincing a few Chinese they are oppressed. If so, they will pay for their gullibility as the Germans have suffered for Hitler's fanaticism.

Better Tanks On Order

The United States will soon be producing tanks "far superior to anything known in their class anywhere," according to Army Undersecretary Alexander. They will contain several radical improvements, which he declines to describe.

Probably he was talking about the light tanks expected to start coming off the assembly line in the spring. America's tank program, he said, aims to make light U. S. tanks able to knock out enemy medium tanks, and medium U. S. tanks able to knock out enemy heavy tanks. "Our heavies go on from there," he added.

Those are encouraging words, but many Americans wish the armament of U. S. forces in Korea had included some of these new tanks. American tanks used in Korea did not compare favorably with the tanks the Russians have today.

The new tanks the U. S. will start producing a few months from now may or may not prove radically better than the new tanks the Russians will have later on. In any case, Russia is so far ahead of the U. S. in numbers, if not in quality, of tanks, that it may require years to overtake the Reds' lead.

But it is good to hear Mr. Alexander's news, for all that. It is better to have tanks on order than not to have them, period.

Man Of Three Lives

A man of three lives is the chosen subject of Harold Epstein of Falls Church, Virginia. He announces that he is working on the life of Ray Stannard Baker, and is on a search for helpful information.

Baker came into fame as a member of that extraordinary group which in the first decade of the century made McClure's magazine the foremost American periodical. Its keen scent for important timely topics and the unfailing pains which its authors took to be accurate and to be complete have rarely been equaled. Among the grouy were Ida Tarbell, relentless historian of the Standard Oil Company, and Lincoln Steffens, exposer of civic corruption and philosopher who saw deep into men's hearts. Baker, as a portrayer of industrial conditions and a biographer, added to the luster of the magazine.

An unappreciated side was his love of quiet country life, which came out in his "Adventures in Contentment" and its successors, published under the pen name of David Grayson. They are worth reading today.

Finally Baker was the disciple and official biographer of Woodrow Wilson. As such, he will be consulted by everyone who wants to know about the stirring days of Wilson's presidency and America's part in World War I.

Epstein is fortunate in his subject.

Burtonwood Again

Air Force veterans of World War II who remember Burtonwood, England, as a seat of maintenance and supply would once more feel at home there, for it is now fulfilling the same function for American planes used in Europe.

This base began to function anew with the beginning of the Berlin airlift. With the addition of the wives and children of the Air Force personnel, it now forms a compact, self-sufficient community with schools, Scout troops, day nurseries, chapels, mess halls and theaters for each of its six divisions. Relations with the British people in the nearby city of Warrington have settled down into an attitude of friendly give and take.

Such a nucleus of Americans, including women and children, affords an opportunity for the British to become acquainted at first hand with the everyday living habits of Americans. It will doubtless provide an effective antidote to the false ideas said to have been generated by some of our tourists and some of the movie exported from Hollywood.

Wool Shortage

Belgium, Italy, France and other European countries are outbidding the United States for Australian wool, according to H. J. Devereaux, South Dakota wool man, who has returned from a two months' trip down under.

Australians cannot understand, Mr. Devereaux says, why the United States has asked that it be favored in exports of wool at the same time that it is furnishing money for other countries to outbid it for the fleece. His observations leave no doubt that wool prices, now at unprecedented high levels, will go still higher.

Australia today has 6,000,000 more sheep than the United States and Australian sheepmen are highly prosperous. The Australian wool clip, worth $16,000,000 in 1932, jumped in value to $168,000,000 in 1949 and an amazing $420,000,000 last year.

NEWS—EDITORIAL—WEDNESDAY .. ..

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

"Morning Sickness"

MORE THAN ONE-HALF the women who become pregnant suffer from nausea and vomiting in the first few months. In fact, these symptoms occur so often their presence lends weight to the diagnosis of pregnancy. The condition is popularly called "morning sickness" but this is hardly apropos as it may appear also in the afternoon or evening.

The sensation of nausea resembles seasickness. It is aggravated by motion and as a result many women are a bit hesitant about riding in cars, buses, and elevators. In addition, a common accompaniment is increased salivation, described as "cotton spitting." When the feeling comes on, milady swallows and gulps as fast as she can in an effort to avoid vomiting.

The complication generally develops between the fourth and fifth week of pregnancy but may start as early as the second. It lasts until the third month and then disappears spontaneously except in the more severe cases. Some encounter nausea on arising; others feel good until after breakfast. As soon as vomiting is over with they are able to proceed with their work and spend the rest of the day in comfort. When vomiting is pernicious it may continue thruout the day and malnutrition and acidosis are the usual aftermaths unless treatment is started immediately.

The medical profession never has been able to come to any definite conclusions on the cause. Some believe that the behavior of the stomach is caused by a reflex stimulation to pregnancy. Others are of the opinion that toxemia is responsible. Many favor the neurotic theory. It is likely that all three factors are capable of producing morning nausea. In some, toxemia is playing the leading role, whereas in others the reflex or neurotic aspect predominates. Many sufferers are nervous, high-strung, and easily upset; in these instances, the nervous system may be the culprit. Now and then something in the home life is irritating; arguments with husband or in-laws or financial difficulties. The pregnancy merely is aggravating existing conditions. As a matter of fact, even the husband can suffer from "morning sickness."

In days gone by, the neurotic origin received priority and treatment was directed along these lines. The husband was told not to worry; that his wife would get along fine provided he did not shower her with pity. Serious cases were hospitalized and isolated in a private room, with no visitors permitted, not even the husband. The woman literally was starved until vomiting subsided. Nowadays we recommend a dry breakfast consisting of a biscuit, toast, or cereal, and liquids later in the day. Smaller but more frequent meals avoid over-loading the stomach but provide ample food. In addition, greasy and fatty dishes are forbidden because they are more difficult to digest and may cause nausea. The expectant mother with marked vomiting still is hospitalized but is given nourishment by vein to avert dehydration, weight loss and weakness. In addition, sedatives are administered for their quieting and calming effects.

TOMORROW: The oyster taboo explained.

VARICOCELE

D. C. writes: Does varicocele call for operation?

REPLY

Not as a rule, because a support usually relieves symptoms. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on varicocele.

SENSITIVE FINGERS

V. T. writes: The ends of my fingers are so tender and sensitive that it is agonizing to touch anything. How can I get rid of this soreness?

REPLY

A problem of this nature requires examination to solve. Let me suggest, therefore, that you visit your family physician.

MIGRAINE

L. R. writes: Is migraine caused by a mental condition?

REPLY

No, but the personality plays a part. The person who is a perfectionist or overly sensitive is more likely to be afflicted. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on migraine.

NICOTINE AND THE HEART

L. N. writes: Where does the nicotine go when a person smokes?

REPLY

It is absorbed by the membranes of the mouth, throat, and lungs, and ultimately collects in the heart, liver, spleen, and kidneys, according to research workers. A recent experiment indicated that the heart does not have an unlimited capacity to absorb this substance. Animal experimentation showed that the organ stops absorbing nicotine after a few minutes and it may be that the human ticker is affected in a similar way. In other words, the heart may be able to protect itself from too great an intake.

THE TENDERFOOT

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Underworld Cheats U. S. Of Potential Tax Windfall; Treasury Sidesteps Investigation Of Gangster Returns; Fischetti Follows Pattern Of Al Capone

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Jumpin' Joe McCarthy, the "MC" from Wisconsin, has been alternately calling me a liar and accusing me of being too accurate in publishing army cables estimating Chinese strength in North Korea at about one-quarter of the 1,000,000-man army announced by MacArthur. However, here is another document which Jumpin' Joe also won't want me to publish.

It is the income-tax story of Gangster Charlie Fischetti, cousin of Ralph Capone of Mercer, Wisconsin, at one time a McCarthy political booster.

Fischetti, who is now ducking Senate crime investigators, took over much of the underworld empire of his cousin Al Capone, after the latter was jailed for income-tax evasion. Fischetti's domain extends all the way from the ritzy North Shore of Chicago where he maintains a penthouse at 3100 North Sheridan Road, to Florida, where he has a winter place on Allison Island off Miami Beach.

In addition to Chicago and Miami, Fischetti has gambling operations in Kansas City, St. Louis, East St. Louis, Indiana, Arizona, and in Jumpin' Joe's own bailiwick of Southern Wisconsin.

Yet Charlie Fischetti only reported an income of $23,342.50 for 1949. Every cent he made, he swore, was by "self-speculation," probably a polite name for gambling.

Other gangsters, perhaps more honest (if there is any degree of honesty among gangsters) reported much more income than this. Tony Accardo, one of the top mob in Chicago, reported a total income of $110,000. However, Charles and Ann Fischetti, filing a joint tax return last year, paid a tax of only $4,988.48—mere peanuts.

T-Men Ignore Mob

The public has the idea that modern racketeers are extremely careful in making out their income-tax returns, in order to avoid what happened to Al Capone. That, however, is by no means the case. In the first place, the gangsters operate on a strictly cash basis. Second, internal revenue makes no great effort to check on gambling profits.

Though Treasury field agents are honest and diligent, at least one potent official inside the Treasury has shied away from going after the taxes of modern-day racketeers; and this columnist has too many headaches at the moment to risk a libel suit by naming him.

However, it remains a fact that while the average taxpayer sits up nights trying not to forget any part of his income, the big gangsters fill out blanket returns which obviously are underestimates. They give no source for their revenue other than "self-speculation," "wagering," or just plain "income," and they estimate their profit at just about whatever they want to make it.

I have spent a lot of time having an ex-internal revenue agent familiar with Chicago's gangland dig into Fischetti's returns. Going back over the years, these returns are all vague. In 1947, he chalked up a meagre income of $16,500, again attributing it to "self-speculation." Yet it seems inconceivable that a racketeer with so many irons in the fire in so many different parts of the U.S.A. should make so little money.

In 1946, Fischetti was equally vague, claiming even less income—only $13,500. In 1945, it was still less—$10,700—while in 1944 it was $9,500.

229 Club

In 1943, however, Fischetti was more specific. He listed $966.25 from the 229 Club and another $9,000 which he attributed to "sundry wagering." The 229 Club, located at 229 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago, was a favorite hangout for hoodlums and was where Big Gus Winkler of the St. Louis Rats was killed. Fischetti showed that he believed in enforcing the law on at least one occasion in 1942 when he and his brother Joe, with Paul De Lucia Rica, got caught in a falling elevator in the building at 229 Wabash. The gangsters sued the owner of the building because of the elevator accident, and collected.

An income of only $9,891.25, it should be noted, is suspiciously small for a gangster who lived as lavishly as Charlie Fischetti in the war boom year of 1943.

Fischetti's 1942 income, however, was even more incredible. He listed a $778.02 profit from the 229 Club, another $5,240 from "sundry wagering," and took deductions of $340.86.

In 1940, Fischetti reported a profit of $7,645 on the 229 Club, but reported a loss of $1,134.68 on the Blackhawk Club, another hangout for gamblers above the Blackhawk Restaurant in Chicago.

Lush Gambling Profits

Internal revenue agents so far have done little about checking on the profits of gambling clubs. Though they have access to the books, the U. S. Treasury has not taken the trouble to post men in gambling casinos at the time the money is counted—which is after business closes every night.

Managers of the big gambling establishments are careful to have watchers in rooms above the roulette wheels to look down through holes in the ceilings and make sure no money is stolen by the casinos' own employes. But the Treasury, which could increase its take by millions, has not yet bothered to count the thousands raked in at the close of a casino's business.

This is one of the quickest sources of revenue available to Uncle Sam, at a time when the rest of the American people are going to dig deeper into their tax pockets than ever before.

Fischetti's Record

Fischetti's police record shows he was arrested April 30, 1926, with Ralph Capone, for questioning about the killing of three men—McSwiggan, Doherty and Duffy—in Cicero, Ill. They were discharged on a habeas corpus and turned over to federal authorities in connection with a machine gun found in Ralph Capone's apartment.

On Dec. 26, 1928, Fischetti was arrested again for carrying a concealed weapon, and was held until Jan. 22, 1929. In Nov. 1, 1932, he was arrested with Murray Humphreys and other mobsters for questioning about labor rackets. On Jan. 8, 1933, Fischetti finally received a one-year sentence and $300 fine for carrying a concealed weapon. On July 22, 1943, he was arrested for disorderly conduct; on Oct. 9, 1944, he was arrested in a gambling investigation by Cook County highway police; and on Feb. 14, 1945, he was arrested again for disorderly conduct.

At present, Fischetti is reported in Acapulco, Mexico, sunning himself on the beach until the Kefauver Crime Committee loses interest in him.

It's quite a life if you can get away with it.

Interpretations Of Korean News Marked By Emotion

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—There is altogether too much panic and emotion in some of the interpretations being placed on the Korean news. Despite the fact, for instance, that members of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff have been making periodic visits to the Far East during the last six months, the latest trip of General Collins, chief of staff of the Army, and General Vandenberg, head of the U. S. Air Force, has been widely misconstrued.

Some observers have intimated that the purpose was to curtail the authority of General MacArthur's headquarters, and others have hinted that a withdrawal from Korea is really contemplated.

The presence of two high-level intelligence officers from the United States merely coincided with the visit of General Collins and General Vandenberg and had nothing to do with the mission of the two members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Surveying Problems

The truth is that planning in the Korean operation is never on a day-to-day but on a month-to-month or even on a two-or three-month basis. The reason that Generals Collins and Vandenberg went to the Far East, while the third member, Admiral Sherman, and the chairman, General Bradley, stayed behind, is that the Joint Chiefs must continue as a functioning body in Washington. In place of Admiral Sherman, there are high naval officers in the Far East to represent the Navy with reference to any naval problems connected with the fighting.

The purpose of Generals Collins and Vandenberg in flying to the Far East—they will be back in a few days—is to make a survey of the progress made to date and to take a look ahead as to manpower requirements and other problems.

The Defense Department has just announced that troop replacements are on the way and that some of them will arrive in Korea in February and some in March. The very mention of next month as the time when replacements are due is a quiet hint to the skeptics that the United States plans to keep on fighting to hold Korea.

There was some speculation here that the possibility of Chinese acceptance of the UN "cease fire" plan might have occasioned the trip to the Far East by Generals Collins and Vandenberg, but this is not so. The Joint Chiefs of Staff was familiarized three weeks ago with the technical detail of the various "cease fire" plans then being offered before the UN. The decision of the American government, however, to support the "cease fire" resolution before the UN was not made with the consent of or the objection of the Joint Chiefs, as they were not consulted on what was regarded by the Department of State as purely a diplomatic decision.

When Generals Collins and Vandenberg return to Washington, they will have completed further plans for the carrying on of the military operations in Korea and they will bring back their impressions as to how the UN forces are progressing.

Immediate Decision Unlikely

The Korean problem is one that could change only after weeks and weeks of fighting but it is not likely to change overnight. If American losses should become prohibitive, withdrawal would be considered. If American losses are such that from a military viewpoint there would be an advantage in sending heavy reinforcements and pressing the attack northward, this will be done. So everything depends on the tide of battle in Korea and a decision is not likely to be made for several weeks.

Meanwhile a "cease fire" or a failure of the UN to declare Communist China an aggressor could bring about a decisive change. The latter could mean that the U. S. Air Force and Navy will be released to bomb targets and ports in Communist China. For it is inconceivable that the United States would fail to press the battle against the Communist Chinese on its own if the UN gets bogged down on the matter of declaring the Communist regime an aggressor or declines to follow this up with steps to punish such aggression.

It is natural that more and more of the command operation should be transferred to General Ridgway in Korea and less and less responsibility should be carried by General MacArthur. Since fairly large-scale operations are in progress and more may come later, it is important that General Ridgway have the authority of a theatre commander who also reports directly to the Joint Chiefs of Staff. This is a normal military procedure and doubtless was recommended by General MacArthur himself, who, as a former chief of staff and wartime commander, understands fully the difference between trying to run a war in Korea and trying to run it simultaneously from an office building in Tokyo 200 or 300 miles away.

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Foreign Aid

ALTOGETHER, between July 1, 1945 and June 30, 1950, the American taxpayer expended, after taking prepayments into account, close to $26,000,000,000 in foreign aid. This amounts to about $172 for each man, woman and child in the United States.

Of the $26,000,000,000, Great Britain received $5,900,000,000; France $3,700,000,000; Germany, $2,900,000,000; Italy, $1,900,000,000.

During this five-year period, China received $1,700,000,000. Regarding this figure, it would be interesting to see a breakdown as to precisely what China received. For instance, Greece and Turkey were charged nominal prices for exactly the same kind of military supplies for which we charged China replacement prices. At any rate, that is what the figures seem to look like. It would be beneficial all around if some congressional committee went into this question in detail to discover precisely how this figure was reached.

Korea is an attractive case in point. During this five-year period, Korea received $300,000,000, which is the amount that all the American republics put together received from us.

The entire subject of foreign aid needs to be studied closely to see how the money was spent, what our bookkeeping procedure is. For instance, if we charge China one price for an airplane and Great Britain another price, the aid is of different value. Most of the aid was given in the form of commodities rather than money. Most of it was really commercial credits.

Of the $26,000,000,000 spent in this way, the ERP countries received $19,000,000,000. It would again be interesting to have that figure analyzed by a body that could subpoena the books of ECA. For whereas no one questions the integrity of Paul Hoffman or his associates in ECA, the policies pursued would make a tremendous difference.

Let me put it this way: these figures do not include any aid to Soviet Russia, and the assumption must be that none was given by the United States. However, Great Britain has been doing a roaring business with Soviet Russia and the satellite countries.

To what extent have American credits to Great Britain made it possible for the British to engage in this trade? Is it not possible that by this indirect means the British actually released American credits to our enemy, Soviet Russia?

We know from Korean references that the Russians and Chinese Communists supplied the North Koreans with munitions of American origin. If we have been supplying neither the Russians nor the Soviet Chinese, nor giving them credits to buy here, where did they get the stuff? It could not all have been done by American merchants and American steamship lines, some of which ran the Nationalist blockade. An analysis of Hongkong business with Soviet China and with other anti-American groups would not surprise the old-China hand, but it should startle the admirers of British justice in this country.

We need to be sure that American aid is not being used to kill Americans in Korea or anywhere else. The British in Hongkong have been selling American goods to Chinese Communists. They did a flourishing business in that town and are now crying their eyes out that they are no longer permitted to do it. The wail of Hongkong breaks by heart!

The British managed to build a dollar reserve of $3,00,000,000 out of the trade which they developed with our aid. It is, therefore, startling to read the following in the

"Great Debate" Will Bring Re-Examination Of Policy

By MARK SULLIVAN

AMERICA is in a great debate—the term has passed into headlines, it is habitually used as if it were the name of a historic event or era. In fact this debate is comparable to the Lincoln-Douglas one on the issue of "popular sovereignty" and states rights three years before the Civil War. While the subjects of the two debates differ, this one like the Lincoln-Douglas one, covers preservation of the nation; and the interest and earnestness of the people in this debate is comparable to what went on in the Lincoln-Douglas one.

The debate was joined recently. It had been opened by ex-President Hoover on Dec. 20, in a nation-wide radio-television address which, whether or not contemplated as the beginning of a debate, was made so by the public reception of it. Newspapers grasped its importance instantly, within 24 hours it was under intent discussion by them; excerpts from 51 important newspapers in cities from Massachusetts to California, collected by the Associated Press, were printed as a symposium the following Sunday in the "New York Times." Letters and telegrams in thousands deluged Mr. Hoover's desk. Very seldom has a single speech of any public man evoked such spontaneous and widespread reaction.

Truman's Role Complex

Mr. Hoover's speech evoked sporadic speeches in response from a few public figures, none of them as a rule either wholly opposing or wholly approving. But the really important response would come in President Truman's annual State of the Union message to Congress, Jan. 4. Mr. Hoover had entitled his address "Our National Policies in This Crisis," and it was mainly a factual survey and critical consideration of our foreign policy, with recommendation of partial change. Mr. Truman had to defend his policy and he did. The debate was joined.

In the debate, President Truman can have no such detached objectiveness as Mr. Hoover. Indeed Mr. Truman's role is peculiarly intimate and peculiarly complex; it is three roles combined. He must defend the foreign policy as a foreign policy, and at the same time must defend the administration of the policy in the past by himself and the State Department. Finally, since Mr. Truman is to be in office for two years to come, part of his role must be that of pleader. Tacitly in all events and often expressly, he is in the position of asking Congress and the country for support in courses he must decide upon now; in the swift swirl of changing conditions, necessity for decision presses upon him and the country with utmost urgency.

Some of the decisions President Truman must make are military, one of them has to do with the sending of troops to Europe. About this type of decision, difference of opinion has arisen; a school of thought strongly voiced by Sen. Taft holds that the President, before sending troops abroad, should get approval from Congress, that he ought to have got approval before sending troops to Korea last June. "The President" said Sen. Taft "simply usurped authority in violation of the laws and the Constitution."

Deals With Survival

Argument on this point has annexed itself to the great debate. But the authority of the President to send troops abroad and the question about the relation of this to the constitutional authority of Congress about declaring war, has been an intermittent issue for many decades. This, however, is merely a constitutional question. If "merely constitutional" seems a startling phrase, the implication of minor importance arises from the superme importance of what is involved in the great debate. The great debate deals with the survival of the nation, no less.

The depth of the people's concern is in proportion to the supreme importance of what is involved. They have passed beyond the stage at which many persons react emotionally and ephemerally to single events. When there was victory in Korea they reacted in a spirit of elation. With disaster, while there was initial emotion then too, it was followed by searching thought. The people came to see, vaguely as yet but earnestly, that events are parts of long courses running back into the past. In this condition of the public mind the Administration cannot expect that there will not be thorough re-examination of our foreign policy during the past five years. Such re-examination will be an important factor in the great debate. For while the great debate is about present foreign policy and what policy in the future should be, this problem cannot be grasped without understanding what foreign policy in the past has been. To advocate present foreign policy, the Administration must explain past foreign policy, including frank admission of mistakes.

Red China's Appeal

Copying from the book of Hitler, Red China has established a commission to engage in propaganda among Chinese living outside China. These total approximately 10,000,000, most of them in southeastern Asia but a sizable number in America and elsewhere.

This commission calls upon these scattered Chinese to establish strong united fronts against "imperialist" aggression. It promises them relief from "inhuman arrests and mass exile" when the great day comes and China, along with Russia, stands astride Asia and the world.

Letters from China are received by American Chinese reading like this: "When the liberation of America comes, the Chinese in America will also be liberated. Then, I believe. I will be able to return to a free, liberated America and be with you again."

Hitler shed tears of anguish over the "herrenvolk" whom he pictured as oppressed in other lands. Since they belonged to a race of "supermen," they would be rescued and placed in control over the common herd.

Red China's introduction of racism into world turmoil is as frankly aggressive as Hitler's scheme, and it will meet with the same lack of success. Currently a Chinese daily newspaper in New York follows the Pravda line and daily attacks the United States.

Few Chinese in the U. S. would willingly return to China today. But Dictator Mao may succeed in stirring up more trouble by convincing a few Chinese they are oppressed. If so, they will pay for their gullibility as the Germans have suffered for Hitler's fanaticism.

Better Tanks On Order

The United States will soon be producing tanks "far superior to anything known in their class anywhere," according to Army Undersecretary Alexander. They will contain several radical improvements, which he declines to describe.

Probably he was talking about the light tanks expected to start coming off the assembly line in the spring. America's tank program, he said, aims to make light U. S. tanks able to knock out enemy medium tanks, and medium U. S. tanks able to knock out enemy heavy tanks. "Our heavies go on from there," he added.

Those are encouraging words, but many Americans wish the armament of U. S. forces in Korea had included some of these new tanks. American tanks used in Korea did not compare favorably with the tanks the Russians have today.

The new tanks the U. S. will start producing a few months from now may or may not prove radically better than the new tanks the Russians will have later on. In any case, Russia is so far ahead of the U. S. in numbers, if not in quality, of tanks, that it may require years to overtake the Reds' lead.

But it is good to hear Mr. Alexander's news, for all that. It is better to have tanks on order than not to have them, period.

Man Of Three Lives

A man of three lives is the chosen subject of Harold Epstein of Falls Church, Virginia. He announces that he is working on the life of Ray Stannard Baker, and is on a search for helpful information.

Baker came into fame as a member of that extraordinary group which in the first decade of the century made McClure's magazine the foremost American periodical. Its keen scent for important timely topics and the unfailing pains which its authors took to be accurate and to be complete have rarely been equaled. Among the grouy were Ida Tarbell, relentless historian of the Standard Oil Company, and Lincoln Steffens, exposer of civic corruption and philosopher who saw deep into men's hearts. Baker, as a portrayer of industrial conditions and a biographer, added to the luster of the magazine.

An unappreciated side was his love of quiet country life, which came out in his "Adventures in Contentment" and its successors, published under the pen name of David Grayson. They are worth reading today.

Finally Baker was the disciple and official biographer of Woodrow Wilson. As such, he will be consulted by everyone who wants to know about the stirring days of Wilson's presidency and America's part in World War I.

Epstein is fortunate in his subject.

Burtonwood Again

Air Force veterans of World War II who remember Burtonwood, England, as a seat of maintenance and supply would once more feel at home there, for it is now fulfilling the same function for American planes used in Europe.

This base began to function anew with the beginning of the Berlin airlift. With the addition of the wives and children of the Air Force personnel, it now forms a compact, self-sufficient community with schools, Scout troops, day nurseries, chapels, mess halls and theaters for each of its six divisions. Relations with the British people in the nearby city of Warrington have settled down into an attitude of friendly give and take.

Such a nucleus of Americans, including women and children, affords an opportunity for the British to become acquainted at first hand with the everyday living habits of Americans. It will doubtless provide an effective antidote to the false ideas said to have been generated by some of our tourists and some of the movie exported from Hollywood.

Wool Shortage

Belgium, Italy, France and other European countries are outbidding the United States for Australian wool, according to H. J. Devereaux, South Dakota wool man, who has returned from a two months' trip down under.

Australians cannot understand, Mr. Devereaux says, why the United States has asked that it be favored in exports of wool at the same time that it is furnishing money for other countries to outbid it for the fleece. His observations leave no doubt that wool prices, now at unprecedented high levels, will go still higher.

Australia today has 6,000,000 more sheep than the United States and Australian sheepmen are highly prosperous. The Australian wool clip, worth $16,000,000 in 1932, jumped in value to $168,000,000 in 1949 and an amazing $420,000,000 last year.

NEWS——EDITORIAL——WEDNESDAY .. ..

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

"Morning Sickness"

MORE THAN ONE-HALF the women who become pregnant suffer from nausea and vomiting in the first few months. In fact, these symptoms occur so often their presence lends weight to the diagnosis of pregnancy. The condition is popularly called "morning sickness" but this is hardly apropos as it may appear also in the afternoon or evening.

The sensation of nausea resembles seasickness. It is aggravated by motion and as a result many women are a bit hesitant about riding in cars, buses, and elevators. In addition, a common accompaniment is increased salivation, described as "cotton spitting." When the feeling comes on, milady swallows and gulps as fast as she can in an effort to avoid vomiting.

The complication generally develops between the fourth and fifth week of pregnancy but may start as early as the second. It lasts until the third month and then disappears spontaneously except in the more severe cases. Some encounter nausea on arising; others feel good until after breakfast. As soon as vomiting is over with they are able to proceed with their work and spend the rest of the day in comfort. When vomiting is pernicious it may continue thruout the day and malnutrition and acidosis are the usual aftermaths unless treatment is started immediately.

The medical profession never has been able to come to any definite conclusions on the cause. Some believe that the behavior of the stomach is caused by a reflex stimulation to pregnancy. Others are of the opinion that toxemia is responsible. Many favor the neurotic theory. It is likely that all three factors are capable of producing morning nausea. In some, toxemia is playing the leading role, whereas in others the reflex or neurotic aspect predominates. Many sufferers are nervous, high-strung, and easily upset; in these instances, the nervous system may be the culprit. Now and then something in the home life is irritating; arguments with husband or in-laws or financial difficulties. The pregnancy merely is aggravating existing conditions. As a matter of fact, even the husband can suffer from "morning sickness."

In days gone by, the neurotic origin received priority and treatment was directed along these lines. The husband was told not to worry; that his wife would get along fine provided he did not shower her with pity. Serious cases were hospitalized and isolated in a private room, with no visitors permitted, not even the husband. The woman literally was starved until vomiting subsided. Nowadays we recommend a dry breakfast consisting of a biscuit, toast, or cereal, and liquids later in the day. Smaller but more frequent meals avoid over-loading the stomach but provide ample food. In addition, greasy and fatty dishes are forbidden because they are more difficult to digest and may cause nausea. The expectant mother with marked vomiting still is hospitalized but is given nourishment by vein to avert dehydration, weight loss and weakness. In addition, sedatives are administered for their quieting and calming effects.

VARICOCELE

D. C. writes: Does varicocele call for operation?

REPLY

Not as a rule, because a support usually relieves symptoms. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on varicocele.

SENSITIVE FINGERS

V. T. writes: The ends of my fingers are so tender and sensitive that it is agonizing to touch anything. How can I get rid of this soreness?

REPLY

A problem of this nature requires examination to solve. Let me suggest, therefore, that you visit your family physician.

MIGRAINE

L. R. writes: Is migraine caused by a mental condition?

REPLY

No, but the personality plays a part. The person who is a perfectionist or overly sensitive is more likely to be afflicted. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on migraine.

NICOTINE AND THE HEART

L. N. writes: Where does the nicotine go when a person smokes?

REPLY

It is absorbed by the membranes of the mouth, throat, and lungs, and ultimately collects in the heart, liver, spleen, and kidneys, according to research workers. A recent experiment indicated that the heart does not have an unlimited capacity to absorb this substance. Animal experimentation showed that the organ stops absorbing nicotine after a few minutes and it may be that the human ticker is affected in a similar way. In other words, the heart may be able to protect itself from too great an intake.

THE TENDERFOOT

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Underworld Cheats U. S. Of Potential Tax Windfall; Treasury Sidesteps Investigation Of Gangster Returns; Fischetti Follows Pattern Of Al Capone

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Jumpin' Joe McCarthy, the "MC" from Wisconsin, has been alternately calling me a liar and accusing me of being too accurate in publishing army cables estimating Chinese strength in North Korea at about one-quarter of the 1,000,000-man army announced by MacArthur. However, here is another document which Jumpin' Joe also won't want me to publish.

It is the income-tax story of Gangster Charlie Fischetti, cousin of Ralph Capone of Mercer, Wisconsin, at one time a McCarthy political booster.

Fischetti, who is now ducking Senate crime investigators, took over much of the underworld empire of his cousin Al Capone, after the latter was jailed for income-tax evasion. Fischetti's domain extends all the way from the ritzy North Shore of Chicago where he maintains a penthouse at 3100 North Sheridan Road, to Florida, where he has a winter place on Allison Island off Miami Beach.

In addition to Chicago and Miami, Fischetti has gambling operations in Kansas City, St. Louis, East St. Louis, Indiana, Arizona, and in Jumpin' Joe's own bailiwick of Southern Wisconsin.

Yet Charlie Fischetti only reported an income of $23,342.50 for 1949. Every cent he made, he swore, was by "self-speculation," probably a polite name for gambling.

Other gangsters, perhaps more honest (if there is any degree of honesty among gangsters) reported much more income than this. Tony Accardo, one of the top mob in Chicago, reported a total income of $110,000. However, Charles and Ann Fischetti, filing a joint tax return last year, paid a tax of only $4,988.48—mere peanuts.

T-Men Ignore Mob

The public has the idea that modern racketeers are extremely careful in making out their income-tax returns, in order to avoid what happened to Al Capone. That, however, is by no means the case. In the first place, the gangsters operate on a strictly cash basis. Second, internal revenue makes no great effort to check on gambling profits.

Though Treasury field agents are honest and diligent, at least one potent official inside the Treasury has shied away from going after the taxes of modern-day racketeers; and this columnist has too many headaches at the moment to risk a libel suit by naming him.

However, it remains a fact that while the average taxpayer sits up nights trying not to forget any part of his income, the big gangsters fill out blanket returns which obviously are underestimates. They give no source for their revenue other than "self-speculation," "wagering," or just plain "income," and they estimate their profit at just about whatever they want to make it.

I have spent a lot of time having an ex-internal revenue agent familiar with Chicago's gangland dig into Fischetti's returns. Going back over the years, these returns are all vague. In 1947, he chalked up a meagre income of $16,500, again attributing it to "self-speculation." Yet it seems inconceivable that a racketeer with so many irons in the fire in so many different parts of the U.S.A. should make so little money.

In 1946, Fischetti was equally vague, claiming even less income—only $13,500. In 1945, it was still less—$10,700—while in 1944 it was $9,500.

229 Club

In 1943, however, Fischetti was more specific. He listed $966.25 from the 229 Club and another $9,000 which he attributed to "sundry wagering." The 229 Club, located at 229 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago, was a favorite hangout for hoodlums and was where Big Gus Winkler of the St. Louis Rats was killed. Fischetti showed that he believed in enforcing the law on at least one occasion in 1942 when he and his brother Joe, with Paul De Lucia Rica, got caught in a falling elevator in the building at 229 Wabash. The gangsters sued the owner of the building because of the elevator accident, and collected.

An income of only $9,891.25, it should be noted, is suspiciously small for a gangster who lived as lavishly as Charlie Fischetti in the war boom year of 1943.

Fischetti's 1942 income, however, was even more incredible. He listed a $778.02 profit from the 229 Club, another $5,240 from "sundry wagering," and took deductions of $340.86.

In 1940, Fischetti reported a profit of $7,645 on the 229 Club, but reported a loss of $1,134.68 on the Blackhawk Club, another hangout for gamblers above the Blackhawk Restaurant in Chicago.

Lush Gambling Profits

Internal revenue agents so far have done little about checking on the profits of gambling clubs. Though they have access to the books, the U. S. Treasury has not taken the trouble to post men in gambling casinos at the time the money is counted—which is after business closes every night.

Managers of the big gambling establishments are careful to have watchers in rooms above the roulette wheels to look down through holes in the ceilings and make sure no money is stolen by the casinos' own employes. But the Treasury, which could increase its take by millions, has not yet bothered to count the thousands raked in at the close of a casino's business.

This is one of the quickest sources of revenue available to Uncle Sam, at a time when the rest of the American people are going to dig deeper into their tax pockets than ever before.

Fischetti's Record

Fischetti's police record shows he was arrested April 30, 1926, with Ralph Capone for questioning about the killing of three men—McSwiggan, Doherty and Duffy—in Cicero, Ill. They were discharged on a habeas corpus and turned over to federal authorities in connection with a machine gun found in Ralph Capone's apartment.

On Dec. 26, 1928, Fischetti was arrested again for carrying a concealed weapon, and was held until Jan. 22, 1929. In Nov. 1, 1932, he was arrested with Murray Humphreys and other mobsters for questioning about labor rackets. On Jan. 8, 1933, Fischetti finally received a one-year sentence and $300 fine for carrying a concealed weapon. On July 22, 1943, he was arrested for disorderly conduct; on Oct. 9, 1944, he was arrested in a gambling investigation by Cook County highway police; and on Feb. 14, 1945, he was arrested again for disorderly conduct.

At present, Fischetti is reported in Acapulco, Mexico, sunning himself on the beach until the Kefauver Crime Committee loses interest in him.

It's quite a life if you can get away with it.

By MARK SULLIVAN

AMERICA is in a great debate—the term has passed into headlines, it is habitually used as if it were the name of a historic event or era. In fact this debate is comparable to the Lincoln-Douglas one on the issue of "popular sovereignty" and states rights three years before the Civil War. While the subjects of the two debates differ, this one like the Lincoln-Douglas one, covers preservation of the nation; and the interest and earnestness of the people in this debate is comparable to what went on in the Lincoln-Douglas one.

The debate was joined recently. It had been opened by ex-President Hoover on Dec. 20, in a nation-wide radio-television address which, whether or not contemplated as the beginning of a debate, was made so by the public reception of it. Newspapers grasped its importance instantly, within 24 hours it was under intent discussion by them; excerpts from 51 important newspapers in cities from Massachusetts to California, collected by the Associated Press, were printed as a symposium the following Sunday in the "New York Times." Letters and telegrams in thousands deluged Mr. Hoover's desk. Very seldom has a single speech of any public man evoked such spontaneous and widespread reaction.

Truman's Role Complex

Mr. Hoover's speech evoked sporadic speeches in response from a few public figures, none of them as a rule either wholly opposing or wholly approving. But the really important response would come in President Truman's annual State of the Union message to Congress, Jan. 4. Mr. Hoover had entitled his address "Our National Policies in This Crisis," and it was mainly a factual survey and critical consideration of our foreign policy, with recommendation of partial change. Mr. Truman had to defend his policy and he did. The debate was joined.

In the debate, President Truman can have no such detached objectiveness as Mr. Hoover. Indeed Mr. Truman's role is peculiarly intimate and peculiarly complex; it is three roles combined. He must defend the foreign policy as a foreign policy, and at the same time must defend the administration of the policy in the past by himself and the State Department. Finally, since Mr. Truman is to be in office for two years to come, part of his role must be that of pleader. Tacitly in all events and often expressly, he is in the position of asking Congress and the country for support in courses he must decide upon now; in the swift swirl of changing conditions, necessity for decision presses upon him and the country with utmost urgency.

Some of the decisions President Truman must make are military, one of them has to do with the sending of troops to Europe. About this type of decision, difference of opinion has arisen; a school of thought strongly voiced by Sen. Taft holds that the President, before sending troops abroad, should get approval from Congress, that he ought to have got approval before sending troops to Korea last June. "The President" said Sen. Taft "simply usurped authority in violation of the laws and the Constitution."

Deals With Survival

Argument on this point has annexed itself to the great debate. But the authority of the President to send troops abroad and the question about the relation of this to the constitutional authority of Congress about declaring war, has been an intermittent issue for many decades. This, however, is merely a constitutional question. If "merely constitutional" seems a startling phrase, the implication of minor importance arises from the superme importance of what is involved in the great debate. The great debate deals with the survival of the nation, no less.

The depth of the people's concern is in proportion to the supreme importance of what is involved. They have passed beyond the stage at which many persons react emotionally and ephemerally to single events. When there was victory in Korea they reacted in a spirit of elation. With disaster, while there was initial emotion then too, it was followed by searching thought. The people came to see, vaguely as yet but earnestly, that events are parts of long courses running back into the past. In this condition of the public mind the Administration cannot expect that there will not be thorough re-examination of our foreign policy during the past five years. Such re-examination will be an important factor in the great debate. For while the great debate is about present foreign policy and what policy in the future should be, this problem cannot be grasped without understanding what foreign policy in the past has been. To advocate present foreign policy, the Administration must explain past foreign policy, including frank admission of mistakes.

Interpretations Of Korean News Marked By Emotion

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—There is altogether too much panic and emotion in some of the interpretations being placed on the Korean news. Despite the fact, for instance, that members of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff have been making periodic visits to the Far East during the last six months, the latest trip of General Collins, chief of staff of the Army, and General Vandenberg, head of the U. S. Air Force, has been widely misconstrued.

Some observers have intimated that the purpose was to curtail the authority of General MacArthur's headquarters, and others have hinted that a withdrawal from Korea is really contemplated.

The presence of two high-level intelligence officers from the United States merely coincided with the visit of General Collins and General Vandenberg and had nothing to do with the mission of the two members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Surveying Problems

The truth is that planning in the Korean operation is never on a day-to-day but on a month-to-month or even on a two-or three-month basis. The reason that Generals Collins and Vandenberg went to the Far East, while the third member, Admiral Sherman, and the chairman, General Bradley, stayed behind, is that the Joint Chiefs must continue as a functioning body in Washington. In place of Admiral Sherman, there are high naval officers in the Far East to represent the Navy with reference to any naval problems connected with the fighting.

The purpose of Generals Collins and Vandenberg in flying to the Far East—they will be back in a few days—is to make a survey of the progress made to date and to take a look ahead as to manpower requirements and other problems.

The Defense Department has just announced that troop replacements are on the way and that some of them will arrive in Korea in February and some in March. The very mention of next month as the time when replacements are due is a quiet hint to the skeptics that the United States plans to keep on fighting to hold Korea.

There was some speculation here that the possibility of Chinese acceptance of the UN "cease fire" plan might have occasioned the trip to the Far East by Generals Collins and Vandenberg, but this is not so. The Joint Chiefs of Staff was familiarized three weeks ago with the technical detail of the various "cease fire" plans then being offered before the UN. The decision of the American government, however, to support the "cease fire" resolution before the UN was not made with the consent of or the objection of the Joint Chiefs, as they were not consulted on what was regarded by the Department of State as purely a diplomatic decision.

When Generals Collins and Vandenberg return to Washington, they will have completed further plans for the carrying on of the military operations in Korea and they will bring back their impressions as to how the UN forces are progressing.

Immediate Decision Unlikely

The Korean problem is one that could change only after weeks and weeks of fighting but it is not likely to change overnight. If American losses should become prohibitive, withdrawal would be considered. If American losses are such that from a military viewpoint there would be an advantage in sending heavy reinforcements and pressing the attack northward, this will be done. So everything depends on the tide of battle in Korea and a decision is not likely to be made for several weeks.

Meanwhile a "cease fire" or a failure of the UN to declare Communist China an aggressor could bring about a decisive change. The latter could mean that the U. S. Air Force and Navy will be released to bomb targets and ports in Communist China. For it is inconceivable that the United States would fail to press the battle against the Communist Chinese on its own if the UN gets bogged down on the matter of declaring the Communist regime an aggressor or declines to follow this up with steps to punish such aggression.

It is natural that more and more of the command operation should be transferred to General Ridgway in Korea and less and less responsibility should be carried by General MacArthur. Since fairly large-scale operations are in progress and more may come later, it is important that General Ridgway have the authority of a theatre commander who also reports directly to the Joint Chiefs of Staff. This is a normal military procedure and doubtless was recommended by General MacArthur himself, who, as a former chief of staff and wartime commander, understands fully the difference between trying to run a war in Korea and trying to run it simultaneously from an office building in Tokyo 200 or 300 miles away.

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Foreign Aid

ALTOGETHER, between July 1, 1945 and June 30, 1950, the American taxpayer expended, after taking prepayments into account, close to $26,000,000,000 in foreign aid. This amounts to about $172 for each man, woman and child in the United States.

Of the $26,000,000,000, Great Britain received $5,900,000,000; France $3,700,000,000; Germany, $2,900,000,000; Italy, $1,900,000,000.

During this five-year period, China received $1,700,000,000. Regarding this figure, it would be interesting to see a breakdown as to precisely what China received. For instance, Greece and Turkey were charged nominal prices for exactly the same kind of military supplies for which we charged China replacement prices. At any rate, that is what the figures seem to look like. It would be beneficial all around if some congressional committee went into this question in detail to discover precisely how this figure was reached.

Korea is an attractive case in point. During this five-year period, Korea received $300,000,000, which is the amount that all the American republics put together received from us.

The entire subject of foreign aid needs to be studied closely to see how the money was spent, what our bookkeeping procedure is. For instance, if we charge China one price for an airplane and Great Britain another price, the aid is of different value. Most of the aid was given in the form of commodities rather than money. Most of it was really commercial credits.

Of the $26,000,000,000 spent in this way, the ERP countries received $19,000,000,000. It would again be interesting to have that figure analyzed by a body that could subpoena the books of ECA. For whereas no one questions the integrity of Paul Hoffman or his associates in ECA, the policies pursued would make a tremendous difference.

Let me put it this way: these figures do not include any aid to Soviet Russia, and the assumption must be that none was given by the United States. However, Great Britain has been doing a roaring business with Soviet Russia and the satellite countries.

To what extent have American credits to Great Britain made it possible for the British to engage in this trade? Is it not possible that by this indirect means the British actually released American credits to our enemy, Soviet Russia?

We know from Korean references that the Russians and Chinese Communists supplied the North Koreans with munitions of American origin. If we have been supplying neither the Russians nor the Soviet Chinese, nor giving them credits to buy here, where did they get the stuff? It could not all have been done by American merchants and American steamship lines, some of which ran the Nationalist blockade. An analysis of Hongkong business with Soviet China and with other anti-American groups would not surprise the old-China hand, but it should startle the admirers of British justice in this country.

We need to be sure that American aid is not being used to kill Americans in Korea or anywhere else. The British in Hongkong have been selling American goods to Chinese Communists. They did a flourishing business in that town and are now crying their eyes out that they are no longer permitted to do it. The wail of Hongkong breaks by heart!

The British managed to build a dollar reserve of $3,000,000,000 out of the trade which they developed with our aid. It is, therefore, startling to read the following in the

Sun Glass Makers Get Wrought Up Over Regulations For Advertising

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The sun glass people are so upset they hardly can see straight. They're all wrought up over these four little words:

"And thereafter thermally curved."

If you bought one of the 40,000,000 pairs of sun glasses made in this country last year, the chances are you never thought much about whether they were thermally curved. Be honest with yourself: Did you?

It may not fret you, but it does the sun glass people. They met with the Federal Trade Commission to see if changes should be made in the rules for advertising ground and polished sun glasses.

Here is the argument:

Some sun glasses are made by grinding and polishing the glass, as regular eye glasses or camera lenses are made. The proponents of this method say this is the only one that's any good, and they don't want to change the rules.

Other sun glasses are made by taking ground and polished glass, and then heating it and bending it into shape. The proponents of this method say this is as good as the straight grind-and-polished system. They want the rules changed permanently — (they have temporary permission to use it now) — so they can advertise:

"Ground and polished and thereafter thermally curved."

No decision was reached, but before the meeting ended there were comments:

From Henry Cheatham of the Pennsylvania Optical Co., Reading, Pa., (a non-thermally curved man) — "Those who want this change have a relatively crude process, a cheap method of arriving at a curved lens."

From Robert Watson, a Washington attorney for the thermally curved crowd — "The absurdity of this is exceeded only by its audacity."

Incidentally, sun glasses have been around for years, but they really didn't catch on with the customers until Hollywood cuties took to wearing them.

What started as a fad turned into a necessity for many people. The war, with huge purchases by the armed forces, put sun glasses in the big leagues.

Well, the talk went on for about two hours, which adds up roughly to 30 minutes for each word.

Finally one lawyer said:

"The trouble is that when you invite a lawyer to talk he doesn't know when to stop."

"Hear, hear," said a voice from the rear.

On this, at least, there appeared to be complete unanimity. Including me.

It is estimated that every sold copy of a newspaper is read by three persons, on an average.

Workaday Charm For Rosie The Riveter

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Take a cue from those war plant days—if you answer the call for defense work, don't forfeit your femininity.

The boys will work in a pal-like manner with you during the day, but at night they'd like to see you revert to womanly charm.

You can embark on this double life whether as an engineer, taxi driver or financeer, if you will just keep in mind the two C's—cleanliness and charm.

Here are some good rules to follow whether you head for the drill press or the file cabinet:

1. Make a habit of taking a warm shower before you start out in the morning. Even if you have to set the alarm 15 minutes earlier, it will be worth it.

2. Choose attractive ,durable clothes for daytime wear. If you work in a factory and wear a uniform during the day, make sure it is washed and pressed frequently. Office workers can wear smart suits with pretty blouses which would be presentable, also, for a five-o'clock date.

3. Keep your underthings neat and clean. Wash panties, bras and slips in hot sudsy water every evening unless you can do your weekly laundry over the weekend.

4. Wash your hands frequently during the day so that you do not carry dirt from machines or dusty tables to your face. If you will dig your nails in a bar of soap before beginning your work, they will still be clean when you scrub them at the end of the day.

5. Be sure you continue to get your vitamins even after you start a 9 to 5 routine. A good substantial breakfast doesn't have to be fattening. Fruit, boiled eggs, and whole wheat toast will start you off right without too many calories.

6. If you take your lunch, be sure to include nourishing foods. Don't just slap a greasy piece of meat on a couple pieces of white bread. Plan your lunch so that you get maximum vitamins for strength and energy. Tuck a carrot, whole tomato, celery or hard boiled egg wrapped in wax paper or aluminum foil in your lunch basket. This will give you a good bulky appetizer to begin your lunch. Sandwiches should be put on the thinnest bread possible. Top cream cheese with water cress or jelly; ham sandwiches with tomatoes, peanut butter with bacon for new flavor and energy value.

7. Wear a kerchief around your hair during the day to protect it from dust and grease, if you work in a factory. You can pincurl your hair in the morning, hide it under your bandana, then remove the kerchief at night and comb out your pin-curls.

8. Leave your locker at night looking like a lady. No matter how anxious you are to get home, spend that extra five or ten minutes in primping hair and face, brushing your street clothes and putting stocking seams straight. After all, you might meet that man of the future on the bus or subway or just passing with a friend. Be prepared for the unexpected. And, if you are a married working girl, do some extra primping before you greet your husband.

Mrs. W. O. Sangler and Mrs. J. D. Eisenberger will be hostesses to the Spangler-Conrad Circle of First Presbyterian Church at 8 tomorrow evening in the church house.

HANDBAG WELL STOCKED IN MAKEUP ESSENTIALS WILL ASSURE PERFECT GROOMING THROUGHOUT THE DAY

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Keep your handbag as well stocked with makeup as your cupboard is with groceries and you'll look perfectly groomed even if you get lost in a blizzard.

You can get complete kits holding two-weeks supply of makeup essentials in minature containers. Or you can select individual containers to suit your particular needs. Most cosmetics these days are made in compact fashion to eliminate bulk, so that the handbag is not weighed down, yet assures the fastidious girl of a perfect makeup during the day.

One girl noted for a particularly neat handbag carried every beauty essential important to daytime loveliness or evening splendor. Her handbag revealed a miniature comb and brush set, a compact-lipstick-perfume combination all in one unit, a pattisize foundation cream and cold cream, collapsible eyelash curler, mascara, collapsible toothbrush with capsule of tooth powder, cleansing tissues in a small pocket, bobby pins in a tiny bottle with screw top.

There was no loose powder or tobacco spilled in her bag. A cigaret container kept tobacco intact. No scraps of paper listing addresses and memos were evident. Notes were jotted down immediately in a small combination address-note book, ideal for the purpose.

This very well organized young lady said it was easy to transfer these articles from one purse to another—not so when that inner sanctum is cluttered and messy.

You may not find it necessary to be as well supplied with grooming aids as was this girl who happened to be a model. But there are very few working girls who have not received a last minute invitation to dinner. Even if she owns all the essentials necessary to that 5 o'clock makeup, she might find that in transferring things from one handbag to another that morning some were left in a pile of cluttered papers at the bottom of the other bag.

To do a fast makeup you will need at least a comb, cleansing cream, tissues, foundation cream, powder, lipstick and perhaps eyebrow pencil and mascara. Add to that an eyelash curler and a skin freshener or witch hazel pads and you have a fairly complete emergency makeup kit.

An eyelash curler can do wonders when your eyes are tired. Rinse your eyes with warm water, then cold, then apply the curler for a "new-woman" look.

Keep your beauty essentials in the little pockets at the side of your handbag, or put them in a small makeup case, easily available at all times.

Here's another secret of what makes a Powers Girl's walk so beautiful. Make it your own!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

THE perfect walk is one of the most beautiful of all movements. It has a completely effortless flow with never a trace of a ripple. The woman who achieves such a gliding movement is the epitome of gracious femininity—and a joy to behold.

Unlike other women, the control she has over her body muscles enables her to propel herself forward without any unnecessary movement of the hips.

Causes of Hip Sway

The slightest sway in the hips ruins any woman's carriage. It is caused either by muscular flabbiness in the hip region or incorrect walking habits. There's a sure cure for both. Let's start work on the weak muscles with this exercise:

Sit on a stool with your feet flat on the floor. Place your hands on the stool behind your hips. Now (this is difficult but worth it) by pushing up with your arms, raise your hips off the stool as you contract the hip muscles—hard. Hold for a count of five if you can and then resume your normal sitting position. Start with five times daily and gradually increase to twenty-five. Also practice holding your elevated position until you can count to ten. In no time at all, you will firm your muscles so that they automatically remain still when you walk.

The walking habit that causes a hip-sway results from unconsciously throwing your entire weight from one foot to the other with each step. To detect such undulation, walk across the room with your hands on the fleshy part of your hips. Let all your weight plunk down on the forward foot. That is the wrong way to walk!

Now, try it letting only half of your body weight fall on the forward foot. The remainder must be held suspended in the dead center of your body. (Think of how the egret stands on one leg for long periods of time, without ever letting its weight get off center!)

With your shoes off, take slow steps, practicing the transfer of only half of your weight as you walk. Keep your hip muscles tense, so that you gain greater control over them at the same time you improve your balance.

You will soon have the walk others envy and admire!

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Keep your handbag as well stocked with makeup as your cupboard is with groceries and you'll look perfectly groomed even if you get lost in a blizzard.

You can get complete kits holding a two-weeks supply of makeup essentials in minature containers. Or you can select individual containers to suit your particular needs. Most cosmetics these days are made in compact fashion to eliminate bulk, so that the handbag is not weighed down, yet assures the fastidious girl of a perfect makeup during the day.

One girl noted for a particularly neat handbag carried every beauty essential important to daytime loveliness or evening splendor. Her handbag revealed a miniature comb and brush set, a compact-lipstick-perfume combination all in one unit, a pattisize foundation cream and cold cream, collapsible eyelash curler, mascara, collapsible toothbrush with capsule of tooth powder, cleansing tissues in a small pocket, bobby pins in a tiny bottle with screw top.

There was no loose powder or tobacco spilled in her bag. A cigaret container kept tobacco intact. No scraps of paper listing addresses and memos were evident. Notes were jotted down immediately in a small combination address-note book, ideal for the purpose.

This very well organized young lady said it was easy to transfer these articles from one purse to another—not so when that inner sanctum is cluttered and messy.

You may not find it necessary to be as well supplied with grooming aids as was this girl who happened to be a model. But there are very few working girls who have not received a last minute invitation to dinner. Even if she owns all the essentials necessary to that 5 o'clock makeup, she might find that in transferring things from one handbag to another that morning some were left in a pile of cluttered papers at the bottom of the other bag.

To do a fast makeup you will need at least a comb, cleansing cream, tissues, foundation cream, powder, lipstick and perhaps eyebrow pencil and mascara. Add to that an eyelash curler and a skin freshener or witch hazel pads and you have a fairly complete emergency makeup kit.

An eyelash curler can do wonders when your eyes are tired. Rinse your eyes with warm water, then cold, then apply the curler for a "new-woman" look.

Keep your beauty essentials in the little pockets at the side of your handbag, or put them in a small makeup case, easily available at all times.

Here's another secret of what makes a Powers Girl's walk so beautiful. Make it your own!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

THE perfect walk is one of the most beautiful of all movements. It has a completely effortless flow with never a trace of a ripple. The woman who achieves such a gliding movement is the epitome of gracious femininity—and a joy to behold.

Unlike other women, the control she has over her body muscles enables her to propel herself forward without any unnecessary movement of the hips.

Causes of Hip Sway

The slightest sway in the hips ruins any woman's carriage. It is caused either by muscular flabbiness in the hip region or incorrect walking habits. There's a sure cure for both. Let's start work on the weak muscles with this exercise:

Sit on a stool with your feet flat on the floor. Place your hands on the stool behind your hips. Now (this is difficult but worth it) by pushing up with your arms, raise your hips off the stool as you contract the hip muscles—hard. Hold for a count of five if you can and then resume your normal sitting position. Start with five times daily and gradually increase to twenty-five. Also practice holding your elevated position until you can count to ten. In no time at all, you will firm your muscles so that they automatically remain still when you walk.

The walking habit that causes a hip-sway results from unconsciously throwing your entire weight from one foot to the other with each step. To detect such undulation, walk across the room with your hands on the fleshy part of your hips. Let all your weight plunk down on the forward foot. That is the wrong way to walk!

Now, try it letting only half of your body weight fall on the forward foot. The remainder must be held suspended in the dead center of your body. (Think of how the egret stands on one leg for long periods of time, without ever letting its weight get off center!)

With your shoes off, take slow steps, practicing the transfer of only half of your weight as you walk. Keep your hip muscles tense, so that you gain greater control over them at the same time you improve your balance.

You will soon have the walk others envy and admire!

NEW YORK (INS)—THE PASSING show:—

Pope Pius XII will next make news by appointing a number of new cardinals, including perhaps two Americans. The College of Cardinals, fixed at 70 members in 1586 A. D. to correspond with the 70 elders of Moses, has been reduced in recent years to 52.

Cardinals constitute a Pope's senate or council and on the death of a pontiff they meet to elect his successor. The word "cardinal" comes from the Latin "cardo" which means hinge. They acquired the right to elect popes in 1179. Before that, the popes had been elected by lesser clergymen, members of the nobility and laymen. A cardinal may be excommunicated if he is in good health and does not at least attempt to reach Rome for a conclave that elects a pope.

Cardinals must be of legitimate birth. No male relative of a living cardinal, to the first cousinship, may be made a cardinal. There have been many cardinals who were not priests. The last one, Cardinal Mertel, died in 1899, and the law now militates against such elections. Each cardinal through the world receives title to one of the 75 ancient churches in Rome, and is expected to contribute to its upkeep.

Cardinals' rings feature sapphires. They wear their pontifical hats—red, broad-brimmed and with a low crown—only when elevated. The hat is placed at the foot of the cardinal's casket when he dies, and after the burial is suspended in his cathedral above his tomb.

The first of 12 American cardinals, John McCloskey, had trouble with his own parishioners as a young priest (on lower Sixth Avenue in New York City). They refused to pay his salary at first because they had not been consulted before his arrival at the church. When he received his red hat in 1875 the Pope's representative at the ceremony was Archbishop James Roosevelt Bayley of Baltimore, a former Anglican minister and ancestor of F.D.R. Cardinal McClosky's timeless monument is St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City.

The proponents of a union of the Atlantic democracies believe that the presence of semi-powerless Gen. Eisenhower in Europe will enhance their chances of sealing the deal. They would unite the Atlantic pact powers into a single democratic government comparable to the union of the 48 American states.

The General, said Sen. Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) on reintroducing the Atlantic union resolution in Congress, "has no effective civil power to which to report; nothing but the 12-headed Atlantic council with power only to recommend." He pleaded for an Atlantic alliance that would give the free nations "the power that there is in the union of our own states. No general can take orders from 12 nations."

Kefauver, and 19 other senators, say, "neither old-fashioned isolation nor old-fashioned intervention can solve the problems of the modern free world. Isolation spells strangulation for free people. Intervention is not adequate in the face of a United Communist population of three quarters of a billion people, controlling an area of 15,000,000 square miles and producing two atomic bombs per month.

"We need union of the democracies as a means of speeding up defense measures already under way. Free people must unite to guarantee their own survival against advancing hordes of barbarism."

The pangs of an a-bomb are endless. Dr. Shields Warren of the Atomic Energy Commission recently revealed a portion of the continuing study among the survivors at Hiroshima and Nagasaki:

"We are finding an increased incidence of cataracts in those survivors who were within the zone where they were exposed to the neutrons. There have been some 71 well recognized cases found among approximately 1,000 survivors studied."

"Darkness At Noon," Sidney Kingsley's new play from Arthur Kostler's book, is a stark, stunning unveiling of the secret purge of a rugged and pitiless old Bolshevik who deviated humanely from the Communist line he helped to found.

IS THAT A FACT! by Ches Peake

A FORTUNE FROM THE THIMBLE. The first thimble ever seen in England was made in London some 200 years ago by a metal worker named John Lofting. He founded a great English fortune on its manufacture. The thimble was first worn on the thumb. Since it was shaped like a bell, it was natural that the first thimble should have been called a "thumb-bell." Over the years, its name has softened into "thimble."

A NOTE FROM THE CHINESE. The oldest bank note probably in existence dates from the year 1399 B.C., and was issued by the Chinese government. It bears the name of the imperial bank, date, and number of issue, signature of a mandarin, along with a list of punishments inflicted for forgery of notes.

IT IS ALSO A FACT THAT . . . the YELLOW PAGES of your Telephone Directory save you time and trouble. Suppose, for example, you've forgotten the name of a firm, but know the address. Just look in the YELLOW PAGES, find the right heading, and presto, you've got the firm you want. Works just as well, too, when you know the name, but not the address. Use the YELLOW PAGES of your Telephone Directory often. You'll find it—pays!

IS THAT A FACT! by Ches Peake

A FORTUNE FROM THE THIMBLE. The first thimble ever seen in England was made in London some 200 years ago by a metal worker named John Lofting. He founded a great English fortune on its manufacture. The thimble was first worn on the thumb. Since it was shaped like a bell, it was natural that the first thimble should have been called a "thumb-bell." Over the years, its name has softened into "thimble."

A NOTE FROM THE CHINESE. The oldest bank note probably in existence dates from the year 1399 B.C., and was issued by the Chinese government. It bears the name of the imperial bank, date, and number of issue, signature of a mandarin, along with a list of punishments inflicted for forgery of notes.

IT IS ALSO A FACT THAT . . . the YELLOW PAGES of your Telephone Directory save you time and trouble. Suppose, for example, you've forgotten the name of a firm, but know the address. Just look in the YELLOW PAGES, find the right heading, and presto, you've got the firm you want. Works just as well, too, when you know the name, but not the address. Use the YELLOW PAGES of your Telephone Directory often. You'll find it—pays!

Leland E. Spencer Becomes NPA Official In Washington

Leland E. Spencer, 119 North Allegany Street, vice-president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, has taken up his duties as director of the Rubber Division of the National Production Authority in Washington, D. C.

Spencer is on leave from the local company to take the federal post. He has been vice-president here since September, 1949.

That Spencer was being considered for the position was announced in Washington in December by NPA officials.

Until Spencer assumed his new position, the Rubber Division of NPA had been supervised by acting directors.

Prior to coming to Cumberland, Spencer had directed commerce and industry in the United States and British occupation zones in Germany.

Spencer was manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's Topeka, Kan., factory at the time he was given a leave of absence to assume the international role following World War II.

A member of the Goodyear organization for the past 24 years he started with the company in its Akron plant, serving in production control statistics and forecasting department until 1939.

He was then made manager of merchandise planning. In 1945 he was appointed manager of the Topeka plant, newest and most modern tire factory in the nation. That appointment followed a three-year tour of duty with the government during the war years. There he served as deputy director of the Rubber devision of the War Production Board working in Washington.

Skylight Bandit Robs Restaurant

Cumberland's "skylight" intruder made another haul early yesterday.

Authorities said $81.25 was stolen from a metal cash box in Lena's Rainbow Restaurant, 47 North Centre Street. Co-owners of the business are Mrs. Lena S. Belfourse and Anthony W. Scarpelli.

Detective Thomas J. See, who investigated, said entrance was gained by climbing to the roof, removing a screen covering a ventilator and dropping about 20 feet to the kitchen floor. The establishment closed at 2:30 a. m.

Investigation revealed the thief apparently knew the whereabouts of the money since he went directly to a counter in the restaurant section of the building, picked up the metal box and returned to the kitchen. The cash container was under the counter.

After removing money from the box, See stated, the intruder left through a rear door. Meager clues were being checked.

In recent weeks police have been plagued by several other skylight robberies. However, no arrests have been made.

W. Va. Governor's Budget Ideas Criticized By GOP

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 16 (AP) — Republican legislators criticized the extent of Gov. Patteson's budgetary suggestions today, but found no one item to label unworthy.

Democratic members generally found in the Governor's biennial message "a very able, courageous and forthright statement of the state's affairs," as House Majority Leader J. Hornor Davis (D-Kanawha) described it.

The Governor, speaking for 80 minutes, reviewed the work and the needs of the various state departments, proposed some specific new taxes and suggested the need for others, and outlined other proposed legislation for the session.

Strongest recommendation by Gov. Patteson was for establishment of a four-year medical and dental school within the state—an issue which cut through party lines in the 1949 session.

Gilchrist To Speak

C. William Gilchrist, local attorney, will be the guest speaker at the Cumberland Kiwanis Club's regular weekly meeting tomorrow at 12:15 p. m. at the Central YMCA.

Gilchrist's subject will be "You Want What They Have."

Continuous Flight Record Set By B-36

FORT WORTH, Tex., Jan. 16 (AP) —A Convair test ship, believed to be the latest-type B-36 with jet-pod power added to its six propellor-motors, was believed today to have set a new record for continuous flight without refueling and for miles flown.

The giant bomber took off here Sunday morning and was expected to land some time today.

Convair officials stated that the B-36 was a test ship belonging to their corporation, but that at the present time they could not reveal any figure on the length of time the plane had been in the air or the number of miles flown.

Bomb Red China Or Quit Korea, Byrnes Declares

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 17 (AP)—Gov. James F. Byrnes, in an inaugural address devoted mainly to the dangers of war, called today for the bombing of Communist China, and said that if such action is not authorized, American troops should be pulled out of Korea.

He urged, even more emphatically, that American soldiers and military supplies should be sent to shore up Western Europe.

The ceremonies inducting the former Supreme Court justice and one-time "assistant president" into the governship of South Carolina brought an estimated 64,000 people into the State House square and packed the streets for eight blocks around it. In the audience were scores of nationally-prominent figures, officials and policy-makers.

They listened in careful silence but burst into wild applause when the former Secretary of State said:

"If the United Nations is unwilling promptly to declare China an aggressor, authorize our air force to attack the supply bases of the enemy, and join in blockading China, then our forces should be withdrawn from Korea."

34 "Slots" Are Seized In Hagerstown Raids

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Jan. 16 (AP) —City police raided a dozen clubs here today and confiscated 34 slot machines.

The raids were conducted simultaneously by Police Commissioner M. E. Ellinger and 33 patrolmen. Ellinger said the slot machines were picked up in trucks and brought to police headquarters.

He said the money hadn't been taken out of the machines, and that no charges had been made.

Officers found the machines at seven of the 12 clubs raided. The Moose Club had seven, Red Men Club, seven; UAW-CIO Club hall, six; Woodmen of the World, five; Eagles, four, Knights of Columbus, four; and Veterans of Foreign Wars, one.

Shortages Will Lower Morale, Executive Says

CHICAGO, Jan. 16 (AP) — Americans are used to so much of everything that shortages will lower their morale and produce inflation much worse than in World War Two, a Chicago sound equipment executive said today.

Truman Housing Plan Meets New Opposition

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. (AP)—Fresh opposition arose in the Senate today to President Truman's proposed $3,000,000,000 housing program. Sen. Robertson (D-Va) questioned whether the nation can afford to risk "ruinous" inflation by superimposing such an outlay on a $60,000,000,000 defense budget.

"Inflation might be as ruinous to us as defeat on the batlefield," Robertson said as the Senate Banking Committee opened hearings on the new bill which—like most of the items in the President's budget—carries a defense label.

Promotion Program Fund Thief Booked

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (AP)—Paul Neil Lewis, 32, was booked today on charges of forgery and grand larceny for allegedly stealing $82,000 of a Lipton Tea Company sales promotion program.

Housewives by the hundreds of thousands sent in 50-cent-pieces and Lipton tea labels for a "chef's saw" advertised last year on Arthur Godfrey's television program.

Police said Lewis spent most of the $82,000 on "horse racing bets, expensive automobiles, high living and various girl friends." They said at Belmont Park once Lewis put $12,000 on a horse named Baby Comet, which failed to live up to its name.

Former Sen. Tydings Confers With Truman

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—Millard Tydings, former Democratic senator of Maryland, conferred with President Truman today.

"I just stopped by for a little friendly chat," Tydings told White House reporters. "We talked over the general world situation."

Tydings, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee in the last Congress, said he is practicing law in Baltimore and Washington and has not changed his mind about not wanting a government job.

6 B-36 Bombers Fly 7,000 Miles To British Base

LAKENHEATH, Eng., Jan. 16 (AP) —Six American "global bombers"—giant B-36s which can freight an atom bomb 10,000 miles—roared into this air base today from Texas.

They took off Saturday from Carswell base, Fort Worth, paused at the Limestone air base on Main's northeastern tip and then flew a dog-leg course across the Atlantic, dropping practice bombs en route, the U. S. Air Force said.

The flying time was about 24 hours for the 7,000-mile distance, though the six gas engine-driven propellors and four underslung jets are capable of pushing a B-36 435 miles an hour at top speed.

It was the first time the enormous long-range warplanes had appeared on a mission to Europe. Though they were to return to their home base within four days, their presence revived persistent rumors that such bombers may soon be based in Europe. The group is commanded by Col. Thomas P. Gerrity, commander of the U. S. Eighth Air Force's 11th Bomb Wing.

To Play In Bowl

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 16 (AP)—Wake Forest and William and Mary today were signed to play in Richmond's third annual Tobacco Festival football game next fall.

The two southern conference foes will clash October 13 in city stadium. It will be the eighth meeting between the Deacons and Indians in a series which started in 1921.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Jan. 16 (AP) —City police raided a dozen clubs here today and confiscated 34 slot machines.

The raids were conducted simultaneously by Police Commissioner M. E. Ellinger and 33 patrolmen. Ellinger said the slot machines were picked up in trucks and brought to police headquarters.

He said the money hadn't been taken out of the machines, and that no charges had been made.

Officers found the machines at seven of the 12 clubs raided. The Moose Club had seven, Red Men Club, seven; UAW-CIO Club hall, six; Woodmen of the World, five; Eagles, four, Knights of Columbus, four; and Veterans of Foreign Wars, one.

Shortages Will Lower Morale, Executive Says

CHICAGO, Jan. 16 (AP) — Americans are used to so much of everything that shortages will lower their morale and produce inflation much worse than in World War Two, a Chicago sound equipment executive said today.

Charles P. Cushway, executive vice president of Webster-Chcago Corporation, addressed dealers at a showing of his firm's 1951 line, held in conjunction with the current winter home furnishings market here.

Truman Housing Plan Meets New Opposition

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. (AP)—Fresh opposition arose in the Senate today to President Truman's proposed $3,000,000,000 housing program. Sen. Robertson (D-Va) questioned whether the nation can afford to risk "ruinous" inflation by superimposing such an outlay on a $60,000,000,000 defense budget.

"Inflation might be as ruinous to us as defeat on the batlefield," Robertson said as the Senate Banking Committee opened hearings on the new bill which—like most of the items in the President's budget—carries a defense label.

Promotion Program Fund Thief Booked

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (AP)—Paul Neil Lewis, 32, was booked today on charges of forgery and grand larceny for allegedly stealing $82,000 of a Lipton Tea Company sales promotion program.

Housewives by the hundreds of thousands sent in 50-cent-pieces and Lipton tea labels for a "chef's saw" advertised last year on Arthur Godfrey's television program.

Police said Lewis spent most of the $82,000 on "horse racing bets, expensive automobiles, high living and various girl friends." They said at Belmont Park once Lewis put $12,000 on a horse named Baby Comet, which failed to live up to its name.

Former Sen. Tydings Confers With Truman

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—Millard Tydings, former Democratic senator of Maryland, conferred with President Truman today.

"I just stopped by for a little friendly chat," Tydings told White House reporters. "We talked over the general world situation."

Tydings, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee in the last Congress, said he is practicing law in Baltimore and Washington and has not changed his mind about not wanting a government job.

6 B-36 Bombers Fly 7,000 Miles To British Base

LAKENHEATH, Eng., Jan. 16 (AP) —Six American "global bombers"—giant B-36s which can freight an atom bomb 10,000 miles—roared into this air base today from Texas.

They took off Saturday from Carswell base, Fort Worth, paused at the Limestone air base on Main's northeastern tip and then flew a dog-leg course across the Atlantic, dropping practice bombs en route, the U. S. Air Force said.

The flying time was about 24 hours for the 7,000-mile distance, though the six gas engine-driven propellors and four underslung jets are capable of pushing a B-36 435 miles an hour at top speed.

It was the first time the enormous long-range warplanes had appeared on a mission to Europe. Though they were to return to their home base within four days, their presence revived persistent rumors that such bombers may soon be based in Europe. The group is commanded by Col. Thomas P. Gerrity, commander of the U. S. Eighth Air Force's 11th Bomb Wing.

To Play In Bowl

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 16 (AP)—Wake Forest and William and Mary today were signed to play in Richmond's third annual Tobacco Festival football game next fall.

The two southern conference foes will clash October 13 in city stadium. It will be the eighth meeting between the Deacons and Indians in a series which started in 1921.

Army To Recall 26 Nurses From State Into Service

Maryland was asked yesterday to supply 26 of more than 700 nurses in the Second Army area for voluntary recall to active duty.

Monday 24 physicians and nine dentists under 50 years of age registered at draft headquarters here in compliance with a Presidential proclamation, according to P. Emmett Fahey, clerk co-ordinator.

Fahey, who estimated that between 40 and 50 would sign up, said at least 20 per cent of all medical men in Cumberland were found to be over the 50-year age limit and did not have to register, in addition to those in reserve components of the Armed Forces.

The 724 nurses to be sought from seven states and the District of Columbia will be part of the 3,650 being recruited around the country.

The Second Army's quota includes 614 general duty nurses, 10 supervisors, 38 anesthetists, 28 operation room nurses and 34 psychiatric nurses. In announcing its state-by-state breakdown, the Army released these quotas:

Pennsylvania, 311; Ohio, 208; Delaware, 5; Kentucky, 15; Virginia, 27; West Virginia, 63, and District of Columbia, 68.

Snow Removal Cost Is Heavy

The semi-monthly report of J. Walker Chapman, supervisor of the County Roads Department, shows a total expenditure of $7,545.13 for the department for the period between December 16 to 31.

One large item was $4,700.05 for snow removal. This has been a heavy expense for the department since the first snowfall late in November.

Labor costs accounted for $5,192.99. Material costs were $812.61 and equipment charges were $1,233.03.

An additional report was made on the cost of distributing surplus foods to over 6,000 persons in Allegany county during December. The total expense for this was $797.12. Cutting and packaging of butter and cheese and storage costs are included.

The county board also received a letter from the Allegany County Chapter of the Maryland Arthritis and Rheumatic Fever Association thanking it for a $250 donation in the recent fund raising campaign.

Remington Not Red, Correspondent Says

NEW YORK Jan. 16 (AP) — A foreign correspondent, testifying for William W. Remington today, said he didn't think the former Commerce Department economist had ever been a Communist.

The witness, Bernard S. Redmont, Paris correspondent for U. S. News and World Report, also denied he'd ever belonged to the Communist Party.

Remington, 33, is on trial for perjury, accused of lying when he denied he'd ever been a Communist. He was ousted from his $10,000 government job after his indictment last summer.

Elizabeth Bentley, self-avowed Red spy courier during the last war, put the Communist tag on both Remington and Redmont.

County 4-H Club Enrollment Is Near 1,500 Mark

There are 1,473 boys and girls enrolled in 4-H clubs in Allegany county, according to the annual report of the offices of Joseph M. Steger, assistant county farm agent in charge of boys' club work, and Miss Thelma Allin, assistant home demonstration agent in charge of girls' club work.

The bulk of the members are students in public and parochial schools with only 23 boys and three girls being out of school.

Almost all of the boys reside on farms but only about half of the girls are farmerettes. Of the 446 boys enrolled in 4-H Clubs 322 are farm youths while 484 out of 927 girls in 4-H Clubs are farm girls.

Training in judging cattle, vegetables and other farm products was received by 318 boys and girls. There were 366 members of 4-H clubs who gave demonstrations, 182 took training in recreational leadership and 354 in health.

A total of 403 members took training in fire prevention, 409 in wildlife conservation, 33 in keeping personal accounts, six in the use of economic information, 394 in soil and water conservation, and 394 in forestry. There were six clubs which engaged in community activities such as improving school grounds and conducting local fairs.

Raising of poultry and swine had the largest participation in this plan of activity by 4-H members.

Poultry raising was engaged in by 89 boys and girls. They handled 3,362 birds including turkeys.

There were 105 boys engaged in swine production and they handled 114 animals during the year. Rabbit raising interested 16 boys and two girls. They had 143 animals in their projects.

Home gardens interested the largest number of members with 197 boys and 18 girls having plots. Total acreage of these projects was 65½ acres.

It took 40 years to progress from the simple Wright brothers' engine to one of 3,000 horsepower.

It took almost 13 years to build the Brooklyn bridge.

Ex-Asiatic Relief Worker To Address Church Group

Griffith G. Levering, vice-president of Lumberman's Mutual Casualty Company and a member of the Board of Directors of the American Friends (Quaker) Service Committee, will address a dinner meeting of the Cumberland Chapter, Council of Presbyterian Men, at First Presbyterian Church January 24 at 6:15 p. m.

Levering was given a leave of absence in June, 1945, by his Chicago company and went to China to head the Friends Ambulance Unit of London, consisting of about 100 British, Canadian and Chinese relief workers. He served there for two years, returning to the United States in 1947.

The main activity of the unit was to deliver and administer medicines to civilians on both the Communist and Nationalist sides of the battle line—principally to children.

Transportation across the battle line was provided by the U. S. Air Forces and the unit was flown thousands of miles over China both north and south. Levering had an opportunity to talk to high officials of the Nationalist and Communist governments and to visit and live with civilians in many parts of the country.

A musical feature of the program will be an appearance by the Elks Quartet of Lodge No. 63, this city.

County 4-H Club Enrollment Is Near 1,500 Mark

There are 1,473 boys and girls enrolled in 4-H clubs in Allegany county, according to the annual report of the offices of Joseph M. Steger, assistant county farm agent in charge of boys' club work, and Miss Thelma Allin, assistant home demonstration agent in charge of girls' club work.

The bulk of the members are students in public and parochial schools with only 23 boys and three girls being out of school.

Almost all of the boys reside on farms but only about half of the girls are farmerettes. Of the 446 boys enrolled in 4-H Clubs 322 are farm youths while 484 out of 927 girls in 4-H Clubs are farm girls.

Training in judging cattle, vegetables and other farm products was received by 318 boys and girls. There were 366 members of 4-H clubs who gave demonstrations, 182 took training in recreational leadership and 354 in health.

A total of 403 members took training in fire prevention, 409 in wildlife conservation, 33 in keeping personal accounts, six in the use of economic information, 394 in soil and water conservation, and 394 in forestry. There were six clubs which engaged in community activities such as improving school grounds and conducting local fairs.

Raising of poultry and swine had the largest participation in this plan of activity by 4-H members.

Poultry raising was engaged in by 89 boys and girls. They handled 3,362 birds including turkeys.

There were 105 boys engaged in swine production and they handled 114 animals during the year. Rabbit raising interested 16 boys and two girls. They had 143 animals in their projects.

Home gardens interested the largest number of members with 197 boys and 18 girls having plots. Total acreage of these projects was 65½ acres.

Ex-Asiatic Relief Worker To Address Church Group

Griffith G. Levering, vice-president of Lumberman's Mutual Casualty Company and a member of the Board of Directors of the American Friends (Quaker) Service Committee, will address a dinner meeting of the Cumberland Chapter, Council of Presbyterian Men, at First Presbyterian Church January 24 at 6:15 p. m.

Levering was given a leave of absence in June, 1945, by his Chicago company and went to China to head the Friends Ambulance Unit of London, consisting of about 100 British, Canadian and Chinese relief workers. He served there for two years, returning to the United States in 1947.

The main activity of the unit was to deliver and administer medicines to civilians on both the Communist and Nationalist sides of the battle line—principally to children.

Transportation across the battle line was provided by the U. S. Air Forces and the unit was flown thousands of miles over China both north and south. Levering had an opportunity to talk to high officials of the Nationalist and Communist governments and to visit and live with civilians in many parts of the country.

A musical feature of the program will be an appearance by the Elks Quartet of Lodge No. 63, this city.

A capacity crowd at Lonaconing last night saw Barton High School's Braves upset the cagers of Central High in an important W.M.I. League contest by the score of 50 to 44.

Fort Hill's Sentinels made it two straight in the league and eight in a row for the current campaign by spilling Bruce High in Westernport, 64-28, while Allegany High also made it 2-0 in the league by winning a close one from Beall High at Campobello, 41-34.

In the contest at Lonaconing, Barton held a one-point lead at 38-37 with three minutes to go then sewed it up by ringing up an even dozen markers in the closing minutes. Central led at the quarter, 14-8 but trailed at intermission, 27-20, and at the close of the third stanza, 34-27.

Bill Kirk, Bok Kirk and Garland Tichnell banged in 41 of Barton's 50 points. Johnson and Burt led Central with 14 and 12 markers.

Three players went out on personal fouls in the final period—Bob Kirk, McKenzie and Johnson.

Central's Jayvees defeated Barton in the opening game, 39-19.

Tied For First Place

Fort Hill and Allegany, conquerors of Central and Barton last week, went into a deadlock for first place place as a result of their victories last night.

The Sentinels easily took Bruce as 10 of the 12 players sent into action by Coach Bobby Cavanaugh crashed the scoring column. Beightol and Cage had 10 points each. Shimer and Marple registered eight apiece for Bruce. It was 35-14 at the half.

Mike Nofsinger scored 14 points in leading the Bruce Jayvees to a 35-32 win over Fort Hill in the opener of the twin bill. Bruce led throughout, the quarter scores being 14-3, 26-12 and 29-22.

Ronnie Lease and Fred See tossed field goals in the closing minute to give AHS a seven-point decision over Beall after the Mountaineers had pulled within three points of the pace-setters.

Beall trailed at the half, 26-21 and also at the conclusion of the third period, 32-26.

Phares Gets 15 Points

Frank Phares was Allegany's high scorer with 15 points. McClintick and Blank marked up 10 apiece for Beall.

WVU Frosh Play At Frostburg

Bobcats Oppose "100" Point Quint Tonight

Coach Quentin Barnette's West Virginia University Freshmen will make their only appearance of the season in this section tonight when they conclude their two-game series with Frostburg State Teachers' College at Frostburg at 8 o'clock.

The Mountaineer Plebes have a powerful aggregation and should find no trouble handling the winless Bobcats their 10th setback.

West Virginia has scored over 100 points in three games this season, whipping the W. & J. Freshmen in an overtime scoring marathon, and trouncing Frostburg Teachers 104-47 and Potomac State 110-86.

Leon "Mac" Isner, former Elkins High all-stater, and Eddie Becker, Wheeling High all stater, are the scoring aces of the W.V.U. yearling quint. Other stars of the team are Bob Kupchak of Wheeling and Ralph Holmes of Charleston.

In a Potomac Valley Conference game set for tonight, Capon Bridge will play the West Virginia School for the Deaf at Romney.

Everett's Jayces are billed to play Hyndman High School at the latter place.

Accident Whips Kitzmiller High

Scores Third Victory In County, 33 To 27

ACCIDENT, Md., Jan. 16—Coach Charley Strauss' Accident High School floormen took the measure of Kitzmiller in a Garrett County High School League game here tonight by the score of 33-27.

Accident has a 3-0 record in county competition.

Hamilton topped the AHS scorers with 13 tallies while Harman played a nice floor game. Hershberger was Kitzmiller's best bet.

Kitzmiller Junior High defeated Accident in the preliminary game, 31-20. Sullivan led the victors with 11 points. Hamilton led the locals with 10 markers. Lineups:

Bill Holland Is Suspended

DETROIT, Jan. 16 (INS) — The American Auto Association tonight suspended race drier Bill Holland, winner of 1949's Indianapolis speedway race, for one year because of a rules violation.

Holland was found in violation of Triple-A regulations for participating in a stock car race in mid-November, 1950. His suspension dates from the time of the event.

He was a major figure in all four of the Indianapolis races in which he was entered. In addition to winning the 1949 race, Holland placed second in 1947, '48 and '50.

The AAA contest board, meeting in Detroit, also announced that no plans are being made to curtail auto racing because of the war.

A spokesman emphasized, however, that the board is prepared to gear its activity to any national emergency—and will cut down on racing if and when the national welfare demands it.

Long Island Wins

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (INS) — Long Island University's unbeaten skyscrapers rolled to their 12th straight win of the season tonight when they humbled Duquesne, 84-52, in the feature of a Madison Square Garden basketball doubleheader.

Manhattan College overcame an 11-point deficit to upset DePaul, 62-59 in the first game before approximately 11,000 fans.

Ivy League Foes Snub Penn For Scheduling Irish

Boycott Statement Issued By Stassen

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16 (AP)—President Harold E. Stassen said today the University of Pennsylvania's difficulties in scheduling Ivy League football opponents arose from Penn's plans for a 1951 game with Notre Dame.

The Penn president issued a statement after reading a sports column by Joe Williams, of the New York World Telegram and Sun, which said the staid Ivy League schools, except Cornell, were boycotting Penn's football team.

"It is my understanding that the real reason for the scheduling difficulty is that some athletic officials object to Pennsylvania's anticipated game with Notre Dame in 1952," Stassen said.

"I do not believe in boycotting Notre Dame or any other American college team whether they are weak or strong, north or south, east or west."

Stassen would not elaborate on why the other Ivy schools objected so strenuously to Notre Dame but a reliable source said it was tied up with the question of scholastic standards.

This source, who declined to be identified, said Notre Dame's eligibility code was not on the same level with that of the Ivy institutions and that Penn by playing the Fighting Irish thus condoned the South Bend school's policy.

Notre Dame Indignant

At South Bend, Ind., Notre Dame athletic officials reacted with indignation.

Ed (Moose) Krause, athletic director, said "our acedemic requirements are equal to, if not better than, those of the Ivy League or any other institution in the country.

x x x x

"Our starting football team, I feel, could be matched academically with that of any other school in the world and do as well scholastically as it has done on the field.

x x x

Krause said that he "admired" President Stassen's attitude. "It is typically American," Krause said. "He wants to play the good teams where he finds them; he wants to compete against the best there is."

Stassen said that in spite of the present Ivy scheduling difficulty Penn will continue to try and maintain the "maximum relationships athletically, academically and scientifically with all other Ivy schools.

"It will continue to be Pennsylvania policy to strictly abide by the president's agreement of the Ivy group and the eastern collegiate athletic code," Stassen added.

Yale Snubs Penn

The president's agreement is a scholastic and athletic policy adhered to by the Ivy group of Penn, Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Columbia, Brown, Darthmouth and Cornell.

The source disclosed that efforts have been made by Penn athletic officials to schedule Yale for 1953, but that the Eli athletic board will have none of the red and blue grid legions because of the Notre Dame game. It also has been understood for years that the Yale alumni resented the 1943 game in which Penn ran up a 41 to 7 score on a Howie O'Dell-coached Eli eleven.

Penn Athletic Director Francis Murray said the 1953 schedule was not complete and that he still was trying to book at least four Ivy League teams and possibly five on a nine game schedule.

Williams said he had learned of the projected boycott while attending the convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association in Dallas last week.

"Unless Stassen apologizes," Williams wrote, " x x x Penn will have to to strike out for itself as an independent power."

He added all Ivy teams would join in the snub except Cornell which will continue the rivalry because "the Penn-Cornell game is history-packed and solid box office."

"Babe" Talk Of Loop
The Lights Went Out
Diz Fanned The Side
Mounties Shake Jinx

By C. V. BURNS

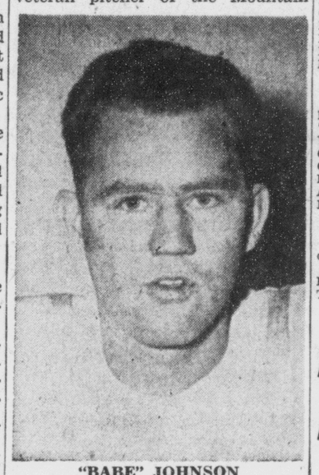
Robert "Babe" Johnson, the former Cumberland Dukes' player, is going great guns for the Denton Club of the Eastern Shore Basketball League, according to a dispatch out of Salisbury, Md.

The item says:

"The 25-year-old Lonaconing (Md.) resident has been the talk of the league during recent games with his steady point-making and his rugged backboard play. His 12-game scoring output totals 170 tallies."

Ed Athey is a member of the same team and has racked up 160 tallies in 11 contests.

Johnson, a native of Pekin, is a brother of "Farmer" Johnson, of the Westvaco Club; Urban Johnson, veteran pitcher of the Mountain



"BABE" JOHNSON

Top League, the Johnson sisters who starred for Central High School (Lonaconing) basketball and field ball teams in bygone days, and he played for Central High, Potomac State and the Lonaconing American Legion before joining the Dukes several years ago.

"Babe" is now a Washington College student and was declared ineligible by Mason-Dixon Conference officials this year because of his previous professional baseball experience with the Rocky Mount (NC) Coastal Plains League team.

Other teams in the Eastern Shore circuit are Chincoteague, Harrington, Salisbury, Lewes, Georgetown, Rehoboth, Federalsburg and Salisbury.

Rehashing old happenings the other day, a former Fort Hill basketball player recalled the night the Sentinels were playing out-of-town and the lights went out.

The Fort Hill players learned that the principal doused the lights. He was irked because his team was taking a trouncing and he never had any love for Fort Hill, anyway.

When the lights were turned on the crowd got a good chuckle out of the Fort Hill player sitting on the ball in the middle of the floor.

● — ● — ●

Fay Keiser also had a "lights out" story crowded into his boxing career.

He had Bob Martin, the A.E.F. heavyweight champion, on the verge of a knockout in Baltimore and all of a sudden the lights went out.

The delay enabled Martin to recuperate sufficiently to stay the limit. Keiser won the "duke."

Many stories are told about "Dizzy" Dean, former St. Louis Cardinals' pitching ace, but one we like best is told by Arthur Daley, New York sports columnist.

Dean was the freshest busher imaginable when Manager Gabby Street first had him. The Cardinal pitchers were getting shelled unmercifully by the great Athletics' sluggers in an exhibition game.

"I jes' wisht Ol' Diz wuz a pitchin'," murmured Ol' Diz softly on the bench.

"Get in there and pitch," screamed Street, suddenly turning on his tormentor. "I hope you get your brains beat out. Maybe it will teach you a lesson.

"Nonchalantly the kid strolled on the mound without a warm-up to find the bases full and Al Simmons, Jimmy Foxx and Mickey Cochrane waiting to bat. The 19-year-old Dean struck out the side."

● — ● — ●

Daley feels that Dean should be in Baseball's Hall of Fame. He adds that in the past twenty years there have been just two pitchers who have performed the rare feat of winning 30 games in a season. They are Lefty Grove and Dean.

Grove is on the inside and Ol' Diz is knocking on the door.

All-American Basketball League teams have won only 7 of 33 games played away from home this season.

The now defunct Johnstown Club had the worst record of 0-5 while Cumberland is next with 1-7.

Wheeling (5-0), Erie (5-0) and Altoona (4-0) have yet to lose a game at home. And Wheeling has played .500 ball in six road games which makes the Blues the "club to beat."

Petersburg Beats Thomas, 76 To 50

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 16—Petersburg High School's Vikings notched their 7th victory in nine starts by downing Thomas High of Tucker county in a non-conference game here tonight, 76 to 50.

Oakland Legion Takes Salisbury Five, 90-41

OAKLAND, Md., Jan. 16—Oakland's American Legion basketball team scored its third straight win in the Bi-State League tonight, defeating the Salisbury (Pa.) Legion passers by the score of 90 to 41.

Nicola and Wilson were the chief scorers for Oakland with 29 and 20 points. Cable and Brown topped Salisbury with eight points each.

We note that Joey Maxim, who is recognized as the light-heavy champion, is matched to fight Bill Peterson, of Illinois, in a 10-rounder at Indianapolis on January 27.

In 1948 Maxim whipped a Bill Peterson twice and we presume he's the same tanker who has been in the ring wars since 1940 and has been belted out 14 times.

West Virginia University's varsity quint had suffered 12 consecutive setbacks away from home prior to Monday's 62-49 triumph over the North Carolina Tarheels at Chapel Hill.

N. C. was supposed to be a "sure thing" and we know of one local citizen who almost lost his trousers on the outcome of this contest.

Jim Mutscheller, captain and end of the Notre Dame football team, will speak at the sports banquet of Altoona Catholic High School, January 29.

The Beaver Falls native set the all-time Irish record for pass receiving during the past season when he snared 35 aerials for a total of 426 yards. This total almost doubled that of Leon Hart, the previous record holder.

275 Will Attend Dinner Honoring Fort Hill Eleven

Affair Set Thursday, Wise Will Come Here

Two hundred and forty-two persons have purchased tickets for the banquet which will be held tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club in honor of Fort Hill High School's undefeated and untied football champions, H. Clifford Spiker, president of the Fort Hill Boosters' Club, sponsors of the affair, announced last night.

Spiker expects 275 reservations by today at noon, the deadline for purchasing pasteboards.

Jim Tatum

Reservations can be made by contacting Spiker at the Truitt Drug Company, phone 364.

Jim Tatum, head football coach and director of athletics at the University of Maryland will be the principal speaker. He will be accompanied here by Bill Meek, assistant coach; John Alderton and Donald Decker, former Fort Hill gridiron stars. Alderton played end on the varsity eleven last season and Decker was with the Terp freshmen.

Carl Wise, backfield coach at Washington and Lee University, is also coming here for the banquet. George Barclay, head coach at W. & L., however, has sent regrets because of the fact that he has a speaking engagement at Beckley (W. Va.) High School.

Dr. George Simons, an alumnus of Fort Hill, will be the toastmaster.

Last year's Fort Hill eleven, coached by William P. Hahn was the first undefeated and untied football team in the history of the local school. Nine victories were registered by the Sentinels and the team closed the season with a string of 17 wins over two years.

Kluszewski, Stallcup Signed By Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 16 (INS) —First baseman Ted Kluszewski the Cincinnati Reds baseball team signed a 1951 contract today with The Cincinnati Reds baseball team for what officials described as "a considerable boost in salary."

The 26-year-old Kluszewski batted .307 last season, hitting 25 homers and driving in 11 runs. He said he was "very happy" with his new contract.

Reds President Warren Giles also announced that Shortstops Virgil Stallcup and Roy McMillan had joined the fold.

Moorefield Scores 7th PVC Win Over Romney, 71 To 53

Piedmont, Circleville Rack Up Victories

Keyser High School tied Petersburg for the runner-up spot in the Potomac Valley Conference last night by handing Ridgeley High's Blackhawks their first setback of the season in the 17-school cage circuit in a game played at Keyser before 450 spectators. The score was 67-51.

The triumph was Keyser's 5th against a single loss in the conference. Ridgeley now has a 3-1 record.

Keyser led at the quarters, 17-12, 27-23 and 51-35 and held a 21-point advantage in the final stanza when the count was 64-43, following a scoring spree that netted 11 consecutive tallies.

The teams were tied at 3-3, 5-5, 7-7 and Keyser took the lead at 11-10 on Porters fielder and was never headed.

Andrew Porter was the "big gun" for John Shelton's team with 11 field goals, six for six at the foul line and 28 points. Carl Hartman was the "whole show" for the Blackhawks with nine fielders and 22 markers.

Jackets Cop Seventh

Moorefield High stretched its winning streak to seven games in the conference by walloping Romney High's Pioneers by the score of 71-53 before the season's largest turnout at Moorefield.

Coach Johnny Paugh's Yellow Jackets, unbeaten in the P.V.C., led throughout, the scores being 23-14, 41-31 and 54-44.

Gene Baldwin topped the Moorefield offensive with 23 points, including 10 field goals. Bob Petry banged in 10 fielders and 22 points to pace Romney.

Romney High's girls defeated Moorefield in the prelim, 41-32. Sirk scored 15 points for Romney and Hedrick had 13 for the home team.

Piedmont Is Winner

Coach "Huck" Miers' Piedmont High Lions' cracked a six-game losing streak by sinking Elk Garden High on the Piedmont court by the score of 46-37.

Jimmie Bell played an outstanding game for the winners and chalked up 16 points to spark the offensive. Becker was Elk Garden's leading scorer with 11 tallies.

Piedmont held the long end of a 19-13 score at intermission.

Indians Top Franklin

Circleville's Indians upset Franklin High's Tigers at Circleville, 39-37.

The Tribe led at the half, 21-16, and at the close of the third period, 35-28

Bennett scored 17 points for Circleville while Wimer contributed 10 for the Panthers.

Opens Meeting Today

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 16 (AP)—Hialeah race course launches its 40-day midwinter meeting tomorrow with the $7,500 added inaugural Handicap split into two divisions.

Decision to run the six-furlong test in two sections was made today when 20 entries remained after scratches. Each division will carry the $7,500 added purse.

It is the first time since 1946 it has been necessary to run the sprint in two sections and the second time in the event's 21-year history.

A capacity crowd at Lonaconing last night saw Barton High School's Braves upset the cagers of Central High in an important W.M.I. League contest by the score of 50 to 44.

Fort Hill's Sentinels made it two straight in the league and eight in a row for the current campaign by spilling Bruce High in Westernport, 64-28, while Allegany High also made it 2-0 in the league by winning a close one from Beall High at Campobello, 41-34.

In the contest at Lonaconing, Barton held a one-point lead at 38-37 with three minutes to go then sewed it up by ringing up an even dozen markers in the closing minutes. Central led at the quarter, 14-8 but trailed at intermission, 27-20, and at the close of the third stanza, 34-27.

Bill Kirk, Bok Kirk and Garland Tichnell banged in 41 of Barton's 50 points, Johnson and Burt led Central with 14 and 12 markers.

Three players went out on personal fouls in the final period—Bob Kirk, McKenzie and Johnson.

Central's Jayvees defeated Barton in the opening game, 39-19.

Tied For First Place

Fort Hill and Allegany, conquerors of Central and Barton last week, went into a deadlock for first place place as a result of their victories last night.

The Sentinels easily took Bruce as 10 of the 12 players sent into action by Coach Bobby Cavanaugh crashed the scoring column. Beightol and Cage had 10 points each. Shimer and Marple registered eight apiece for Bruce. It was 35-14 at the half.

Mike Nofsinger scored 14 points in leading the Bruce Jayvees to a 35-32 win over Fort Hill in the opener of the twin bill. Bruce led throughout, the quarter scores being 14-3, 26-12 and 29-22.

Ronnie Lease and Fred See tossed field goals in the closing minute to give AHS a seven-point decision over Beall after the Mountaineers had pulled within three points of the pace-setters.

Beall trailed at the half, 26-21 and also at the conclusion of the third period, 32-26.

Phares Gets 15 Points

Frank Phares was Allegany's high scorer with 15 points. McClintick and Blank marked up 10 apiece for Beall.

Bobcats Oppose "100" Point Quint Tonight

Coach Quentin Barnette's West Virginia University Freshmen will make their only appearance of the season in this section tonight when they conclude their two-game series with Frostburg State Teachers' College at Frostburg at 8 o'clock.

The Mountaineer Plebes have a powerful aggregation and should find no trouble handling the winless Bobcats their 10th setback.

West Virginia has scored over 100 points in three games this season, whipping the W. & J. Freshmen in an overtime scoring marathon, and trouncing Frostburg Teachers 104-47 and Potomac State 110-86.

Leon "Mac" Isner, former Elkins High all-stater, and Eddie Becker, Wheeling High all stater, are the scoring aces of the W.V.U. yearling quint. Other stars of the team are Bob Kupchak of Wheeling and Ralph Holmes of Charleston.

In a Potomac Valley Conference game set for tonight, Capon Bridge will play the West Virginia School for the Deaf at Romney.

Everett's Jayces are billed to play Hyndman High School at the latter place.

Bill Holland Is Suspended

DETROIT, Jan. 16 (INS) — The American Auto Association tonight suspended race drier Bill Holland, winner of 1949's Indianapolis speedway race, for one year because of a rules violation.

Holland was found in violation of Triple-A regulations for participating in a stock car race in mid-November, 1950. His suspension dates from the time of the event.

He was a major figure in all four of the Indianapolis races in which he was entered. In addition to winning the 1949 race, Holland placed second in 1947, '48 and '50.

The AAA contest board, meeting in Detroit, also announced that no plans are being made to curtail auto racing because of the war.

A spokesman emphasized, however, that the board is prepared to gear its activity to any national emergency—and will cut down on racing if and when the national welfare demands it.

Long Island Wins

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (INS) — Long Island University's unbeaten skyscrapers rolled to their 12th straight win of the season tonight when they humbled Duquesne, 84-52, in the feature of a Madison Square Garden basketball doubleheader.

Manhattan College overcame an 11-point deficit to upset DePaul, 62-59 in the first game before approximately 11,000 fans.

Ivy League Foes Snub Penn For Scheduling Irish

Boycott Statement Issued By Stassen

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16 (AP)—President Harold E. Stassen said today the University of Pennsylvania's difficulties in scheduling Ivy League football opponents arose from Penn's plans for a 1951 game with Notre Dame.

The Penn president issued a statement after reading a sports column by Joe Williams, of the New York World Telegram and Sun, which said the staid Ivy League schools, except Cornell, were boycotting Penn's football team.

"It is my understanding that the real reason for the scheduling difficulty is that some athletic officials object to Pennsylvania's anticipated game with Notre Dame in 1952," Stassen said.

"I do not believe in boycotting Notre Dame or any other American college team whether they are weak or strong, north or south, east or west."

Stassen would not elaborate on why the other Ivy schools objected so strenuously to Notre Dame but a reliable source said it was tied up with the question of scholastic standards.

This source, who declined to be identified, said Notre Dame's eligibility code was not on the same level with that of the Ivy institutions and that Penn by playing the Fighting Irish thus condoned the South Bend school's policy.

Notre Dame Indignant

At South Bend, Ind., Notre Dame athletic officials reacted with indignation.

Ed (Moose) Krause, athletic director, said "our academic requirements are equal to, if not better than, those of the Ivy League or any other institution in the country.

x x x x

"Our starting football team, I feel, could be matched academically with that of any other school in the world and do as well scholastically as it has done on the field.

x x x

Krause said that he "admired" President Stassen's attitude. "It is typically American," Krause said. "He wants to play the good teams where he finds them; he wants to compete against the best there is."

Stassen said that in spite of the present Ivy scheduling difficulty Penn will continue to try and maintain the "maximum relationships athletically, academically and scientifically with all other Ivy schools.

"It will continue to be Pennsylvania policy to strictly abide by the president's agreement of the Ivy group and the eastern collegiate athletic code," Stassen added.

Yale Snubs Penn

The president's agreement is a scholastic and athletic policy adhered to by the Ivy group of Penn, Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Columbia, Brown, Darthmouth and Cornell.

The source disclosed that efforts have been made by Penn athletic officials to schedule Yale for 1953, but that the Eli athletic board will have none of the red and blue grid legions because of the Notre Dame game. It also has been understood for years that the Yale alumni resented the 1943 game in which Penn ran up a 41 to 7 score on a Howie O'Dell-coached Eli eleven.

Penn Athletic Director Francis Murray said the 1953 schedule was not complete and that he still was trying to book at least four Ivy League teams and possibly five on a nine game schedule.

Williams said he had learned of the projected boycott while attending the convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association in Dallas last week.

"Unless Stassen apologizes," Williams wrote, " x x x Penn will have to to strike out for itself as an independent power."

He added all Ivy teams would join in the snub except Cornell which will continue the rivalry because "the Penn-Cornell game is history-packed and solid box office."

"BABE" JOHNSON

Top League, the Johnson sisters who starred for Central High School (Lonaconing) basketball and field ball teams in bygone days, and he played for Central High, Potomac State and the Lonaconing American Legion before joining the Dukes several years ago.

"Babe" is now a Washington College student and was declared ineligible by Mason-Dixon Conference officials this year because of his previous professional baseball experience with the Rocky Mount (NC) Coastal Plains League team.

Other teams in the Eastern Shore circuit are Chincoteague, Harrington, Salisbury, Lewes, Georgetown, Rehoboth, Federalsburg and Salisbury.

Rehashing old happenings the other day, a former Fort Hill basketball player recalled the night the Sentinels were playing out-of-town and the lights went out.

The Fort Hill players learned that the principal doused the lights. He was irked because his team was taking a trouncing and he never had any love for Fort Hill, anyway.

When the lights were turned on the crowd got a good chuckle out of the Fort Hill player sitting on the ball in the middle of the floor.

• — • — •

Fay Keiser also had a "lights out" story crowded into his boxing career.

He had Bob Martin, the A.E.F. heavyweight champion, on the verge of a knockout in Baltimore and all of a sudden the lights went out.

The delay enabled Martin to recuperate sufficiently to stay the limit. Keiser won the "duke."

Many stories are told about "Dizzy" Dean, former St. Louis Cardinals' pitching ace, but one we like best is told by Arthur Daley, New York sports columnist.

Dean was the freshest busher imaginable when Manager Gabby Street first had him. The Cardinal pitchers were getting shelled unmercifully by the great Athletics' sluggers in an exhibition game.

"I jes' wisht Ol' Diz wuz a pitchin'," murmured Ol' Diz softly on the bench.

"Get in there and pitch," screamed Street, suddenly turning on his tormentor. "I hope you get your brains beat out. Maybe it will teach you a lesson.

"Nonchalantly the kid strolled on the mound without a warm-up to find the bases full and Al Simmons, Jimmy Foxx and Mickey Cochrane waiting to bat. The 19-year-old Dean struck out the side."

• — • — •

Daley feels that Dean should be in Baseball's Hall of Fame. He adds that in the past twenty years there have been just two pitchers who have performed the rare feat of winning 30 games in a season. They are Lefty Grove and Dean.

Grove is on the inside and Ol' Diz is knocking on the door.

All-American Basketball League teams have won only 7 of 33 games played away from home this season.

The now defunct Johnstown Club had the worst record of 0-5 while Cumberland is next with 1-7.

Wheeling (5-0), Erie (5-0) and Altoona (4-0) have yet to lose a game at home. And Wheeling has played .500 ball in six road games which makes the Blues the "club to beat."

Petersburg Beats Thomas, 76 To 50

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 16—Petersburg High School's Vikings notched their 7th victory in nine starts by downing Thomas High of Tucker county in a non-conference game here tonight, 76 to 50.

Oakland Legion Takes Salisbury Five, 90-41

OAKLAND, Md., Jan. 16—Oakland's American Legion basketball team scored its third straight win in the Bi-State League tonight, defeating the Salisbury (Pa.) Legion passers by the score of 90 to 41.

Nicola and Wilson were the chief scorers for Oakland with 29 and 20 points. Cable and Brown topped Salisbury with eight points each.

We note that Joey Maxim, who is recognized as the light-heavy champion, is matched to fight Bill Peterson, of Illinois, in a 10-rounder at Indianapolis on January 27.

In 1948 Maxim whipped a Bill Peterson twice and we presume he's the same tanker who has been in the ring wars since 1940 and has been belted out 14 times.

Jim Mutscheller, captain and end of the Notre Dame football team, will speak at the sports banquet of Altoona Catholic High School, January 29.

The Beaver Falls native set the all-time Irish record for pass receiving during the past season when he snared 35 aerials for a total of 426 yards. This total almost doubled that of Leon Hart, the previous record holder.

275 Will Attend Dinner Honoring Fort Hill Eleven

Affair Set Thursday, Wise Will Come Here

Two hundred and forty-two persons have purchased tickets for the banquet which will be held tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club in honor of Fort Hill High School's undefeated and untied football champions, H. Clifford Spiker, president of the Fort Hill Boosters' Club, sponsors of the affair, announced last night.

Spiker expects 275 reservations by today at noon, the deadline for purchasing pasteboards.

Jim Tatum

Reservations can be made by contacting Spiker at the Truitt Drug Company, phone 364.

Jim Tatum, head football coach and director of athletics at the University of Maryland will be the principal speaker. He will be accompanied here by Bill Meek, assistant coach; John Alderton and Donald Decker, former Fort Hill gridiron stars. Alderton played end on the varsity eleven last season and Decker was with the Terp freshmen.

Carl Wise, backfield coach at Washington and Lee University, is also coming here for the banquet. George Barclay, head coach at W. & L., however, has sent regrets because of the fact that he has a speaking engagement at Beckley (W. Va.) High School.

Dr. George Simons, an alumnus of Fort Hill, will be the toastmaster.

Last year's Fort Hill eleven, coached by William P. Hahn was the first undefeated and untied football team in the history of the local school. Nine victories were registered by the Sentinels and the team closed the season with a string of 17 wins over two years.

Kluszewski, Stallcup Signed By Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 16 (INS) —First baseman Ted Kluszewski the Cincinnati Reds baseball team signed a 1951 contract today with The Cincinnati Reds baseball team for what officialls described as "a considerable boost in salary."

The 26-year-old Kluszewski batted .307 last season, hitting 25 homers and driving in 11 runs. He said he was "very happy" with his new contract.

Reds President Warren Giles also announced that Shortstops Virgil Stallcup and Roy McMillan had joined the fold.

Piedmont, Circleville Rack Up Victories

Keyser High School tied Petersburg for the runner-up spot in the Potomac Valley Conference last night by handing Ridgeley High's Blackhawks their first setback of the season in the 17-school cage circuit in a game played at Keyser before 450 spectators. The score was 67-51.

The triumph was Keyser's 5th against a single loss in the conference. Ridgeley now has a 3-1 record.

Keyser led at the quarters, 17-12, 27-23 and 51-35 and held a 21-point advantage in the final stanza when the count was 64-43, following a scoring spree that netted 11 consecutive tallies.

The teams were tied at 3-3, 5-5, 7-7 and Keyser took the lead at 11-10 on Porters fielder and was never headed.

Andrew Porter was the "big gun" for John Shelton's team with 11 field goals, six for six at the foul line and 28 points. Carl Hartman was the "whole show" for the Blackhawks with nine fielders and 22 markers.

Jackets Cop Seventh

Moorefield High stretched its winning streak to seven games in the conference by walloping Romney High's Pioneers by the score of 71-53 before the season's largest turnout at Moorefield.

Coach Johnny Paugh's Yellow Jackets, unbeaten in the P.V.C., led throughout, the scores being 23-14, 41-31 and 54-44.

Gene Baldwin topped the Moorefield offensive with 23 points, including 10 field goals. Bob Petry banged in 10 fielders and 22 points to pace Romney.

Romney High's girls defeated Moorefield in the prelim, 41-32. Sirk scored 15 points for Romney and Hedrick had 13 for the home team.

Piedmont Is Winner

Coach "Huck" Miers' Piedmont High Lions' cracked a six-game losing streak by sinking Elk Garden High on the Piedmont court by the score of 46-37.

Jimmie Bell played an outstanding game for the winners and chalked up 16 points to spark the offensive. Becker was Elk Garden's leading scorer with 11 tallies.

Piedmont held the long end of a 19-13 score at intermission.

Indians Top Franklin

Circleville's Indians upset Franklin High's Tigers at Circleville, 39-37.

The Tribe led at the half, 21-16, and at the close of the third period, 35-28

Bennett scored 17 points for Circleville while Wimer contributed 10 for the Panthers.

Opens Meeting Today

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 16 (AP)—Hialeah race course launches its 40-day midwinter meeting tomorrow with the $7,500 added inaugural Handicap split into two divisions.

Decision to run the six-furlong test in two sections was made today when 20 entries remained after scratches. Each division will carry the $7,500 added purse.

It is the first time since 1946 it has been necessary to run the sprint in two sections and the second time in the event's 21-year history.

Tropical Park Wagers Top 23 Million Mark

Grass Fire Scores In Final Feature

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 16 (AP) — Palatine Stable's Grass fire raced to his third straight triumph in the $5,000 Tropical Park today as the Gables Racing Association closed perhaps the most successful winter meeting in its history before a crowd of 10,452.

The gelded son of Firethorn-Hattie Kat overhauled Hampton Stable's Alerted in the final seventy yards of the six-furlong trip, clicking by a half-length. Irene Martin's Ogre was third, while George D. Widener's Platoon, launching his winter campaign, finished fourth before three other sophomores.

A. F. Plock's Valdor, the favorite, came out of the race nodding badly, which probably accounts for his disappointing effort. He was placed in third position to the turn, then dropped back when he went amiss in his front right foot.

Grass Fire, which completed a riding double for Joe Culmone, paid $10.60, $5.20 and $4.10 across the board. Under 114 pounds, he singed over the three-quarters in 1.12 1-5.

Grass Fire has won all three of his starts for Frank Rosen, owner of Palatine, since the Philadelphia sportsman claimed him for $10,000 on Dec. 29. This was Rosen's second victory of the day, having taken the sixth race through a disqualification with Delphy. Wolf Whistle was placed last after finishing first in this event for sharply impeding Mr. Ace in the stretch.

Unofficial totals show that the betting during Tropical's 41-day session will exceed $23,000,000, an increase of more than $5,000,000 over the play registered for the same number of days last winter.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (INS)—Nothing like a good hearty laugh to relieve tension in these troublesome times.

Wherefore, our thanks go forth to Frank Solomon of the Florida Boxing Commission who is worried because Omelio Agramonte, the Cuban canvass kisser, might permanently injure Joe Louis when they meet in Miami Feb. 7.

Can you tie that one? And can you top the consummate gall of the International Boxing Club in inflicting such a match on the long-suffering fight fans?

Mind you, this is the same Agramonte who absorbed such a thorough beating from one Clarence Henry in Madison Square Garden last Friday night.

Clarence even had Agramonte on the canvas in the first round and only the ringing of the bell at the count of five saved him.

Now we don't like to see a nice fellow like Solomon worrying himself sick over what Agramonte may do to poor Joe Louis and so we are going to let him and you in on a little secret.

A couple years ago in the course of one of Joe's exhibition tours he landed in Havana. Joe needed a party of the second part and Agramonte was duly elected.

But Agramonte was reluctant to take a chance even with the pillow-like exhibition gloves until assured by the Louis camp that Joe would go easy on him.

If you ever attended a sports event in Cuba you must have seen the natives bet. They will race up and down the grandstand at a baseball game shouting odds while waving dollar bills. They crowd around the ring at a fight doing the same thing.

Somehow the word got around among some of the Cubans that Agramonte was going to put Louis on the deck in their four round exhibition. Not knock Joe out, you understand merely knock him down.

Well, Joe went easy in the first round and so did Agramonte. But in the second Agramonte suddenly whipped over a hard right which caught the unsuspecting Louis on the whiskers.

Joe did not go down but he was rocked back on his heels. That punch made Joe mad and for the next two rounds he gave Agramonte a good shellacking even with the big gloves.

The other day we asked Louis to name his next opponent and he promptly said Agramonte. Then we asked Agramonte if he wanted to meet Louis and he replied, somewhat hesitatingly, "I hope so."

Next we asked Al Weill, matchmaker for the IBC, how he had the gall to make such a match and he told us the match was already in the bag before Agramonte was licked by Henry. He added:

"The match was made on a win or lose basis. Of course, if Henry had knocked out Agramonte we would have found somebody else."

So now you know how much Louis has to fear Agramonte and also what is wrong with the fight racket.

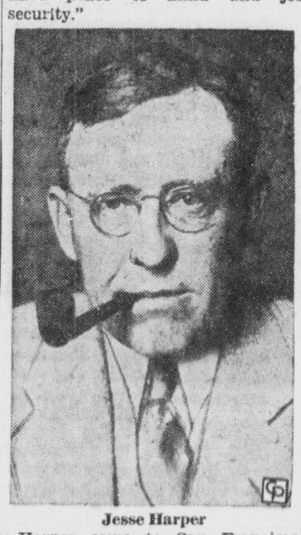
Ex-Irish Football Mentor Raps Grid Coaching Jobs

By FRED J. WALKER
Central Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO—Jesse Harper, whose 1913 Notre Dame football team started the Irish on the road to football greatness, feels sorry for present day coaches.

"The football situation today is ridiculous," said Harper. "Most coaches are up against pressure from alumni, students and any old grad who has lost a five dollar bet—to win, or else.

"I certainly wouldn't advise a young fellow to go in for coaching. Common sense would tell him to go in for something else if he would have peace of mind and job security."



Jesse Harper

Harper came to San Francisco from his large ranch at Sitka, Kan., to attend a national cattlemen's convention.

As football coach at Notre Dame from 1913 through 1917 Harper is credited with developing nationally-famous passing teams in a day when emphasis was on smashes at the line.

Harper's 1913 team, captained by the great Knute Rockne, stunned the nation's sports fans with its decisive 35-13 defeat of Army, then, as now, a recognized contender for top honors.

The passing combination of Gus Dorais to Rockne literally left Army flatfooted in one of the great upsets of that era.

Notre Dame then was relatively unknown in football and went to West Point for a guaranteed $1,000, paying its own traveling expenses.

"We took along only 18 players," recalled Harper. "To save money we left Cap Edwards, my assistant coach, at home.

"There was no paid gate to the game so the guarantee was all we got. We barely broke even, but there's no telling how much Notre Dame eventually profited from the victory.

"It spread the school's name throughout the country and the ultimate return probably would have to be estimated in the millions. Some say it stands as the most financially significant win in football history."

The 18-man squad that made the trip wasn't needed.

"Eleven men played the entire 60 minutes," chuckled Harper, "without taking a time out."

The famous Notre Dame shift as well as a devastating passing attack was introduced to the east in that game. The same shift, refined by the immortal "Rock," later became known as the "Rockne shift."

One of Harper's first moves when he reached San Francisco was to telephone Marchmont Schwartz, resigned head football coach at Stanford university. Harper went back to Notre Dame in 1931 for a two-year stint as athletic director. Schawartz was All-America halfback at Notre Dame in 1931.

"I told Marchie," said Harper, "that I'd known him for quite a spell and favorably, too, and that I thought he was getting smarter by giving up coaching.

"I told him I thought he'd made the right move and not to let them talk him into going back until it's all changed."

Harper, now a white-haired 67, said coaching in his day was a reasonably attractive occupation.

"Sure," he remarked, "they fired coaches from time to time but nothing like today when a coach is called a bum if he doesn't win 'em all."

Harper went to Notre Dame after playing football under Amos Alonzo Stagg at University of Chicago, and coaching five years at Wabash college.

In 1914 Harper made Rockne his assistant.

"It didn't require any mentality on my part," remarked Harper. "Rock was a standout in every way. Anyone could see he was marked for greatness.

Dorais, the other half of the great Notre Dame passing combination, also became a successful coach. He was in the game until three years ago when he left the Detroit Lions.

"Gus felt badly about leaving the Lions," continued Harper. "To him it was a personal tragedy, no doubt, but it turned out to be a blessing.

"He went into the automobile business in Wabash and recently he told me how happy he was and what a fool he'd been to take all of those headaches.

"Marchie Schwartz will be saying the same thing. Football coaching today is just no good."

Tropical Park Wagers Top 23 Million Mark

Grass Fire Scores In Final Feature

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 16 (AP) — Palatine Stable's Grass fire raced to his third straight triumph in the $5,000 Tropical Park today as the Gables Racing Association closed perhaps the most successful winter meeting in its history before a crowd of 10,452.

The gelded son of Firethorn-Hattie Kat overhauled Hampton Stable's Alerted in the final seventy yards of the six-furlong trip, clicking by a half-length. Irene Martin's Ogre was third, while George D. Widener's Platoon, launching his winter campaign, finished fourth before three other sophomores.

A. F. Plock's Valdor, the favorite, came out of the race nodding badly, which probably accounts for his disappointing effort. He was placed in third position to the turn, then dropped back when he went amiss in his front right foot.

Grass Fire, which completed a riding double for Joe Culmone, paid $10.60, $5.20 and $4.10 across the board. Under 114 pounds, he singed over the three-quarters in 1.12 1-5.

Grass Fire has won all three of his starts for Frank Rosen, owner of Palatine, since the Philadelphia sportsman claimed him for $10,000 on Dec. 29. This was Rosen's second victory of the day, having taken the sixth race through a disqualification with Delphy. Wolf Whistle was placed last after finishing first in this event for sharply impeding Mr. Ace in the stretch.

Unofficial totals show that the betting during Tropical's 41-day session will exceed $23,000,000, an increase of more than $5,000,000 over the play registered for the same number of days last winter.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (INS)—Nothing like a good hearty laugh to relieve tension in these troublesome times.

Wherefore, our thanks go forth to Frank Solomon of the Florida Boxing Commission who is worried because Omelio Agramonte, the Cuban canvass kisser, might permanently injure Joe Louis when they meet in Miami Feb. 7.

Can you tie that one? And can you top the consummate gall of the International Boxing Club in inflicting such a match on the long-suffering fight fans?

Mind you, this is the same Agramonte who absorbed such a thorough beating from one Clarence Henry in Madison Square Garden last Friday night.

Clarence even had Agramonte on the canvas in the first round and only the ringing of the bell at the count of five saved him.

Now we don't like to see a nice fellow like Solomon worrying himself sick over what Agramonte may do to poor Joe Louis and so we are going to let him and you in on a little secret.

A couple years ago in the course of one of Joe's exhibition tours he landed in Havana. Joe needed a party of the second part and Agramonte was duly elected.

But Agramonte was reluctant to take a chance even with the pillow-like exhibition gloves until assured by the Louis camp that Joe would go easy on him.

If you ever attended a sports event in Cuba you must have seen the natives bet. They will race up and down the grandstand at a baseball game shouting odds while waving dollar bills. They crowd around the ring at a fight doing the same thing.

Somehow the word got around among some of the Cubans that Agramonte was going to put Louis on the deck in their four round exhibition. Not knock Joe out, you understand merely knock him down.

Well, Joe went easy in the first round and so did Agramonte. But in the second Agramonte suddenly whipped over a hard right which caught the unsuspecting Louis on the whiskers.

Joe did not go down but he was rocked back on his heels. That punch made Joe mad and for the next two rounds he gave Agramonte a good shellacking even with the big gloves.

The other day we asked Louis to name his next opponent and he promptly said Agramonte. Then we asked Agramonte if he wanted to meet Louis and he replied, somewhat hesitatingly, "I hope so."

Next we asked Al Weill, matchmaker for the IBC, how he had the gall to make such a match and he told us the match was already in the bag before Agramonte was licked by Henry. He added:

"The match was made on a win or lose basis. Of course, if Henry had knocked out Agramonte we would have found somebody else."

So now you know how much Louis has to fear Agramonte and also what is wrong with the fight racket.

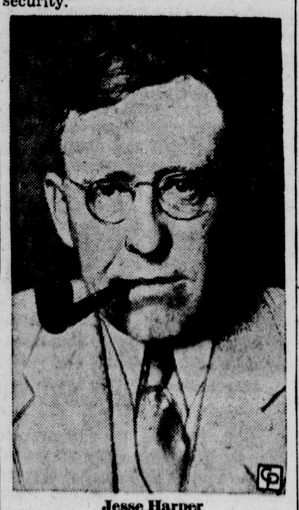
Ex-Irish Football Mentor Raps Grid Coaching Jobs

By FRED J. WALKER
Central Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO—Jesse Harper, whose 1913 Notre Dame football team started the Irish on the road to football greatness, feels sorry for present day coaches.

"The football situation today is ridiculous," said Harper. "Most coaches are up against pressure from alumni, students and any old grad who has lost a five dollar bet—to win, or else.

"I certainly wouldn't advise a young fellow to go in for coaching. Common sense would tell him to go in for something else if he would have peace of mind and job security."



Jesse Harper

Harper came to San Francisco from his large ranch at Sitka, Kan., to attend a national cattlemen's convention.

As football coach at Notre Dame from 1913 through 1917 Harper is credited with developing nationally-famous passing teams in a day when emphasis was on smashes at the line.

Harper's 1913 team, captained by the great Knute Rockne, stunned the nation's sports fans with its decisive 35-13 defeat of Army, then, as now, a recognized contender for top honors.

The passing combination of Gus Dorais to Rockne literally left Army flatfooted in one of the great upsets of that era.

Notre Dame then was relatively unknown in football and went to West Point for a guaranteed $1,000, paying its own traveling expenses.

"We took along only 18 players," recalled Harper. "To save money we left Cap Edwards, my assistant coach, at home.

"There was no paid gate to the game so the guarantee was all we got. We barely broke even, but there's no telling how much Notre Dame eventually profited from the victory.

"It spread the school's name throughout the country and the ultimate return probably would have to be estimated in the millions. Some say it stands as the most financially significant win in football history."

The 18-man squad that made the trip wasn't needed.

"Eleven men played the entire 60 minutes," chuckled Harper, "without taking a time out."

The famous Notre Dame shift as well as a devastating passing attack was introduced to the east in that game. The same shift, refined by the immortal "Rock," later became known as the "Rockne shift."

One of Harper's first moves when he reached San Francisco was to telephone Marchmont Schwartz, resigned head football coach at Stanford university. Harper went back to Notre Dame in 1931 for a two-year stint as athletic director. Schawartz was All-America halfback at Notre Dame in 1931.

"I told Marchie," said Harper, "that I'd known him for quite a spell and favorably, too, and that I thought he was getting smarter by giving up coaching.

"I told him I thought he'd made the right move and not to let them talk him into going back until it's all changed."

Harper, now a white-haired 67, said coaching in his day was a reasonably attractive occupation.

"Sure," he remarked, "they fired coaches from time to time but nothing like today when a coach is called a bum if he doesn't win 'em all."

Harper went to Notre Dame after playing football under Amos Alonzo Stagg at University of Chicago, and coaching five years at Wabash college.

In 1914 Harper made Rockne his assistant.

"It didn't require any mentality on my part," remarked Harper. "Rock was a standout in every way. Anyone could see he was marked for greatness.

Dorais, the other half of the great Notre Dame passing combination, also became a successful coach. He was in the game until three years ago when he left the Detroit Lions.

"Gus felt badly about leaving the Lions," continued Harper. "To him it was a personal tragedy, no doubt, but it turned out to be a blessing.

"He went into the automobile business in Wabash and recently he told me how happy he was and what a fool he'd been to take all of those headaches.

"Marchie Schwartz will be saying the same thing. Football coaching today is just no good."

Piedmont City Employes Get Pay Increase

Boost Of $10 Given To Salaried Workers

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—Wages of Piedmont city employees were ordered raised, effective January 1, at the regular meeting of Mayor Harold Fredlock and the City Council Monday. Salaried workers will receive a $10 boost per month and hourly workers an increase of five cents an hour.

The owner of the land where the Piedmont disposes of its garbage appeared before the city officials requesting the lease be renewed for a year at the same rate as at present and to reserve the right to salvage all refuse placed there.

It was ordered the lease be renewed as requested as the present lease expires in March.

Thomas Walsh, police officer, discussed parking problems at the meeting and it was ordered that owners of any vehicle parked in meter violation may report to the city clerk's office within one hour after tag has been placed and place five cents in the parking meter installed there. The rate goes up after two hours to 10 cents and after that the present fine of $1. The deposit may be taken to the police station if the clerk's office is closed.

Keyser To Mark Day Of Prayer

KEYSER, W. Va. — The World Day of Prayer will be marked Friday, February 9, at 2:30 p. m. in the Presbyterian Church. The day is sponsored by the Keyser Council of United Council of Church Women in conjunction with other Christian groups all over the world. The purpose is to unite Christians around the world in prayer.

This year the basic service was written by Christian women of Germany.

The offerings taken at this service are divided into two groups, one to the home missions which include the American Indians, the sharecroppers and the migrants; the other half is given to the Foreign Missions Conference of North America to be allocated for work in America and abroad.

Mrs. Charles Steiding is general chairman of the service in Keyser. Mrs. Charles Ludwick is president of the council. Mrs. Alice White, English teacher at Keyser High School, will direct the program at the school, while Mrs. Frances Hartman will have charge of the program for school children to be held at Grace Methodist Church. Miss Madalyn Bazzle, principal of Limestone school, will have charge of the program there.

GETS NEW WINDOWS—New stained glass windows are adding beauty to the Welsh Memorial Baptist Church in Frostburg. The new windows were a project of the church's Pioneer Club. They cost $140.

Stained Glass Windows Beautify Frostburg Church

FROSTBURG—A project of the Pioneer Class of Welsh Baptist Memorial Church, the installation of stained glass windows to add beauty to the interior, is nearing completion.

Twelve windows have been installed by R. L. Robyler of the Art Glass Company, Cresap Park, with the result that church interior presents an impressive appearance that was lacking with the older type windows.

The windows were purchased at $140 each, with the Pioneer Class paying one half the cost and the other half paid by individuals or families.

Sponsors of the windows, besides the Ladies Aid Society and the Pioneer Class, are: Mr. and Mrs. George McLuckie and family, the family of the late David and Jemima Williams, the family of the late John and Sarah Lindsay, Mrs. John Edmund Davies in memory of her husband, Margaret Walsh and Howard Hanna, Mr. and Mrs. David Jenkins and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Beach in memory of their daughter, Norma, the Hughes family in memory of the late Griffith and Ann Hughes, Mrs. Edward Davis and family and Mrs. Jonathan Jenkins, in Baltimore, in memory of her husband and an additional window purchased by Mrs. Jenkins.

Each window is decorated with a different religious symbolic design, such as an open Bible, cross, crown, dove and others.

Plans are being made to dedicate the windows at a special service to be held in the near future. Rev. Karl Kauffman is the present pastor of the church, which is located on the corner of Beall and Charles Street.

Keyser's Irate Mayor Leaves Council Session

Freeland Refuses To Make Apology

KEYSER, W. Va.—It was a stormy session that the Mayor and City Council held here yesterday afternoon, closing with Mayor John C. Freeland withdrawing from the meeting, after an argument over claims of three citizens of Keyser, made to Councilman Elmer Hartman, that the Mayor had publicly insulted Dyke Shaffer, a B & O. railroad company employee.

Hartman named those who claimed to have witnessed an altercation between the mayor and Shaffer and the mayor denied that he had said things charged to him.

Council took the view that a letter of apology should be sent to Shaffer by council, but the mayor said he would have no part in the matter as he refused to apologize to him. At this point he put on his hat and coat and walked out, leaving a vacant chair. As he left, he turned to Hartman and said "I turn the meeting over to you and you may act as mayor."

The meeting was continued until adjournment with Councilman Hartman in the Mayor's place.

City Employes At Keyser Ask Wage Increase

Action Taken On Ice, Excavations

KEYSER, W. Va.—Mayor John C. Freeland and the Council yesterday received a communication from city employes, exclusive of council and clerk's office, asking for an increase in pay due to the rising cost of living.

The council turned the communication over to the financial committee to investigate and see how far the city can go in the matter and to report back at the next meeting.

The Council acted yesterday to clear up difficulties experienced in the past of having snow and ice left on sidewalks and street crossings, and served notice that all who make excavations in sidewalks or streets will suffer heavy penalties.

The city clerk was instructed to notify the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company to close several excavations in streets and sidewalks, especially the one on the "Hill" at the head of South Main Street, that has been left open since before the first snow fall.

The city governing body adopted a resolution in a motion that a patrol system will be used in the future with the City Street supervisor William Kesner, making a check following each snow storm, and report back to the council.

However he was given instructions to see that street and alley intersections are cleared of snow within the 12-hour period following a snow, and the sidewalks, which are the responsibility of property owners or tennants, must be cleaned by themselves or have them cleaned or the city will take over.

Mineral Grand Jury Returns Six True Bills

Alleged Taxi Theft Among Court Cases

KEYSER, W. Va.—Six true bills were returned by the Mineral County grand jury yesterday in opening the January term of Circuit Court.

Five of the true bills are felonies and the other is a misdemeanor count. Two others, one felony and one misdemeanor, were returned as not true bills.

Calvin A. Landis was indicted on a charge of theft of a taxi from Mac's Taxi Stand, operated by John McDonald, on Armstrong Street.

Robert P. Viney and Ira M. Davey were jointly indicted on a charge of theft of a gun valued at $68, the property of Haven Martin, while the gun was in possession of Eston McAvoy.

James E. Barkley, Ernest G. Ashenfelter, Charles Hardy and Walter W. Martz, were jointly indicted for a felony on a charge of breaking and entering a store owned by Jesse Johnson and operated by Austin Judy. The four persons indicted are youths of Wiley Ford. Two true bills were returned against the four youths.

Harry F. Fertig was indicted on a charge of removing a car encumbered with a lien of a conditional sale, from Mineral county. The car was purchased from Robert E. Smith in April, 1949. Fertig was returned here on a warrant issued by the county several months ago.

A misdemeanor indictment was returned against Luther T. Cook and Donald A. Marke, charged with contributing to the delinquency of a 13-year-old Mineral county girl.

The grand jury, headed by John E. Umstot, as foreman, also includes James W. Carskadon, Jr., E. Wayne Miller, G. B. Shank, Edgar Landis, Russell C. Ross, Louis Grant, Arthur Jones, A. R. Evans Leo Ellifritz, S. K. Mountford, Russell Kitzmiller, C. B. Hott, John K. Williamson, James Peters and Raymond Murray.

Pioneer Club To Give Play

FROSTBURG—Meeting Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Mary Reidler, Mt. Pleasant Street, with Mrs. Helen Harvey, as co-hostess, the Pioneer Club of Welsh Memorial Church completed arangements for the presentation of a comedy drama, "The Old Fashioned School," to be held Friday evening, February 2, at 8 o'clock, in the recreation room of the church.

Following the play, there will be a sale of refreshments, with proceeds added to the church improvement fund.

Piedmont City Employes Get Pay Increase

Boost Of $10 Given To Salaried Workers

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—Wages of Piedmont city employees were ordered raised, effective January 1, at the regular meeting of Mayor Harold Fredlock and the City Council Monday. Salaried workers will receive a $10 boost per month and hourly workers an increase of five cents an hour.

The owner of the land where the Piedmont disposes of its garbage appeared before the city officials requesting the lease be renewed for a year at the same rate as at present and to reserve the right to salvage all refuse placed there.

It was ordered the lease be renewed as requested as the present lease expires in March.

Thomas Walsh, police officer, discussed parking problems at the meeting and it was ordered that owners of any vehicle parked in meter violation may report to the city clerk's office within one hour after tag has been placed and place five cents in the parking meter installed there. The rate goes up after two hours to 10 cents and after that the present fine of $1. The deposit may be taken to the police station if the clerk's office is closed.

Keyser To Mark Day Of Prayer

KEYSER, W. Va. — The World Day of Prayer will be marked Friday, February 9, at 2:30 p. m. in the Presbyterian Church. The day is sponsored by the Keyser Council of United Council of Church Women in conjunction with other Christian groups all over the world. The purpose is to unite Christians around the world in prayer.

This year the basic service was written by Christian women of Germany.

The offerings taken at this service are divided into two groups, one to the home missions which include the American Indians, the sharecroppers and the migrants; the other half is given to the Foreign Missions Conference of North America to be allocated for work in America and abroad.

Mrs. Charles Steiding is general chairman of the service in Keyser. Mrs. Charles Ludwick is president of the council. Mrs. Alice White, English teacher at Keyser High School, will direct the program at the school, while Mrs. Frances Hartman will have charge of the program for school children to be held at Grace Methodist Church. Miss Madalyn Bazzle, principal of Limestone school, will have charge of the program there.

GETS NEW WINDOWS—New stained glass windows are adding beauty to the Welsh Memorial Baptist Church in Frostburg. The new windows were a project of the church's Pioneer Club. They cost $140.

Stained Glass Windows Beautify Frostburg Church

FROSTBURG—A project of the Pioneer Class of Welsh Baptist Memorial Church, the installation of stained glass windows to add beauty to the interior, is nearing completion.

Twelve windows have been installed by R. L. Robyler of the Art Glass Company, Cresap Park, with the result that church interior presents an impressive appearance that was lacking with the older type windows.

The windows were purchased at $140 each, with the Pioneer Class paying one half the cost and the other half paid by individuals or families.

Sponsors of the windows, besides the Ladies Aid Society and the Pioneer Class, are: Mr. and Mrs. George McLuckie and family, the family of the late David and Jemima Williams, the family of the late John and Sarah Lindsay, Mrs. John Edmund Davies in memory of her husband, Margaret Walsh and Howard Hanna, Mr. and Mrs. David Jenkins and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Beach in memory of their daughter, Norma, the Hughes family in memory of the late Griffith and Ann Hughes, Mrs. Edward Davis and family and Mrs. Jonathan Jenkins, in Baltimore, in memory of her husband and an additional window purchased by Mrs. Jenkins.

Each window is decorated with a different religious symbolic design, such as an open Bible, cross, crown, dove and others.

Plans are being made to dedicate the windows at a special service to be held in the near future. Rev. Karl Kauffman is the present pastor of the church, which is located on the corner of Beall and Charles Street.

Keyser's Irate Mayor Leaves Council Session

Freeland Refuses To Make Apology

KEYSER, W. Va.—It was a stormy session that the Mayor and City Council held here yesterday afternoon, closing with Mayor John C. Freeland withdrawing from the meeting, after an argument over claims of three citizens of Keyser, made to Councilman Elmer Hartman, that the Mayor had publicly insulted Dyke Shaffer, a B & O. railroad company employee.

Hartman named those who claimed to have witnessed an altercation between the mayor and Shaffer and the mayor denied that he had said things charged to him.

Council took the view that a letter of apology should be sent to Shaffer by council, but the mayor said he would have no part in the matter as he refused to apologize to him. At this point he put on his hat and coat and walked out, leaving a vacant chair. As he left, he turned to Hartman and said "I turn the meeting over to you and you may act as mayor."

The meeting was continued until adjournment with Councilman Hartman in the Mayor's place.

City Employes At Keyser Ask Wage Increase

Action Taken On Ice, Excavations

KEYSER, W. Va.—Mayor John C. Freeland and the Council yesterday received a communication from city employes, exclusive of council and clerk's office, asking for an increase in pay due to the rising cost of living.

The council turned the communication over to the financial committee to investigate and see how far the city can go in the matter and to report back at the next meeting.

The Council acted yesterday to clear up difficulties experienced in the past of having snow and ice left on sidewalks and street crossings, and served notice that all who make excavations in sidewalks or streets will suffer heavy penalties.

The city clerk was instructed to notify the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company to close several excavations in streets and sidewalks, especially the one on the "Hill" at the head of South Main Street, that has been left open since before the first snow fall.

The city governing body adopted a resolution in a motion that a patrol system will be used in the future with the City Street supervisor William Kesner, making a check following each snow storm, and report back to the council.

However he was given instructions to see that street and alley intersections are cleared of snow within the 12-hour period following a snow, and the sidewalks, which are the responsibility of property owners or tennants, must be cleaned by themselves or have them cleaned or the city will take over.

Midland Women Organize Rod And Gun Club

Auxiliary Elects; Charter Is Open

FROSTBURG — Meeting recently at the home of Mrs. Hilda McGowan, Midland, for the purpose of organizing the Women's Groundhog Rod and Gun Club as an auxiliary of the Men's Sportsmen's Organization of Midland, Mesdames Pearl Alexander, Mae George, Juanita George, Hilda McGowan, Helen Hughes, Ruth Robertson, Betsy Fatkin and Miss Rena Gray, instituted the club by electing officers and drafting a tentative constitution and by-laws.

Officers chosen were Mae George, president; Ruth Robertson, vice president; Hilda McGowan, recording secretary; Juanita George, financial secretary, and Pearl Alexander, chaplain.

Mrs. Betsy Fatkin was named general chairman of all committees.

The members who instituted the club decided to hold the charter open for 60 days during which time interested women will be privileged to join the group.

The purpose of the club is to assist the Midland Sportsmen's Association in promoting the social activities of the group and lending a helping hand in arousing interest in the wild life programs of the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission.

A special meeting of the new club will be held Wednesday evening, January 24, 7:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Juanita George. Thereafter the group will meet regularly the second Wednesday of each month.

Barton Girl Recent Bride

BARTON — Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Mary Angela Winkler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Winkler, Barton, to Cpl. John D. Ritchie, son of Mr. and Mrs. David W. Ritchie, Lonaconing.

The ceremony was performed New Year's night in the Presbyterian manse by Rev. Chalmers Goshorn, pastor of the Presbyterian Church.

Miss Mary Jane MacDonald, Cumberland, served as bridesmaid and David Lee Ritchie, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

The bride, a 1949 graduate of Barton High Schol, was attired in a blue velvet dress with lace yoke and wore navy blue accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The bridesmaid chose a wine brocade dress with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Cpl. Ritchie, a graduate of Central High School, class of 1948, is with the U. S. Air Force and is stationed at the Pentagon in Washington.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom. A three tiered wedding cake centered the refreshment table. Assisting his mother in serving were Mrs. James Howard, Mrs. Harland Ritter, Mrs. James Mitchell and Mrs. James Burke, all aunts of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Mildred Bradley.

Piggie Gets Lost Going To Market

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (AP)—This not-so-little piggie apparently got lost on the way to market. And, though in the prime of life, it appears she'll wind up on the farm of the home for the aged and infirm.

The sow is at the Bourbon livestock yards market here. She's eating them out of house and home. Despite prices pork is bringing, they can't sell her. They don't know her owner.

Policemen found her, wandering the streets during the noon hour traffic not far from the stockyards. They took her there.

"We can't impose on the stockyards' hospitality much longer," said Police Chief Carl Heustis as efforts to find piggie's owner remained fruitless.

"If her owner doesn't call for her we'll give her to the welfare department for the home for the aged. They raise pigs on the farm. Piggie, I understand, is going to have little pigs."

But Gen. Mgr. George Tomes of the stockyards said he believes piggie, a black and white 200-pounder, became a mother recently and the little ones are at her former home.

"She just eats and rests and eats some more," said the manager. It's not that he begrudges her a few bushels of corn—"a pig has got to live but she's a little irritable."

The only reptile native to Ireland is a type of lizard.

Use of a special type window glass, known as Golden Plate, will reduce fading of fine rugs and other materials which are subject to the sun's rays in the home. The glass, developed by Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Company, cuts down the ultra-violet rays which cause fading.

Horses were unknown on this continent until the coming of Europeans.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 16. (INS)—There has been almost as much talk about Jose Ferrer's future Hollywood plans as there are polls about this-and-that these past weeks.

Now, I can tell you this morning that Jose has just signed a contract with William Perlberg and George Seaton to star in "Anything Can Happen," the George Papafhvily comedy.

Jose Ferrer

Jose, who looms up as a strong contender for male Oscar honors for his performance in "Cyrano de Bergerac," plays a Georgian immigrant who has trouble getting his U. S. citizenship papers—all comedy, of course.

This will be the third picture on the Perlberg-Seaton schedule following "Rhubarb" and "Aaron Slick from Pumpkin Creek"—so Jose must be coming back here right away.

Stanley Kramer not only did himself some big business when he bought "Death of a Salesman" and "Happy Time," he also has the inside on "Member of the Wedding," another top Broadway play.

I met Stanley in Chicago with George Glass on their way back from New York and, at that time, the deal for "Salesman" and "Happy Time" had not yet been closed. But, over the weekend, the sales went through on a cash and percentage basis.

Arthur Miller, author of "Death of a Salesman," who had planned to make the picture, himself, was influenced by Kramer's past screen successes such as "Champion," "Home of the Brave," "Cyrano", etc., in selling Stan his play.

• — • — •

Sir Laurence Olivier will receive an offer from Evan Frankle, producer of the film version of "The Medium," to star in a movie version of "King Lear." I'd say off hand that Frankie will get a big refusal.

Larry told me when he was here that there were no more Shakespearean plays that he wanted to do. He said he would like to do a Shakespearean comedy, but there none he felt were right for him.

Louis Calhern's tremendous hit as King Lear has put a new interest into that particular Shakespearean classic, because heretofore it has not been considered particularly good for the stage or screen. However, even that will not influence Larry—at least in my opinion. I could be wrong, I have been before.

• — • — •

Several weeks ago I told you that Joe DiMaggio and Dorothy Arnold were on the verge of a reconciliation and I suppose it's official now—or what do you make of this, Watson?

When Lou Costello started work on "The Real McCoy" on Monday—there was a big magnum of brandy from his pal, Joe, wishing him good luck on the picture.

And the card was signed, "Dorothy, Joe and Joe Jr."

If that isn't a reconciliation—it's awfully close.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

The pretty blonde with Jack Dempsey one, two, three nights at the Wilshire Seacombers was Marie Ainslee.

Rise Stevens, whose eye was so badly cut by a broken champagne glass in a scene on the stage at the opera, has been told not to use that eye for a week.

George Jessel met Garbo for the first time when Harry Crocker introduced them. George was so entranced with her, he at once started talking a movie. I ran into Greta in a doctor's office and she seemed less shy than when I had previously seen her.

Rodgers and Hammerstein would like to get Doris Day to replace Mary Martin in "South Pacific." Well, who wouldn't like to have Doris in a musical? The signing of George Sanders for the Ezio Pinza role, starting June 1, started quite a ripple of talk. George is a good actor as his performance in "All About Eve" proves.

That's all today.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Where Do We Go From Here?

ABC IS RAPIDLY running out of television comedians. When you get down to Abbott & Costello which NBC recently did on its Colgate Comedy Hour, you are getting pretty close to bedrock; they'll have to drill some place else pretty soon. Abbott & Costello are not the oldest comics around but their material is old enough to be tinged with history.

John Crosby

On their television show, for example, they opened with that nonsequitur routine: "Suppose you're at Grand Central depot. You're buying a ticket. Where are you going?"—"I dunno."—"Well, what are you doing there?" My favorite historian, Fred Allen, said the nonsequitur routine was originally developed by Moss & Frye way, way back; it was later brought to a high polish by Moran and Mack about 25 years ago. The Marx Brothers used to be experts at it in their movies.

• — • — •

Later the two zanies went into their shell game act played with lemons: "Have you got two tens for a five?" You must have seen that somewhere or else you've stayed awfully close to home. And these days even that isn't much protection. This is a real comic masterpiece right out of the east wing of the museum and I have no objection to it being displayed from time to time anywhere than I object to the revival of Shakespeare. But where you could enjoy it once a year in burlesque, you are going to get pretty tired of it once a month on television.

Naturally, no Abbott & Costello show would be complete without the Dr. Abbott Sanitorium sketch where Costello goes to get peace and quiet and finds nothing but utter pandemonium. It's an old, old burlesque sketch but it's good enough to get into Broadway revues from time to time. Jack Haley did it years ago in something or other. More recently he did a modified version of the same thing in "Inside U.S.A."

Not long ago, Danny Thomas revived the ancient sport of analyzing songs. You take a song like "Give Me a Home Where the Buffalo Roam," break off in the middle with some remark like: "Now isn't that ridiculous? Who wants Buffalo roaming through the living room." Most any popular song is susceptible to ridicule of that sort. Historian Allen — not Frederick Lewis, just plain Fred — tells me that routine was originated by Clinton Crawford, a comic from overseas, many, many years ago. Later Frank Fay did it in vaudeville for years. Abe Burrows' song parodies — "The Girl With The Three Blue Eyes" — are really a refinement of the same thing.

"Every generation rediscovers the comedy routines of the generation ahead of it," says Allen. That's a normal, probably healthy rebirth provided its confined to a generation ahead of it," says Allen. That's a normal, probably healthy rebirth provided its confined to a generation. I'm not sure the television viewer will be especially happy to rediscover the same comedy routines every week.

The shortage of comedy and of comedians is going to become really acute next year. This was the year when all the major comics — except Bing Crosby who isn't essentially a comedian — got into television. As I say, when you hit Abbott & Costello, you are pretty well at the bottom of the barrel. Each comedian has recklessly torn through material which kept him alive for years. Jimmy Durante has pretty well burned up 27 years worth of his best stuff in three television appearances.

Where do we go from here? It's Allen's theory, a novel one, that Ed Sullivan has found the secret of perpetual motion in television. "He has no talent. He points at people. You could get a dog to do that by rubbing meat on the actors. But he has stumbled on something — simplicity." Along with simplicity he fears there will be a relaxation of every standard of show business to the point where there won't be any standards at all. Talent will be replaced by pure, distilled personality. You'll just look at them; you won't expect them to do anything.

"And people will accept it," says Mr. Allen. "People accept Wednesday because it comes up every week. People accept Godfrey for the same reason."

"The Authority on Authorities"

CANCEL YOUR BIG CARDS

AS YOU re-value your hand as one bid after another is made around the table, you sometimes wind up in a situation which impels you to do what amounts to canceling the trick-taking value of your best-looking cards. That operation should often be performed when the opponents have bid a couple of suits and your partner had bid the other two. If they were the side that opened the bidding, it is extremely likely that your partner's action was based mainly on extreme distribution. In that case, not only may you find his high cards useless on defense, but the same may be true of yours.

	♠ K 4 ♥ A 10 2 ♦ 6 3 ♣ A Q J 5 4 3
♠ A 8 ♥ 7 6 5 4 3 ♦ Q 9 7 ♣ K 10 9	N W E S	♠ Q J 10 9 7 3 ♥ None ♦ K J 10 8 5 2 ♣ 7
	♠ 6 5 2 ♥ K Q J 9 8 ♦ A 4 ♣ 8 6 2

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♥	Pass
3 ♣	3 ♦	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Dbl

West was the one who raised a ruction after South made that doubled contract with two overtricks. Perhaps he was making what seemed like an attack on his partner's judgment, whereas really his action was what might be called a "defensive attack" to make sure East did not impugn him.

"Here I had a hand of average strength containing one ace, one king and one queen," said West, "plus five cards of their trump suit, and I had a partner who was strong enough to bid two suits, one of them at the height of three. Certainly I expected to beat their contract. You are the one who knew about your freakish and weak hand, so you should have taken my double out to 4-Spades."

East calmly pointed out that West could count South as having five trumps from his rebid, and North the remaining three from his eventual support, naturally including all trumps higher than West's. Also North's two bids of clubs rendered West's K of that suit null and void, where it could be finessed. East felt that West knew all about the kind of hand opposite him, and so decided to leave the double in. Perhaps both were to blame, but not too badly since the opponents could have bid small slam and made it.

	♠ None ♥ A K Q 8 5 ♦ A Q ♣ Q J 9 7 6 3

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

How should South play for his 5-Clubs after West leads the diamond J?

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Where Do We Go From Here?

ABC IS RAPIDLY running out of television comedians. When you get down to Abbott & Costello which NBC recently did on its Colgate Comedy Hour, you are getting pretty close to bedrock; they'll have to drill some place else pretty soon. Abbott & Costello are not the oldest comics around but their material is old enough to be tinged with history.

John Crosby

On their television show, for example, they opened with that non-sequitur routine: "Suppose you're at Grand Central depot. You're buying a ticket. Where are you going?"—"I dunno."—"Well, what are you doing there?" My favorite historian, Fred Allen, said the non-sequitur routine was originally developed by Moss & Frye way, way back; it was later brought to a high polish by Moran and Mack about 25 years ago. The Marx Brothers used to be experts at it in their movies.

• — • — •

Later the two zanies went into their shell game act played with lemons: "Have you got two tens for a five?" You must have seen that somewhere or else you've stayed awfully close to home. And these days even that isn't much protection. This is a real comic masterpiece right out of the east wing of the museum and I have no objection to it being displayed from time to time anywhere than I object to the revival of Shakespeare. But where you could enjoy it once a year in burlesque, you are going to get pretty tired of it once a month on television.

Naturally, no Abbott & Costello show would be complete without the Dr. Abbott Sanitorium sketch where Costello goes to get peace and quiet and finds nothing but utter pandemonium. It's an old, old burlesque sketch but it's good enough to get into Broadway revues from time to time. Jack Haley did it years ago in something or other. Historian Allen — not Frederick Lewis, just plain Fred — tells me that routine was originated by Clinton Crawford, a comic from overseas, many, many years ago. Later Frank Fay did it in vaudeville for years. Abe Burrows' song parodies — "The Girl With The Three Blue Eyes" — are really a refinement of the same thing.

"Every generation rediscovers the comedy routines of the generation ahead of it," says Allen. That's a normal, probably healthy rebirth provided its confined to a generation ahead of it," says Allen. That's a normal, probably healthy rebirth provided its confined to a generation. I'm not sure the television viewer will be especially happy to rediscover the same comedy routines every week.

The shortage of comedy and of comedians is going to become really acute next year. "And people will accept it," says Mr. Allen. "People accept Wednesday because it comes up every week. People accept Godfrey for the same reason."

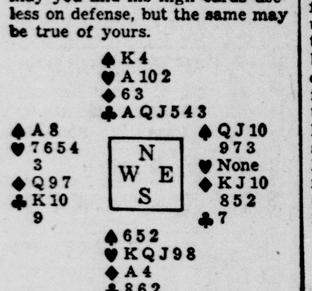
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

CANCEL YOUR BIG CARDS

AS YOU re-value your hand as one bid after another is made around the table, you sometimes wind up in a situation which impels you to do what amounts to canceling the trick-taking value of your best-looking cards. That operation should often be performed when the opponents have bid a couple of suits and your partner had bid the other two. If they were the side that opened the bidding, it is extremely likely that your partner's action was based mainly on extreme distribution. In that case, not only may you find his high cards useless on defense, but the same may be true of yours.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♥	Pass
3 ♣	3 ♦	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Dbl

West was the one who raised a ruction after South made that doubled contract with two overtricks. Perhaps he was making what seemed like an attack on his partner's judgment, whereas really his action was what might be called a "defensive attack" to make sure East did not impugn him.

"Here I had a hand of average strength containing one ace, one king and one queen," said West, "plus five cards of their trump suit, and I had a partner who was strong enough to bid two suits, one of them at the height of three. Certainly I expected to beat their contract. You are the one who knew about your freakish and weak hand, so you should have taken my double out to 4-Spades."

East calmly pointed out that West could count South as having five trumps from his rebid, and North the remaining three from his eventual support, naturally including all trumps higher than West's. Also North's two bids of clubs rendered West's K of that suit null and void, where it could be finessed. East felt that West knew all about the kind of hand opposite him, and so decided to leave the double in. Perhaps both were to blame, but not too badly since the opponents could have bid small slam and made it.

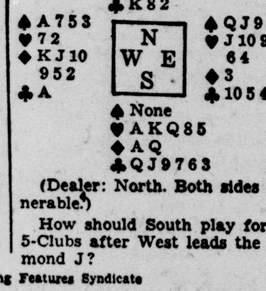
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

How should South play for his 5-Clubs after West leads the diamond J?

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X E
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Cards of Thanks

We wish to thank our neighbors, friends and relatives for their sympathy and helpfulness following the sudden loss of our beloved husband and father, Francis Jerome Brailer. We also wish to thank Rev. Father Smith, those who loaned cars and those who sent floral tributes, cards of sympathy, and helped in any way to lighten our burden.
Mrs. Alma M. Brailer and Family
Mt. Savage, Md.

We are taking this means to thank our friends and neighbors for the kindness extended to us during the illness and following the death of Larry Albanese, Sr., Piedmont. We also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes, cards and donated the use of their automobiles for the funeral.
Albanese and Mayolo Family

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, Wilbur I. Tysinger, who died two years ago today, January 17th, 1949.
Your memory is as dear today,
As in the hour you passed away,
To have to hold and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of our hearts,
Although your soul is now at rest,
And free from care and pain;
This world would seem like Heaven
If we had you back again.
Sadly missed by Children
and Grandchildren

Cards of Thanks

We wish to thank our neighbors, friends and relatives for their sympathy and helpfulness following the sudden loss of our beloved husband and father, Francis Jerome Brailer. We also wish to thank Rev. Father Smith, those who loaned cars and those who sent floral tributes, cards of sympathy, and helped in any way to lighten our burden.
Mrs. Alma M. Brailer and Family
Mt. Savage, Md.

We are taking this means to thank our friends and neighbors for the kindness extended to us during the illness and following the death of Larry Albanese, Sr., Piedmont. We also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes, cards and donated the use of their automobiles for the funeral.
Albanese and Mayolo Family

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, Wilbur I. Tysinger, who died two years ago today, January 17th, 1949.
Your memory is as dear today,
As in the hour you passed away,
To have to hold and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of our hearts,
Although your soul is now at rest,
And free from care and pain;
This world would seem like Heaven
If we had you back again.
Sadly missed by Children and Grandchildren

Property Sales Involve $36,000

Transfer of ownership of three pieces of residential property for a total of $36,000, was recorded in three deeds filed yesterday in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

Builders Paint and Supply Company sold property at 621 Montgomery Avenue to Lee A. Green and Pearl E. Green for $15,500, according to one of the deeds.

Harry B. Klosterman and Frances B. Klosterman transferred ownership on the southeast side of Nationol Highway, three miles west of Cumberland, in LaVale, to Andrew H. Mauer and Goldie E. Mauer for $13,000, according to another deed. In the third transaction, Edward F. Maybert and Mary V. Maybert sold property at 222 Columbia Street to William E. McDaniel and Mildred V. McDaniel for $7,500, the deed showed.

Safety Council Offers Service In Civil Defense

The Western Maryland Safety Council decided at a meeting last night to offer its services to the director of Civil Defense here, according to Lynn Walker, president.

Walker said the Council also endorsed the city's proposed parking facility as a step to solve the traffic problem in Cumberland.

A number of complaints have been received because operators of motor vehicles fail to dim their lights for approaching vehicles, Walker explained, pointing out that each driver must recognize this as his own responsibility in helping to make the highways safer for himself and others.

Lt. E. R. Lilya discussed the problem of overloading school buses and the measures that have been taken to correct it. The Council decided to study and to discuss the problem further, Walker added.

Greater Community

general chairman of the fund-raising campaign, Mrs. W. H. Eliason of the Women's Division, Lynn Lashley of the Advanced Gifts group and George Martin of the Classified section for their successful work. Robertson told the guests the amount raised was the largest ever received by Cumberland's Red Feather agencies except for campaigns during World War II.

The number of contributors advanced from 8,471 to 10,564, Robertson related, and $4,379 was realized over the previous campaign. The adoption of the payroll deduction plan made it possible for the average employed person to give a fair share in an easy way, the speaker noted, and increased acceptance of this plan would make the Community Chest more successful than ever.

Washington Whirl

loving press gals were undone the next day . . . At the White House press conference Mrs. Vera Clay of Newsweek Magazine got a bit mixed up . . . She told the President that Taft had said he'd like to kick Truman in the teeth.

By deliberately misquoting Mr. Republican, Mrs. Clay, a good-looking gal of White Russian descent, got a laugh and even got herself a mention on some front pages . . .

But she was called to task by the Women's National Press Club president, Ruth Montgomery. "Your story was untrue, Vera, and you know it. You ought to call the White House and correct it," said Mrs. Montgomery.

The irresponsible Vera Vague Clay merely shrugged. Yes, she knew it wasn't true, she said, but "Even if Taft didn't say it, that's probably what he meant to say, anyway. Besides, it makes a cute box on the front page for me."

Thereby setting the lady reporters back 25 years!

Prices Rise As Scramble For Stocks Hits Fast Pace

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (AP)—The inflation-born scramble for stocks hit a red-hot pace today and prices rose all along the line.

Brief selling flurries at the tag-end of the day pulled some issues below their top levels for the session. Nevertheless, the list was heavily larded with gains ranging from $1 to $3 a share—and higher. A far greater number, of course, produced gains below a dollar.

Railroad stocks—fortified by a possible rise in freight rates—spearheaded the advance. Close behind in strength and activity were steels, motors, rubbers, distillers, radio-TV, chemicals and airlines.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 90 cents at $92.90—a new 1950-51 high and a peak since the index stood at $93.40 on Oct. 3, 1930. The industrial components of the average was $1.10 higher, rails ahead $1 and public utilities 30 cents.

Of the 1,238 individual stocks that changed hands, 671 were priced higher and 316 retreated. Moving to new 1950-51 highs were 187 issues, while three dropped to new lows.

Trading amounted to 3,740,000 shares—second highest of 1951—compared with 2,830,000 Monday. Demand held at an even pitch through most of the session, although on three occasions the ticker tape fell behind. Each time the snarl was unraveled quickly.

One of the outstanding performers was B. F. Goodrich, which jumped $6 at $138. A three-for-one stock split of Goodrich becomes effective Friday. Standard Oil (N. J.) advanced $2.12 at $97.37 on rumors of a possible split.

These Days

Sunday Times of London, on December 24, 1950:

". . . Giving up Marshall aid (by Great Britain) was a gesture of magnanimity approaching genius."

Why was it magnanimity? The Marshall Plan was an aid; in effect, it was charity. It was a tax on every American household to help an ally in distress. If he no longer needs the aid, why is it magnanimous to give it up? The word, magnanimity, in this instance, is little less than an insult.

Mr. Denis W. Brogan, who used that word, did not mean it that way, as the remainder of his article clearly shows—but the slip in language indicates a state of mind. He says, for instance:

"To a nation under this strain, complaints from Hongkong that the new American embargo will ruin trade sound untimely. There are more important things, the Americans think, than trade in Hongkong, and if Communist China gets away with it, there won't be any British interest in Hongkong or Singapore to suffer."

Too true—but not magnanimous!

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Do you "mean what you say" when you're angry?

Answer: Yes. The unkind things that you say to someone when you "blow your top" may not represent your total feeling toward him—in fact, they may be unconsciously intended for someone else. But they express feelings which you actually have, however little you may want to realize it when you've calmed down. So even if others accept your assurance that you "didn't really mean it"—as they seldom will completely—you had better for your own sake find out what your rage is all about and what can be done to control it.

Can we recognize an "agitator"?

Answer: Yes, say Leo Lowenthal and Norbert Guterman of Columbia University in their book, "Prophets of Deceit." The typical agitator starts with a distorted version of some actual social evil, but his attacks are directed, not at abuses, but at people. He terrifies audiences with the threat of vague or exaggerated dangers and represents any criticism of himself as "persecution." He has no real interest in curing social ills, but uses the paranoid fears of his followers to make them feel he is their sole hope of safety.

Should you be glad your child is a bookworm?

Answer: No. Fondness for reading may become a priceless asset, but it should not be developed too soon or too strongly. For one thing, a child's main interest should be in doing things, not in reading about them; for another, living too much in the realm of imagination retards the development of his ability to distinguish reality from daydreams. But most serious of all, a child who would rather read than play with other children is avoiding the great problem of learning to get on with others of his own age.

Property Sales Involve $36,000

Transfer of ownership of three pieces of residential property for a total of $36,000, was recorded in three deeds filed yesterday in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

Builders Paint and Supply Company sold property at 621 Montgomery Avenue to Lee A. Green and Pearl E. Green for $15,500, according to one of the deeds.

Harry B. Klosterman and Frances B. Klosterman transferred ownership on the southeast side of Nationol Highway, three miles west of Cumberland, in LaVale, to Andrew H. Mauer and Goldie E. Mauer for $13,000, according to another deed. In the third transaction, Edward F. Maybert and Mary V. Maybert sold property at 222 Columbia Street to William E. McDaniel and Mildred V. McDaniel for $7,500, the deed showed.

Safety Council Offers Service In Civil Defense

The Western Maryland Safety Council decided at a meeting last night to offer its services to the director of Civil Defense here, according to Lynn Walker, president.

Walker said the Council also endorsed the city's proposed parking facility as a step to solve the traffic problem in Cumberland.

A number of complaints have been received because operators of motor vehicles fail to dim their lights for approaching vehicles, Walker explained, pointing out that each driver must recognize this as his own responsibility in helping to make the highways safer for himself and others.

Lt. E. R. Lilya discussed the problem of overloading school buses and the measures that have been taken to correct it. The Council decided to study and to discuss the problem further, Walker added.

Greater Community

general chairman of the fund-raising campaign, Mrs. W. H. Eliason of the Women's Division, Lynn Lashley of the Advanced Gifts group and George Martin of the Classified section for their successful work. Robertson told the guests the amount raised was the largest ever received by Cumberland's Red Feather agencies except for campaigns during World War II.

The number of contributors advanced from 8,471 to 10,564, Robertson related, and $4,379 was realized over the previous campaign. The adoption of the payroll deduction plan made it possible for the average employed person to give a fair share in an easy way, the speaker noted, and increased acceptance of this plan would make the Community Chest more successful than ever.

Washington Whirl

loving press gals were undone the next day . . . At the White House press conference Mrs. Vera Clay of Newsweek Magazine got a bit mixed up . . . She told the President that Taft had said he'd like to kick Truman in the teeth.

By deliberately misquoting Mr. Republican, Mrs. Clay, a good-looking gal of White Russian descent, got a laugh and even got herself a mention on some front pages . . .

But she was called to task by the Women's National Press Club president, Ruth Montgomery. "Your story was untrue, Vera, and you know it. You ought to call the White House and correct it," said Mrs. Montgomery.

The irresponsible Vera Vague Clay merely shrugged. Yes, she knew it wasn't true, she said, but "Even if Taft didn't say it, that's probably what he meant to say, anyway. Besides, it makes a cute box on the front page for me."

Thereby setting the lady reporters back 25 years!

Prices Rise As Scramble For Stocks Hits Fast Pace

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (AP)—The inflation-born scramble for stocks hit a red-hot pace today and prices rose all along the line.

Brief selling flurries at the tag-end of the day pulled some issues below their top levels for the session. Nevertheless, the list was heavily larded with gains ranging from $1 to $3 a share—and higher. A far greater number, of course, produced gains below a dollar.

Railroad stocks—fortified by a possible rise in freight rates—spearheaded the advance. Close behind in strength and activity were steels, motors, rubbers, distillers, radio-TV, chemicals and airlines.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 90 cents at $92.90—a new 1950-51 high and a peak since the index stood at $93.40 on Oct. 3, 1930. The industrial components of the average was $1.10 higher, rails ahead $1 and public utilities 30 cents.

Of the 1,238 individual stocks that changed hands, 671 were priced higher and 316 retreated. Moving to new 1950-51 highs were 187 issues, while three dropped to new lows.

Trading amounted to 3,740,000 shares—second highest of 1951—compared with 2,830,000 Monday. Demand held at an even pitch through most of the session, although on three occasions the ticker tape fell behind. Each time the snarl was unraveled quickly.

One of the outstanding performers was B. F. Goodrich, which jumped $6 at $138. A three-for-one stock split of Goodrich becomes effective Friday. Standard Oil (N. J.) advanced $2.12 at $97.37 on rumors of a possible split.

Sunday Times of London, on December 24, 1950:

". . . Giving up Marshall aid (by Great Britain) was a gesture of magnanimity approaching genius."

Why was it magnanimity? The Marshall Plan was an aid; in effect, it was charity. It was a tax on every American household to help an ally in distress. If he no longer needs the aid, why is it magnanimous to give it up? The word, magnanimity, in this instance, is little less than an insult.

Mr. Denis W. Brogan, who used that word, did not mean it that way, as the remainder of his article clearly shows—but the slip in language indicates a state of mind. He says, for instance:

"To a nation under this strain, complaints from Hongkong that the new American embargo will ruin trade sound untimely. There are more important things, the Americans think, than trade in Hongkong, and if Communist China gets away with it, there won't be any British interest in Hongkong or Singapore to suffer."

Too true—but not magnanimous!

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Do you "mean what you say" when you're angry?

Answer: Yes. The unkind things that you say to someone when you "blow your top" may not represent your total feeling toward him—in fact, they may be unconsciously intended for someone else. But they express feelings which you actually have, however little you may want to realize it when you've calmed down. So even if others accept your assurance that you "didn't really mean it"—as they seldom will completely—you had better for your own sake find out what your rage is all about and what can be done to control it.

Can we recognize an "agitator"?

Answer: Yes, say Leo Lowenthal and Norbert Guterman of Columbia University in their book, "Prophets of Deceit." The typical agitator starts with a distorted version of some actual social evil, but his attacks are directed, not at abuses, but at people. He terrifies audiences with the threat of vague or exaggerated dangers and represents any criticism of himself as "persecution." He has no real interest in curing social ills, but uses the paranoid fears of his followers to make them feel he is their sole hope of safety.

Should you be glad your child is a bookworm?

Answer: No. Fondness for reading may become a priceless asset, but it should not be developed too soon or too strongly. For one thing, a child's main interest should be in doing things, not in reading about them; for another, living too much in the realm of imagination retards the development of his ability to distinguish reality from daydreams. But most serious of all, a child who would rather read than play with other children is avoiding the great problem of learning to get on with others of his own age.

Fatal Crash Witness Testifies Darr Could Have Missed Wife

Manslaughter Case Continues Today

Paul Livengood, 24-year-old Pinto plumber, who was driving immediately behind the truck of William R. Darr, 43-year-old Rawlings lumber mill operator, when Darr's vehicle struck and fatally injured his wife, testified in Allegany County Circuit Court late yesterday afternoon that Darr could have avoided the accident by swerving to the left instead of to the right as he did.

Livengood was the last of eight prosecution witnesses heard yesterday as Darr's trial got underway on a manslaughter charge. Darr has pleaded not guilty to the charge, placed against him after his wife, Mrs. Mary Catherine Darr, 40, died about 11 p. m. December 20 at Allegany Hospital.

Associate Judge George Henderson, who is presiding at the trial, called a halt to proceedings at 4:07 p. m. yesterday after admonishing the jurors not to discuss the case with anyone except other jurors. The trial will resume at 9:15 o'clock this morning.

The young Pinto man said he was driving along McMullen Highway the day of the fatal accident because he and two other men had been working that day in Maysville, W. Va. Livengood told the jurors that Darr's truck—the tractor portion of a tractor-trailer truck—pulled out of a driveway beside his lumber mill and turned to the left in the direction of Cresaptown.

"As we drove a short distance down the road, I saw a woman hurrying across the road," Livengood testified. "I had no idea there would be an accident because I felt sure the truck could swing to the left and avoid her. However, the truck turned to the right and I saw snow fly as the truck hit the woman. I learned later it was Mrs. Darr," Livengood related.

More Witnesses Summoned

First witnesses expected to be called this morning are Carl Moreland and David Dayton, who were riding with Livengood. Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis also is scheduled as another prosecution witness.

Just before Livengood was called to the witness stand the jury heard the testimony of Frank Martz, of Rawlings. Martz, who is employed at Darr's mill, said that he and Darr attempted to fix a saw the afternoon of the fatal crash. He explained that while they were working they drank a pint of whiskey. However, he credited himself with drinking more than Darr. At his suggestion they got into the truck, with Darr driving, and were preparing to drive to Cresaptown to purchase another pint of whiskey when the fatal accident occurred. Martz, who lost a child in an accident on McMullen Highway some years ago, said that he became nervous, got out of the truck and went home.

Witness Admits Drinking

Martz admitted that he and Darr were both under the influence of alcohol at the time of the fatal accident in front of the Darr home, but asserted they were not drunk.

Other witnesses heard yesterday as State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher began presentation of his case were Dr. H. V. Deming, county deputy medical examiner; State Trooper William Baker, Guy Elmer Shook, Niles B. Shook and 15-year-old Wayne M. Shook, all neighbors of Darr, and Walter J. Gordon, also of Rawlings, who brought Mrs. Darr to Allegany Hospital after the accident, which occurred about 5:30 p. m. December 20.

Permits Issued For Church And Two Homes Here

Cost Estimated At Over $68,000

Building permits were issued yesterday by the city engineer for the construction of a church, two homes and an addition to an apartment building.

Grace Baptist congregation yesterday secured a permit for the construction of a chapel and educational building on 211-13 Greene Street.

Ground for the project was broken several weeks ago.

The permit lists the George Construction Company as contractor for the work.

The building will be of concrete block faced with brick upon a concrete block foundation with an asphalt shingle roof.

Cost of the construction is estimated at $50,000.

Lee Green, 621 Montgomery Avenue, yesterday secured a permit to construct a home on lots 7-10 Greenway Avenue.

The one-story home is to be 40 by 50 feet, with a stone foundation, stone walls and rubberoid roof. Estimated cost is $14,000.

William P. Roeder secured a permit for a one story house, 26 by 40 feet, on lot 810 of Elmwood Lane.

Plans call for a concrete block foundation, frame walls covered with asbestos shingles and a rubberoid roof.

Work is to be done by the owner at an estimated cost of $4,500.

Roeder also secured a permit for an addition to the second floor of an apartment at 811 Elmwood Lane at a cost of $250.

Civil Service Group To Act On Appeal

The Civil Service Commission will meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. in City Hall to reach a decision on the appeal case of Officer Leo E. P. Law, H.Clifford Spiker, chairman, announced yesterday.

A hearing on the appeal of the officer following a seven day suspension on a charge of sleeping on duty was held last Friday.

Spiker said a formal report of the decision will be given to the Mayor and Council following the meeting.

News In Brief

The Cumberland Optimist Club will hold its regular weekly meeting today at 6:15 p. m. at Central YMCA.

A report of the Rayon Advisory Council meeting held in Washington over the weekend will be given at a membership meeting of Local 1874, TWUA-CIO tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

The Cumberland Lions Club will hold its regular weekly luncheon meeting at 12:15 p. m. today at the Central YMCA.

The Greyhound bus line resumed service through Romney, W. Va., Monday after drivers ended a two-day walkout.

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will hold a meeting Friday at 12:15 p. m. at the Central YMCA.

Central firemen answered a call yesterday at the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company, 116-20 Wineow street after fire broke out in a doorway. Damage was slight.

McKeldin Gives Prisoner Clemency

Patrick Dentinger, sentenced in Allegany County October 18, 1949, to two years for burglary, yesterday received executive clemency from Governor McKeldin, who is completing his first week in office, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Annapolis.

Man Breaks Arm

Jacob H. Brown, 434 Williams Street, chief clerk to superintendent of the B&O Bolt and Forge plant, sustained a broken left arm Sunday night when he slipped and fell on ice. He was treated in Memorial Hospital.

Rodda Is Injured When Hit By Car

Robert Rodda, 36, 303 Columbia Street, was admitted to Allegany Hospital yesterday at 4:15 p. m. for treatment of injuries suffered when he was struck by a car on Winchester Road.

He was reported in a satisfactory condition, suffering from a right shoulder injury and a laceration on the lip.

Driver of the car was listed as James Hill.

Maryland State Police said they were told Rodda was injured as he was directing a furniture truck to the highway. Trooper Jack Browning is investigating.

Testimonials Presented

Arthur B. Gibson presents testimonial plaques to Frederic W. Eiler, general chairman, and Mrs. H. W. Eliason, chairman of women's division, in appreciation for their successful efforts in helping raise $88,535 during the 1950-51 Community Chest Campaign. The testimonials were presented last night at the annual chest dinner held at the Central YMCA. Gibson was guest speaker at the affair.

Greater Community Chest Aid From Business Sought

Earl C. Robertson told members of the Community Chest last night at the annual meeting at Central YMCA the main difficulty of the organization arises from the indifference of some of the city's business leaders who are not convinced that a strong, successful Community Chest is important to the life of Cumberland.

The president of the local Red Feather organization said he proposed holding meetings with various groups and individuals and "laying the problem squarely and specifically before each of them so they will recognize that this is their responsibility and their stake in Cumberland."

Robertson thought "every merchant, banker and business man in Cumberland should be deeply concerned about the Community Chest and should be willing and even anxious to do their share and more if necessary.

Support Needed

He plans to show each of them how much their active support is needed and how to adjust their thinking and giving to a plane more in line with the needs to be met in the community.

"The present indifference and lack of appreciation of what the Community Chest and the services of its nine agencies mean cannot be permitted to continue," he remarked. "We earnestly solicit the cooperation and assistance of all those who can help us correct and change this sad state of affairs."

Robertson told those attending the testimonial dinner the Chest feels "we have done well in the past in spite of these handicaps but such a situation can not continue. We are now in a dangerous position because of our dependence for so large a proportion of our money on three or four very large gifts. The loss of any one of these could cause us to have a miserable failure."

The disbanding of the Community Chest here could be a possibility, Robertson said, if the disinterest remains, and this would throw the burden of nine campaigns on the local community. This expensive, extra work would "hit the hardest those who by their disinterest caused it to come about, he related.

$100,000 Raised

The Chest president revealed the "facts are that almost every city the size of Cumberland is raising just about $100,000 and many of them are raising quite a bit more, as much as $150,000."

He pointed out he did not believe that he thought Cumberland should give these amounts just because other cities have done so but "our goal should be to give our agencies the kind of support they need and deserve to carry out even better programs for the benefit of the entire community."

Robertson emphasized the City of Cumberland should "be raising so much more than we do and yet every one knows the terrific struggle it has been to raise something in the $80,000's." The chest's goal last year was $87,000 and the final tabulation, according to Robertson's report, was $88,535.

Praise came to Frederick W. Eiler,

Board Requests Fire Co. Reports

All 22 volunteer fire companies in Allegany county which received funds during the past fiscal year from the Allegany County Board of Commissioners are being requested to submit to the board on or before February 15 an accounting of appropriations made to the companies in the period between September, 1948, and October, 1950.

Board Clerk James G. Stevenson has prepared a letter which the board yesterday authorized him to send to all 22 companies. "This request is made in lieu of requesting officers of the various companies to appear before the board in person to make such accounting," Stevenson's letter states.

A detailed statement of expenditures made for the purchase, repair or maintenance of fire-fighting equipment and buildings is sought by the board.

Several weeks ago the companies requested that the county commissioners increase appropriations to the various fire fighting units. During the past fiscal year the departments obtained a total of $15,675 from the county commissioners.

City Asks Action On Housing Plan

The Mayor and Council has asked the Public Housing Administration to expedite public housing plans for this city.

In a telegram to Gilbert Zeiler, of the PHA in Washington, the city requested approval of Development Program Md-5-1 submitted by the Housing Authority of the City of Cumberland "as expeditiously as possible so construction may be started to alleviate unemployment and substandard housing in this area."

Community Chest Selects Five Board Members

Campaign Leaders Honored At Dinner

Five directors were named at the annual dinner meeting of the Cumberland Community Chest last night at the Central YMCA at which the general chairman and workers were honored.

James W. Bishop, Roy W. Eves and Clarence Lippel were re-elected to the board of directors while new members are Mrs. H. W. Eliason and Clarence E. Gehr.

The nominating committee selected 10 persons for the office of Board of Directors of the local Red Feather organization at its meeting January 2. Lewis J. Ort declined the nomination because of press of other business. Others nominated included George A. Caswell, David T. Davis, Robert L. Ebert and George M. Martin.

Arthur B. Gibson, principal speaker at the 24th annual dinner, made presentation of testimonials to Frederic W. Eiler, general chairman of the 1950-51 campaign, and Mrs. Eliason, chairman of the women's division, in appreciation of their efforts in helping raise the $88,535 contributed to the Community Chest's campaign.

Gibson said "the success of the Community Chest in the past years has been one of the greatest deterrents to further socialism movements by our national government" and called the chest campaign "more than just a collection of dollars—it is an institution."

Gibson told the gathering the chest was a means for individuals to get together and carry out a program to take care of unfortunate and indigent in the community as well as support those organizations which lead to character building of the community's youth.

Teamwork Is Keynote

In accepting the testimonial in behalf of the various chairmen of all the sections of the campaign organization down to the best worker and contributor Eiler credited the success of the campaign to teamwork and specifically commended those employer and employe groups which adopted a payroll deduction plan. Eiler stated the acceptance of this idea "was perhaps the greatest single factor in the raising of the $88,535 secured this year." He expressed the hope this plan would be taken up by many other labor-management groups in 1951.

Financial Report

The treasurer's report of Chest activities showed receipts from October 1, 1949 to November 30, 1950 amounted to $80,606.23 including pledges and that disbursements amounted to $80,541.07 over the same period, leaving a balance of $65.16. Actual receipts received during this period amounted to $77,262.54 or 92 per cent of the amount pledged. Additional receipts after November raised the fund to $84,275.

Soldier Thanks Organization Here For Christmas Package

A letter from a soldier in the Pacific area has been received by Allegany County Chapter American Red Cross, expressing his thanks for a Christmas package prepared by local organizations and delivered by the Red Cross, according to Mrs. Lee Witherup, executive secretary. The letter follows:

Dear Friends:

My name is Jasper E. Crawford and I hail from LaPorte, Indiana. On Christmas Day I was somewhere in the middle of the Pacific Ocean aboard the USNS Marine Lynx troop ship. The day was topped by the large Christmas package I received from you.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your very nice Christmas gift. I hope you can realize how much enjoyment I received from that Christmas cheer.

The candy, cards, set of dominoes, comb, pocket size books, soap, and stationery were very nice. I especially appreciated the books as they afforded a pleasant past time.

Thanking you again for your thoughtfulness, I wish your organization the best of luck.

Sincerely yours,
Jasper E. Crawford, Pfc.

The gifts were boxed locally by the Auxiliaries of veterans organizations with the cooperation of Mrs. Nat Guggenheimer and Mrs. Hammond Amick. Contribution for the gifts were made by the Navy Mothers, Gold Star Mothers, Eight and 40, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the American Legion, Mrs. Witherup said.

Board To Study Fire Safety At Old Infirmary

Commissioners Get Recommendations

Allegany County's Board of Commissioners will inspect the old County Infirmary building Tuesday, January 30, to study recommended fire safety measures at that structure.

This action was taken at yesterday's meeting after the commissioners received a letter from Hunter B. Helfrich, head of Wright, Richardson and Company, Inc., in which he set forth three specific fire safety recommendations. He asked for an opportunity to explain the proposals to the commissioners in more detail at a later date. The commissioners decided that he should meet with them for the inspection in two weeks.

Helfrich said the recommendations were concurred in by Cumberland City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer, Acting Fire Chief William L. Lindner and Fire Inspector R. Paul Reid, who inspected the building with him.

The recommendations:

(1) Remove existing second floor porch from the east end of the building and install necessary steel or concrete fire escape together with panic bolt and other improvements.

(2) Cut away certain existing portions of the second floor porch at the west end of the building and install steel or concrete fire escape.

(3) Cover stairway at the west end of the building and two central stairways with fireproof material and provide fire proof doors at each of these three stairways. This fire proofing should consist of material that would retard drafts for approximately one hour.

Auto Tag Bill Progresses In State Assembly

Whitworth Hits U. Of Md. Plan

A favorable report on an automobile tag bill for Allegany County was submitted yesterday by the House Ways and Means committee in the Maryland General Assembly.

The action means that the bill authorizing the Board of County Commissioners to appoint an agent, other than the county treasurer, to distribute license plates in Allegany County, will be printed and go to its third reading.

Delegate Horace Whitworth said he will try to hold up all General Assembly appropriations for the University of Maryland until someone explains how a building got started ahead of time at Princess Anne College, the Associated Press reported.

The college is a Negro branch of the university. Charles E. Brohawn, Cambridge contractor, has done about $30,000 worth of work on a new $271,000 agricultural engineering building there. The State Department of Public Improvements has declared it gave him no authorization to start the project and the board of public works voted last week to reject Brohawn's bid.

"I will ask for an investigation of the whole matter and a publication of the findings before any appropriations are acted upon," said Whitworth, who is a member of the House Ways and Means Committee.

"The use of public funds is a public business. The people are entitled to know how their money is being spent. All the cards should be put on the table."

Then, referring to Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University, Whitworth said: "Dr. Byrd has such unlimited control over special funds of the university that he may find some way to pay for this work without the sanction of the legislature or the board of public works.

"If Dr. Byrd didn't authorize this work he at least knows who did."

Dr. Byrd said he "has no more authority than a jack rabbit" to order Brohawn to proceed with the construction. He has promised to make a report in writing to the Board of Public Works.

Brohawn has declined to say on what authority he went ahead with the work.

Delegate Whitworth was elected acting minority House floor leader yesterday to take the place of Delegate Rudolph Lofstrand (R-Montgomery county) who is ill and has been hospitalized in Washington.

Delegate Whitworth will be acting floor leader until Lofstrand resumes his duties.

Bills Introduced

House bills introduced yesterday included:

HB53—by Balto 6th delegation—to make it mandatory that all corporations employing wage earners and engaged in mining, manufacturing, operating an electric railroad, street railway, telegraph, telephone or express company shall pay such employes weekly (Ways & Means).

HB56—by Acker—to require employers to pays National Guardsmen in their employe the difference between their regular wages and salaries and their field training pay when they go to summer camp (Veterans, Militia and State Police).

HB59—by Luber—to increase the retirement pay of state employes forced to retire because of injuries suffered in line of duty to two-thirds of their former annual pay (Ways and Means).

Auxiliary Police Organize For Civil Defense

Plan Swift Action For Emergencies

Auxiliary police of this city, many of them veterans of Civilian Defense work during World War II, last night began plans for a swift reorganization to meet any eventuality in civil defense needs of today.

Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn, chairman of the meeting called last night in City Hall, pointed out the time is at hand when Cumberland must make some preparation for a war which "is almost sure to happen."

"It is the responsibility of the Police Department to protect the lives and property of its citizens and we must organize and be ready for any eventuality," he added.

Chief Flynn congratulated members of the organization who served during World War II for the splendid work during that crisis in assisting the regular police.

"You never grumbled, Chief Flynn said," and you gave of your time without fanfare. That is why America is great. Her people stick together in time of distress without regard to race, color or creed.

Must Carry Load

"This war, if it comes, will require a supreme effort of all of us if we are to survive and maintain our freedom from the communist countries which threaten to envelop all the free peoples of the world," he observed.

Full cooperation of the Cumberland Police Department was offered by John J. Long, commissioner of fire and police.

Pointing out that fast and efficient action will be needed if adequate civil defense needs are to be met, Commissioner Long said the department is depending upon the auxiliary policemen to carry the additional load of civil defense work, which is far too great for the staff of the regular department.

Auxiliary police, Chief Flynn pointed out, will be badly needed for civil defense in the impending war in crises involving panic, rioting, looting and traffic regulation.

Other speakers at the meeting were Harold Armbruster, president; Joseph Harrison, chief of the Cumberland Auxiliary Police, Inc.; Graydon S. Dunlap, assistant chief; Eugene Kressing, first aid specialist for the group, and Tech. Sgt. John H. Newhouse, adviser.

Some 75 members of the auxiliary police attended, with some 30 calling in to report they were unable to attend because of work.

Chief Flynn said some 150 auxiliary police are available at present in Cumberland and that the organization may be enlarged to meet the needs imposed by civil defense.

Plan First Aid Work

Action taken at the meeting included a decision for all members to take either the standard, refresher or advanced First Aid courses offered through the American Red Cross.

A large number of the auxiliary police reported they had taken the course during World War II but desired to brush up on first aid before emergencies may arise.

Auxiliary police in this city formed an organization in 1942 which has been kept intact for just such emergencies as the present civil defense program.

Perhaps 50 members of the auxiliary police are uniformed and additional uniforms will be available soon.

Officials announced that captains for districts in the city will be named at the next meeting of the auxiliary.

The captains, Chief Flynn said, will then select assistants to protect their sections.

Kauffman To Speak To B'nai B'rith Tomorrow

Western Maryland Lodge B'nai B'rith will hold its regular meeting at 8:30 tomorrow evening in the vestry rooms of B'er Chayim Temple.

David Kauffman is to be the guest speaker for the evening. His topic will be "The Economic Development in Cumberland."

During the business session action will be taken on the Western Maryland Lodge's contribution to the Hillel Foundation for the University of Maryland at College Park; and for George Washington University, Washington.

Assistance in the March of Dimes campaign will be discussed also.

Concluding the evening refreshments will be served by a committee headed by Harry Stein.

Demand For State's Cabins In Garrett County Heavy

There have been over 300 applications received for renting cabins this summer at the State's two recreational areas in Garrett County, according to H. C. Buckingham, state forester.

Although there are only 13 cabins at Herrington Manor and 11 at New Germany, 279 applications were received the first two days this year. About 75 per cent of these applications requested cabins for the last two weeks in July, and Buckingham pointed out that it is impossible to accommodate all of them. Cabins are alloted in the order the applications are received.

Cabins are rented for a minimum of one week and a maximum of two weeks. Built by the Civilian Conservation Corps in the late 1930s and opened in 1940, the areas were developed originally to develop the recreational area of Garrett County and to attract people to buy, rent, and live there.

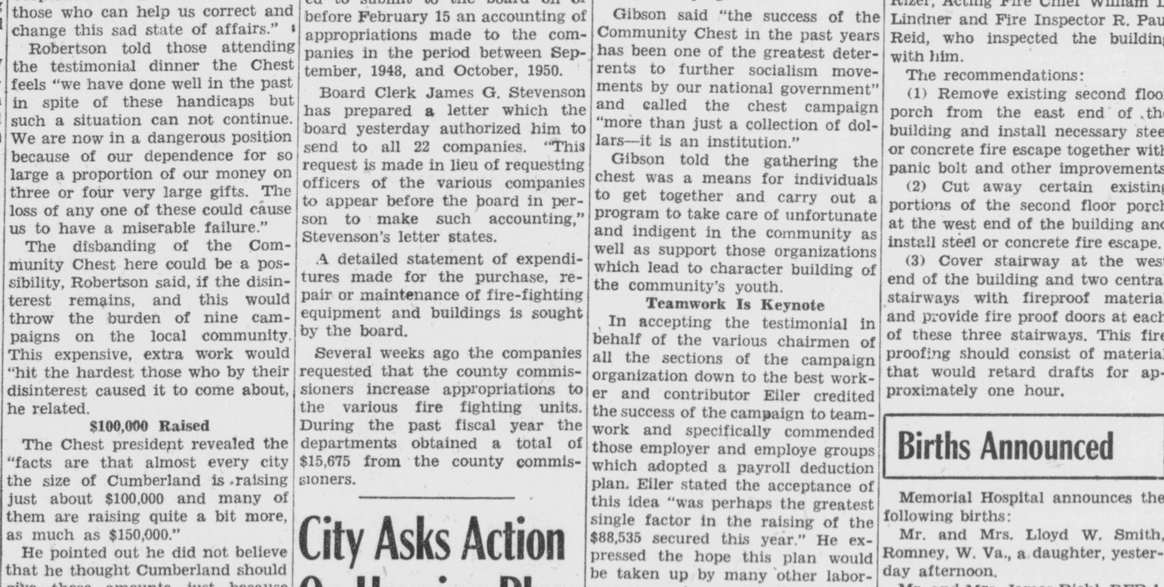
The cabins are owned by the State of Maryland and are completely equipped with hot and cold water, electricity, etc. They are maintained out of revenue collected from patrons and Garrett County is given 15 per cent.

Picnic facilities include a 50 acre lake at Herrington Manor and a 10 acre lake at New Germany. A life guard is on hand at all times that swimming is permitted. There is no charge for picnicing nor swimming.

Buckingham said Garrett County has cooperated by building a hard surface road from Oakland to the area. Pointing out the beauty of the area, Buckingham said there are colonies of beaver on the streams, deer is plentiful, wood ducks, sea gull and other animals and birds around there.

Nearby are many falls—Muddy Creek Falls, Swallow Falls, and Tolliver Falls — each having picnic areas.

The Department of State Forests and Parks maintains the areas, the state forester said, adding that William H. Johnson is in charge of them here.



Organize For Civil Defense

Officials of the Cumberland Police Department and the Auxiliary Police Department are seen last night as plans were formulated for a swift organization of auxiliary police for civil defense needs in this city. They are (left to right) Joseph M. Harrison, chief, C. S. Browning and Edward B. Wright, of the Auxiliary Police: Tech. Sgt. John M. Newhouse; Police Chief R. Emmett Flynn, T. E. Carder, of the auxiliary force and Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long, who promised full cooperation in the program.

Receipts At Post Office Show Decrease Last Year

Employes at the local Post Office worked 2,345 hours less in 1950 than in 1949, according to Thomas F. Conlon, postmaster.

Conlon pointed out that in 1950 postal workers were paid for 146,623 hours and in 1949 they were paid for 148,968 hours. He attributed the decrease to a decrease in carrier service in the area.

Total postal receipts, including the sale of stamps, second and third class mailing, box rents, and meter mailings, for 1950 amounted to $377,939.46. In 1949, they amounted to $381,493.02.

Conlon pointed out that during the last two quarters, of 1950 postal receipts were greater than in 1949. During the last quarter of 1950 postal receipts were $6,000 greater than during the last quarter of 1949.

Further statistics show that in 1950, 102,999 money orders were issued at the local Post Office, whereas 108,751 were issued in 1949. The number of money orders paid or cashed in 1950 was 96,204 and in 1949 there were 95,224 cashed.

There was an increase of 1,289 postal notes issued in 1950 over 1949, with 6,856 being issued last year and 5,567 in 1949. Postal notes that were cashed or paid also increased, with 8,930 being cashed in 1950 compared to 7,319 to 1949.

The sale of savings bonds decreased in 1950 compared to 1949. In 1950, sales amounted to $71,456.25; in 1949, they were $89,175.

At the end of 1949 there were 503 depositors with $377,535 in the Postal Savings System at the local Post Office. There were 489 depositors $367,827 at the end of 1950.

Postmaster Conlon said the present trend seems to indicate that conditions with the Post Office during 1951 will be similar to those in 1950.

Fatal Crash Witness Testifies Darr Could Have Missed Wife

Manslaughter Case Continues Today

Paul Livengood, 24-year-old Pinto plumber, who was driving immediately behind the truck of William R. Darr, 43-year-old Rawlings lumber mill operator, when Darr's vehicle struck and fatally injured his wife, testified in Allegany County Circuit Court late yesterday afternoon that Darr could have avoided the accident by swerving to the left instead of to the right as he did.

Livengood was the last of eight prosecution witnesses heard yesterday as Darr's trial got underway on a manslaughter charge. Darr has pleaded not guilty to the charge, placed against him after his wife, Mrs. Mary Catherine Darr, 40, died about 11 p. m. December 20 at Allegany Hospital.

Associate Judge George Henderson, who is presiding at the trial, called a halt to proceedings at 4:07 p. m. yesterday after admonishing the jurors not to discuss the case with anyone except other jurors. The trial will resume at 9:15 o'clock this morning.

The young Pinto man said he was driving along McMullen Highway the day of the fatal accident because he and two other men had been working that day in Maysville, W. Va. Livengood told the jurors that Darr's truck—the tractor portion of a tractor-trailer truck—pulled out of a driveway beside his lumber mill and turned to the left in the direction of Cresaptown.

"As we drove a short distance down the road, I saw a woman hurrying across the road," Livengood testified. "I had no idea there would be an accident because I felt sure the truck could swing to the left and avoid her. However, the truck turned to the right and I saw snow fly as the truck hit the woman. I learned later it was Mrs. Darr," Livengood related.

More Witnesses Summoned

First witnesses expected to be called this morning are Carl Moreland and David Dayton, who were riding with Livengood. Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis also is scheduled as another prosecution witness.

Just before Livengood was called to the witness stand the jury heard the testimony of Frank Martz, of Rawlings. Martz, who is employed at Darr's mill, said that he and Darr attempted to fix a saw the afternoon of the fatal crash. He explained that while they were working they drank a pint of whiskey. However, he credited himself with drinking more than Darr. At his suggestion they got into the truck, with Darr driving, and were preparing to drive to Cresaptown to purchase another pint of whiskey when the fatal accident occurred. Martz, who lost a child in an accident on McMullen Highway some years ago, said that he became nervous, got out of the truck and went home.

Witness Admits Drinking

Martz admitted that he and Darr were both under the influence of alcohol at the time of the fatal accident in front of the Darr home, but asserted they were not drunk.

Other witnesses heard yesterday as State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher began presentation of his case were Dr. H. V. Deming, county deputy medical examiner; State Trooper William Baker, Guy Elmer Shook, Niles B. Shook and 15-year-old Wayne M. Shook, all neighbors of Darr, and Walter J. Gordon, also of Rawlings, who brought Mrs. Darr to Allegany Hospital after the accident, which occurred about 5:30 p. m. December 20.

Permits Issued For Church And Two Homes Here

Cost Estimated At Over $68,000

Building permits were issued yesterday by the city engineer for the construction of a church, two homes and an addition to an apartment building.

Grace Baptist congregation yesterday secured a permit for the construction of a chapel and educational building on 211-13 Greene Street.

Ground for the project was broken several weeks ago.

The permit lists the George Construction Company as contractor for the work.

The building will be of concrete block faced with brick upon a concrete block foundation with an asphalt shingle roof.

Cost of the construction is estimated at $50,000.

Lee Green, 621 Montgomery Avenue, yesterday secured a permit to construct a home on lots 7-10 Greenway Avenue.

The one-story home is to be 40 by 50 feet, with a stone foundation, stone walls and rubberoid roof. Estimated cost is $14,000.

William P. Roeder secured a permit for a one story house, 26 by 40 feet, on lot 810 of Elmwood Lane.

Plans call for a concrete block foundation, frame walls covered with asbestos shingles and a rubberoid roof.

Work is to be done by the owner at an estimated cost of $4,500.

Roeder also secured a permit for an addition to the second floor of an apartment at 811 Elmwood Lane at a cost of $250.

Civil Service Group To Act On Appeal

The Civil Service Commission will meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. in City Hall to reach a decision on the appeal case of Officer Leo E. P. Law, H.Clifford Spiker, chairman, announced yesterday.

A hearing on the appeal of the officer following a seven day suspension on a charge of sleeping on duty was held last Friday.

Spiker said a formal report of the decision will be given to the Mayor and Council following the meeting.

News In Brief

The Cumberland Optimist Club will hold its regular weekly meeting today at 6:15 p. m. at Central YMCA.

A report of the Rayon Advisory Council meeting held in Washington over the weekend will be given at a membership meeting of Local 1874, TWUA-CIO tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

The Cumberland Lions Club will hold its regular weekly luncheon meeting at 12:15 p. m. today at the Central YMCA.

The Greyhound bus line resumed service through Romney, W. Va., Monday after drivers ended a two-day walkout.

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will hold a meeting Friday at 12:15 p. m. at the Central YMCA.

Central firemen answered a call yesterday at the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company, 116-20 Wineow street after fire broke out in a doorway. Damage was slight.

McKeldin Gives Prisoner Clemency

Patrick Dentinger, sentenced in Allegany County October 18, 1949, to two years for burglary, yesterday received executive clemency from Governor McKeldin, who is completing his first week in office, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Annapolis.

Man Breaks Arm

Jacob H. Brown, 434 Williams Street, chief clerk to superintendent of the B&O Bolt and Forge plant, sustained a broken left arm Sunday night when he slipped and fell on ice. He was treated in Memorial Hospital.

Rodda Is Injured When Hit By Car

Robert Rodda, 36, 303 Columbia Street, was admitted to Allegany Hospital yesterday at 4:15 p. m. for treatment of injuries suffered when he was struck by a car on Winchester Road.

He was reported in a satisfactory condition, suffering from a right shoulder injury and a laceration on the lip.

Driver of the car was listed as James Hill.

Maryland State Police said they were told Rodda was injured as he was directing a furniture truck to the highway. Trooper Jack Browning is investigating.

Testimonials Presented

Arthur B. Gibson presents testimonial plaques to Frederic W. Eiler, general chairman, and Mrs. H. W. Eliason, chairman of women's division, in appreciation for their successful efforts in helping raise $88,535 during the 1950-51 Community Chest Campaign. The testimonials were presented last night at the annual chest dinner held at the Central YMCA. Gibson was guest speaker at the affair.

Greater Community Chest Aid From Business Sought

Earl C. Robertson told members of the Community Chest last night at the annual meeting at Central YMCA the main difficulty of the organization arises from the indifference of some of the city's business leaders who are not convinced that a strong, successful Community Chest is important to the life of Cumberland.

The president of the local Red Feather organization said he proposed holding meetings with various groups and individuals and "laying the problem squarely and specifically before each of them so they will recognize that this is their responsibility and their stake in Cumberland."

Robertson thought "every merchant, banker and business man in Cumberland should be deeply concerned about the Community Chest and should be willing and even anxious to do their share and more if necessary.

Support Needed

He plans to show each of them how much their active support is needed and how to adjust their thinking and giving to a plane more in line with the needs to be met in the community.

"The present indifference and lack of appreciation of what the Community Chest and the services of its nine agencies mean cannot be permitted to continue," he remarked. "We earnestly solicit the cooperation and assistance of all those who can help us correct and change this sad state of affairs."

Robertson told those attending the testimonial dinner the Chest feels "we have done well in the past in spite of these handicaps but such a situation can not continue. We are now in a dangerous position because of our dependence for so large a proportion of our money on three or four very large gifts. The loss of any one of these could cause us to have a miserable failure."

The disbanding of the Community Chest here could be a possibility, Robertson said, if the disinterest remains, and this would throw the burden of nine campaigns on the local community. This expensive, extra work would "hit the hardest those who by their disinterest caused it to come about, he related.

$100,000 Raised

The Chest president revealed the "facts are that almost every city the size of Cumberland is raising just about $100,000 and many of them are raising quite a bit more, as much as $150,000."

He pointed out he did not believe that he thought Cumberland should give these amounts just because other cities have done so but "our goal should be to give our agencies the kind of support they need and deserve to carry out even better programs for the benefit of the entire community."

Robertson emphasized the City of Cumberland should "be raising so much more than we do and yet every one knows the terrific struggle it has been to raise something in the $80,000's." The chest's goal last year was $87,000 and the final tabulation, according to Robertson's report, was $88,535.

Praise came to Frederick W. Eiler,

Board Requests Fire Co. Reports

All 22 volunteer fire companies in Allegany county which received funds during the past fiscal year from the Allegany County Board of Commissioners are being requested to submit to the board on or before February 15 an accounting of appropriations made to the companies in the period between September, 1948, and October, 1950.

Board Clerk James G. Stevenson has prepared a letter which the board yesterday authorized him to send to all 22 companies. "This request is made in lieu of requesting officers of the various companies to appear before the board in person to make such accounting," Stevenson's letter states.

A detailed statement of expenditures made for the purchase, repair or maintenance of fire-fighting equipment and buildings is sought by the board.

Several weeks ago the companies requested that the county commissioners increase appropriations to the various fire fighting units. During the past fiscal year the departments obtained a total of $15,675 from the county commissioners.

City Asks Action On Housing Plan

The Mayor and Council has asked the Public Housing Administration to expedite public housing plans for this city.

In a telegram to Gilbert Zeiler, of the PHA in Washington, the city requested approval of Development Program Md-5-1 submitted by the Housing Authority of the City of Cumberland "as expeditiously as possible so construction may be started to alleviate unemployment and substandard housing in this area."

Community Chest Selects Five Board Members

Campaign Leaders Honored At Dinner

Five directors were named at the annual dinner meeting of the Cumberland Community Chest last night at the Central YMCA at which the general chairman and workers were honored.

James W. Bishop, Roy W. Eves and Clarence Lippel were re-elected to the board of directors while new members are Mrs. H. W. Eliason and Clarence E. Gehr.

The nominating committee selected 10 persons for the office of Board of Directors of the local Red Feather organization at its meeting January 2. Lewis J. Ort declined the nomination because of press of other business. Others nominated included George A. Caswell, David T. Davis, Robert L. Ebert and George M. Martin.

Arthur B. Gibson, principal speaker at the 24th annual dinner, made presentation of testimonials to Frederic W. Eiler, general chairman of the 1950-51 campaign, and Mrs. Eliason, chairman of the women's division, in appreciation of their efforts in helping raise the $88,535 contributed to the Community Chest's campaign.

Gibson said "the success of the Community Chest in the past years has been one of the greatest deterrents to further socialism movements by our national government" and called the chest campaign "more than just a collection of dollars—it is an institution."

Gibson told the gathering the chest was a means for individuals to get together and carry out a program to take care of unfortunate and indigent in the community as well as support those organizations which lead to character building of the community's youth.

Teamwork Is Keynote

In accepting the testimonial in behalf of the various chairmen of all the sections of the campaign organization down to the best worker and contributor Eiler credited the success of the campaign to teamwork and specifically commended those employer and employe groups which adopted a payroll deduction plan. Eiler stated the acceptance of this idea "was perhaps the greatest single factor in the raising of the $88,535 secured this year." He expressed the hope this plan would be taken up by many other labor-management groups in 1951.

Financial Report

The treasurer's report of Chest activities showed receipts from October 1, 1949 to November 30, 1950 amounted to $80,606.23 including pledges and that disbursements amounted to $80,541.07 over the same period, leaving a balance of $65.16. Actual receipts received during this period amounted to $77,262.54 or 92 per cent of the amount pledged. Additional receipts after November raised the fund to $84,275.

Soldier Thanks Organization Here For Christmas Package

A letter from a soldier in the Pacific area has been received by Allegany County Chapter American Red Cross, expressing his thanks for a Christmas package prepared by local organizations and delivered by the Red Cross, according to Mrs. Lee Witherup, executive secretary. The letter follows:

Dear Friends:

My name is Jasper E. Crawford and I hail from LaPorte, Indiana. On Christmas Day I was somewhere in the middle of the Pacific Ocean aboard the USNS Marine Lynx troop ship. The day was topped by the large Christmas package I received from you.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your very nice Christmas gift. I hope you can realize how much enjoyment I received from that Christmas cheer.

The candy, cards, set of dominoes, comb, pocket size books, soap, and stationery were very nice. I especially appreciated the books as they afforded a pleasant past time.

Thanking you again for your thoughtfulness, I wish your organization the best of luck.

Sincerely yours,
Jasper E. Crawford, Pfc.

The gifts were boxed locally by the Auxiliaries of veterans organizations with the cooperation of Mrs. Nat Guggenheimer and Mrs. Hammond Amick. Contribution for the gifts, were made by the Navy Mothers, Gold Star Mothers, Eight and 40, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the American Legion, Mrs. Witherup said.

Board To Study Fire Safety At Old Infirmary

Commissioners Get Recommendations

Allegany County's Board of Commissioners will inspect the old County Infirmary building Tuesday, January 30, to study recommended fire safety measures at that structure.

This action was taken at yesterday's meeting after the commissioners received a letter from Hunter B. Helfrich, head of Wright, Richardson and Company, Inc., in which he set forth three specific fire safety recommendations. He asked for an opportunity to explain the proposals to the commissioners in more detail at a later date. The commissioners decided that he should meet with them for the inspection in two weeks.

Helfrich said the recommendations were concurred in by Cumberland City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer, Acting Fire Chief William L. Lindner and Fire Inspector R. Paul Reid, who inspected the building with him.

The recommendations:

(1) Remove existing second floor porch from the east end of the building and install necessary steel or concrete fire escape together with panic bolt and other improvements.

(2) Cut away certain existing portions of the second floor porch at the west end of the building and install steel or concrete fire escape.

(3) Cover stairway at the west end of the building and two central stairways with fireproof material and provide fire proof doors at each of these three stairways. This fire proofing should consist of material that would retard drafts for approximately one hour.

Auto Tag Bill Progresses In State Assembly

Whitworth Hits U. Of Md. Plan

A favorable report on an automobile tag bill for Allegany County was submitted yesterday by the House Ways and Means committee in the Maryland General Assembly.

The action means that the bill authorizing the Board of County Commissioners to appoint an agent, other than the county treasurer, to distribute license plates in Allegany County, will be printed and go to its third reading.

Delegate Horace Whitworth said he will try to hold up all General Assembly appropriations for the University of Maryland until someone explains how a building got started ahead of time at Princess Anne College, the Associated Press reported.

The college is a Negro branch of the university. Charles E. Brohawn, Cambridge contractor, has done about $30,000 worth of work on a new $271,000 agricultural engineering building there. The State Department of Public Improvements has declared it gave him no authorization to start the project and the board of public works voted last week to reject Brohawn's bid.

"I will ask for an investigation of the whole matter and a publication of the findings before any appropriations are acted upon," said Whitworth, who is a member of the House Ways and Means Committee.

"The use of public funds is a public business. The people are entitled to know how their money is being spent. All the cards should be put on the table."

Then, referring to Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University, Whitworth said: "Dr. Byrd has such unlimited control over special funds of the university that he may find some way to pay for this work without the sanction of the legislature or the board of public works.

"If Dr. Byrd didn't authorize this work he at least knows who did."

Dr. Byrd said he "has no more authority than a jack rabbit" to order Brohawn to proceed with the construction. He has promised to make a report in writing to the Board of Public Works.

Brohawn has declined to say on what authority he went ahead with the work.

Delegate Whitworth was elected acting minority House floor leader yesterday to take the place of Delegate Rudolph Lofstrand (R-Montgomery county) who is ill and has been hospitalized in Washington.

Delegate Whitworth will be acting floor leader until Lofstrand resumes his duties.

Bills Introduced

House bills introduced yesterday included:

HB53—by Balto 6th delegation—to make it mandatory that all corporations employing wage earners and engaged in mining, manufacturing, operating an electric railroad, street railway, telegraph, telephone or express company shall pay such employes weekly (Ways & Means).

HB56—by Acker—to require employers to pays National Guardsmen in their employe the difference between their regular wages and salaries and their field training pay when they go to summer camp (Veterans, Militia and State Police).

HB59—by Luber—to increase the retirement pay of state employes forced to retire because of injuries suffered in line of duty to two-thirds of their former annual pay (Ways and Means).

Auxiliary Police Organize For Civil Defense

Plan Swift Action For Emergencies

Auxiliary police of this city, many of them veterans of Civilian Defense work during World War II, last night began plans for a swift reorganization to meet any eventuality in civil defense needs of today.

Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn, chairman of the meeting called last night in City Hall, pointed out the time is at hand when Cumberland must make some preparation for a war which "is almost sure to happen."

"It is the responsibility of the Police Department to protect the lives and property of its citizens and we must organize and be ready for any eventuality," he added.

Chief Flynn congratulated members of the organization who served during World War II for the splendid work during that crisis in assisting the regular police.

"You never grumbled, Chief Flynn said," and you gave of your time without fanfare. That is why America is great. Her people stick together in time of distress without regard to race, color or creed.

Must Carry Load

"This war, if it comes, will require a supreme effort of all of us if we are to survive and maintain our freedom from the communist countries which threaten to envelop all the free peoples of the world," he observed.

Full cooperation of the Cumberland Police Department was offered by John J. Long, commissioner of fire and police.

Pointing out that fast and efficient action will be needed if adequate civil defense needs are to be met, Commissioner Long said the department is depending upon the auxiliary policemen to carry the additional load of civil defense work, which is far too great for the staff of the regular department.

Auxiliary police, Chief Flynn pointed out, will be badly needed for civil defense in the impending war in crises involving panic, rioting, looting and traffic regulation.

Other speakers at the meeting were Harold Armbruster, president; Joseph Harrison, chief of the Cumberland Auxiliary Police, Inc.; Graydon S. Dunlap, assistant chief; Eugene Kressing, first aid specialist for the group, and Tech. Sgt. John H. Newhouse, adviser.

Some 75 members of the auxiliary police attended, with some 30 calling in to report they were unable to attend because of work.

Chief Flynn said some 150 auxiliary police are available at present in Cumberland and that the organization may be enlarged to meet the needs imposed by civil defense.

Plan First Aid Work

Action taken at the meeting included a decision for all members to take either the standard, refresher or advanced First Aid courses offered through the American Red Cross.

A large number of the auxiliary police reported they had taken the course during World War II but desired to brush up on first aid before emergencies may arise.

Auxiliary police in this city formed an organization in 1942 which has been kept intact for just such emergencies as the present civil defense program.

Perhaps 50 members of the auxiliary police are uniformed and additional uniforms will be available soon.

Officials announced that captains for districts in the city will be named at the next meeting of the auxiliary.

The captains, Chief Flynn said, will then select assistants to protect their sections.

Kauffman To Speak To B'nai B'rith Tomorrow

Western Maryland Lodge B'nai B'rith will hold its regular meeting at 8:30 tomorrow evening in the vestry rooms of B'er Chayim Temple.

David Kauffman is to be the guest speaker for the evening. His topic will be "The Economic Development in Cumberland."

During the business session action will be taken on the Western Maryland Lodge's contribution to the Hillel Foundation for the University of Maryland at College Park; and for George Washington University, Washington.

Assistance in the March of Dimes campaign will be discussed also.

Concluding the evening refreshments will be served by a committee headed by Harry Stein.

Demand For State's Cabins In Garrett County Heavy

There have been over 300 applications received for renting cabins this summer at the State's two recreational areas in Garrett County, according to H. C. Buckingham, state forester.

Although there are only 13 cabins at Herrington Manor and 11 at New Germany, 279 applications were received the first two days this year. About 75 per cent of these applications requested cabins for the last two weeks in July, and Buckingham pointed out that it is impossible to accommodate all of them. Cabins are alloted in the order the applications are received.

Cabins are rented for a minimum of one week and a maximum of two weeks. Built by the Civilian Conservation Corps in the late 1930s and opened in 1940, the areas were developed originally to develop the recreational area of Garrett County and to attract people to buy, rent, and live there.

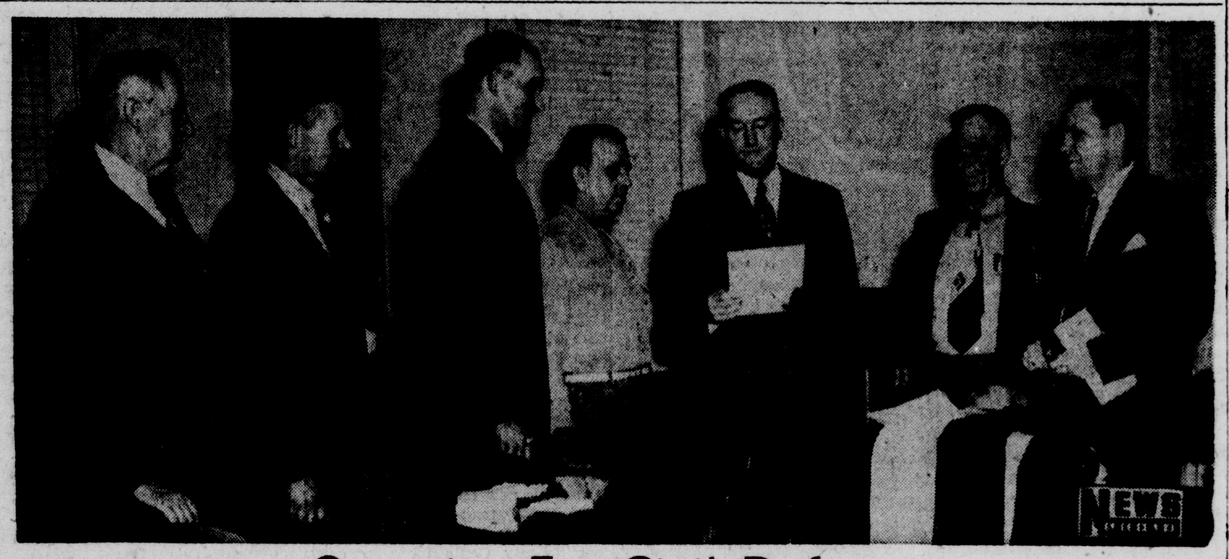
The cabins are owned by the State of Maryland and are completely equipped with hot and cold water, electricity, etc. They are maintained out of revenue collected from patrons and Garrett County is given 15 per cent.

Picnic facilities include a 50 acre lake at Herrington Manor and a 10 acre lake at New Germany. A life guard is on hand at all times that swimming is permitted. There is no charge for picnicing nor swimming.

Buckingham said Garrett County has cooperated by building a hard surface road from Oakland to the area. Pointing out the beauty of the area, Buckingham said there are colonies of beaver on the streams, deer is plentiful, wood ducks, sea gull and other animals and birds around there.

Nearby are many falls—Muddy Creek Falls, Swallow Falls, and Tolliver Falls — each having picnic areas.

The Department of State Forests and Parks maintains the areas, the state forester said, adding that William H. Johnson is in charge of them here.



Organize For Civil Defense

Officials of the Cumberland Police Department and the Auxiliary Police Department are seen last night as plans were formulated for a swift organization of auxiliary police for civil defense needs in this city. They are (left to right) Joseph M. Harrison, chief, C. S. Browning and Edward B. Wright, of the Auxiliary Police: Tech. Sgt. John M. Newhouse; Police Chief R. Emmett Flynn, T. E. Carder, of the auxiliary force and Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long, who promised full cooperation in the program.

Receipts At Post Office Show Decrease Last Year

Employes at the local Post Office worked 2,345 hours less in 1950 than in 1949, according to Thomas F. Conlon, postmaster.

Conlon pointed out that in 1950 postal workers were paid for 146,623 hours and in 1949 they were paid for 148,968 hours. He attributed the decrease to a decrease in carrier service in the area.

Total postal receipts, including the sale of stamps, second and third class mailing, box rents, and meter mailings, for 1950 amounted to $377,939.46. In 1949, they amounted to $381,493.02.

Conlon pointed out that during the last two quarters, of 1950 postal receipts were greater than in 1949. During the last quarter of 1950 postal receipts were $6,000 greater than during the last quarter of 1949.

Further statistics show that in 1950, 102,999 money orders were issued at the local Post Office, whereas 108,751 were issued in 1949. The number of money orders paid or cashed in 1950 was 96,204 and in 1949 there were 95,224 cashed.

There was an increase of 1,289 postal notes issued in 1950 over 1949, with 6,856 being issued last year and 5,567 in 1949. Postal notes that were cashed or paid also increased, with 8,930 being cashed in 1950 compared to 7,319 to 1949.

The sale of savings bonds decreased in 1950 compared to 1949. In 1950, sales amounted to $71,456.25; in 1949, they were $89,175.

At the end of 1949 there were 503 depositors with $377,535 in the Postal Savings System at the local Post Office. There were 489 depositors $367,827 at the end of 1950.

Postmaster Conlon said the present trend seems to indicate that conditions with the Post Office during 1951 will be similar to those in 1950.

Weather Forecast
Generally fair and milder today.

Stock Margin Requirements Raised To 75%

Anti-Inflation Step By Reserve Board

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board tonight raised the required down payment on purchases of stock to 75 per cent of the value, effective tomorrow. The previous requirement was 50 per cent down.

The 75 per cent down payment, another anti-inflation step, will apply to "short sales" as well as to purchases.

It was the first change in market credit terms, known as "margin requirements," in about two years.

Brief Announcement

The board's brief announcement simply said:

"The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System today amended its Regulations T and U relating respectively to margin requirements of brokers and dealers, by increasing the requirements from 50 to 75 per cent, effective January 17, 1951.

"The increased requirements apply to both purchases and short sales. No other change is made in the regulations."

The timing of the action was something of a surprise because use of credit had not been considered a major factor in the relatively brisk volume of trading on the stock market recently.

Psychological Aim

Neither had there been any sign that Washington officials considered the rising trend of stocks as any especial inflation danger, although there have been official urgings against "speculation" in any form.

In some official quarters, the new increase in margin requirements was described as having chiefly a psychological aim, to help dampen any speculative tendencies.

During much of World War II, and for a period thereafter, the board required full cash payment for stock purchases.

Gehr Acquitted In Wife's Slaying

CARMEL, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Herbert Gehr was acquitted today in the slaying of his divorce-seeking wife as she prowled around a mountain cabin where he was weekending with another woman.

The handsome, 40-year-old New York City television director broke down and sobbed at a jury's verdict of "not guilty" second degree murder charges.

He could have drawn life in prison if convicted.

A packed courtroom burst into applause as Foreman Nicholas Lorenz announced the jury's verdict. The panel deliberated two hours and 21 minutes.

There were seven women—all mothers—and five men on the jury. Gehr, himself, is the father of two young daughters.

Absent from the courtroom at the climax of the trial was Mrs. Dorothea Matthews, 31, the trim and sultry other woman in the case.

She testified for the state but even the prosecution admitted she was on Gehr's side.

Gehr, a German immigrant and one-time $16,000-a-year Life magazine photographer, admitted shooting his 31-year-old wife, Andrea, last July 10.

But he said he thought prowlers were bothering the cottage door and that he fired through it with no idea his wife was outside.

Army Rookie Will Be Private Again

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Army rookie again will be called a private, instead of a recruit.

The Army announced today the change will be made Jan. 21 for morale and administrative reasons.

Since August 1, 1948, soldiers in the first four months of basic Army training have been called recruits. But under the present accelerated training program, the Army said, many soldiers complete basic work in less than four months and go into specialist training still with the title of recruit. The Army said it found this had a bad effect on morale.

Senate Showdown On Issue Of U. S. Troops For Europe Is Scheduled Next Tuesday

Demos Will Attempt To Sidetrack Wherry's Resolution Challenging Truman's Authority

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP) — Senate administration leaders decided today to try to sidetrack the Wherry resolution challenging President Truman's authority to send American troops to Europe without the consent of Congress.

The strategy is to put off a real showdown until after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the proposed international army in Western Europe, returns from his present European tour. Administration officials believe his report will back up the idea of sending troops to Europe.

By agreement, the Senate will begin voting next Tuesday on what to do with the Wherry resolution. The Democratic Policy Committee of the Senate decided today to try to send it to committee for "study."

There were reports that Sen. Connally (D-Tex), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, might later offer a substitute resolution saying it is desirable to send troops to Europe.

Sen. Wherry (R-Neb), GOP floor leader in the Senate, has called his resolution the "crux" of the Great Debate on foreign policy now raging in Congress and across the nation.

The resolution would oppose—but not prohibit — the President's acting alone in committing troops to the defense of Europe.

Mr. Truman has said he will "consult" with Congress, but will not be bound by its decisions. He has contended that under the Constitution, as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, he has authority to send troops anywhere in the world.

Wherry's resolution would put the Senate on record as declaring that "no ground forces of the United States should be assigned to duty in the European area for the purpose of the North Atlantic treaty pending the adoption of a policy with respect thereto by the Congress."

In a formal speech today, Wherry told the Senate:

"The meaning of this resolution is plain. It neither approves nor disapproves the sending of United State ground forces to Atlantic treaty countries to become part of a peacetime international army.

"The only purpose of this resolution is to hold in abeyance the assignment of United States troops to Western Europe until the Congress — as the policy-making branch of the government — acts upon the matter."

Argument Over 18-Year Draft Grows Warmer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP) — Renewed backing from Defense Secretary George C. Marshall for a draft of 18-year-olds failed today to shake hardening opposition in the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee.

Directly, Gen. Marshall's new arguments were only against a suggested compromise under which youths might be drafted earlier but could not be sent overseas until they reached 19, the present draft age. He said that would "hamstring" the services.

But Chairman Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex) rejected the whole 18-year idea, at least as a measure necessary to reach present goals.

"You do not have to touch 18-year-olds to make up that force," he said, referring to administration plans for armed forces totaling 3,500,000 by June 30.

And Sen. Stennis (D-Miss) put in:

"We are asked to leave the 20 and 21-year-old at home simply because he has a wife, and she may be earning more than he is. I want more light before I support such legislation."

The Defense Department says the alternative to an 18-year draft age is to take husbands, and perhaps fathers and veterns.

Johnson and Stennis were not alone in their stand. They only happened to be the most vocal in a hearing session that showed evidence of sharpening tempers.

For instance, Chairman Russell (D-Ga) of the Armed Services Committee, of which the Johnson group is a subcommittee, greeted the 18-year draft proposal last week with a comment that the idea already had "two strikes" on it.

Since then senators have reported a growing flow of messages from home protesting the plan to lower the induction age.

Md. State Trooper Breathes New Life Into Crash Victim

BEL AIR, Md., Jan. 16 (AP) — A Maryland state trooper breathed new life into a three-year-old boy strangling to death early today in the wreckage of a highway smashup.

William T. Conley, Jr., whose parents live in the Baltimore suburb of Dundalk, is in Harford Memorial Hospital here with a fractured skull and a brain injury.

Doctors said he would be dead except for the quick action taken by Trooper B. T. Haywood.

The little boy was trapped when a car and a big trailer-truck collided near Wonowingo. His neck was caught between the car's roof and the top of the front seat. He apparently was dead when Trooper Haywood reached him.

For five minutes, Haywood breathed down the boy's throat. Billy began crying. The other rescuers doubled their feverish efforts and pried the wreckage open enough to get the boy out.

State Senate Unanimously Approves "Frisking" Bill

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 16 (AP) — The Senate passed unanimously today a bill to make carrying concealed firearms a felony, the most serious of crime.

It marked the first time either house of the General Assembly had ever approved one of the so-called "frisking" bills which have animated the last four sessions.

Senators turned the statewide measure over to delegates for consideration in an afternoon which saw:

1. Sen. Turnbull (D-Baltimore County) demand a complete airing of mystery construction at Maryland State College for Negroes at Princess Anne.

2—Delegate Sklar (D-Balto 4th) propose a permanent 15-member House committee on civil defense.

3—The Legislature's special mental hospitals committee agree informally on Delegate Robinson (D-Balto 4th) as chairman.

4. The Senate pass five bills, the first they have cleared since the session began 13 days ago.

5. A proposal to authorize sale of Camp Ritchie to the federal government referred to Gov. McKeldin.

The concealed arms measure had been endorsed by the Legislative Council. By making the crime a felony, it would accomplish the same objective as previously doomed "frisking" bills. In effect, it would legalize as evidence any arms seized without a warrant.

Turnbull's resolution, calling for "pitiless publicity" of premature work on a proposed $271,000 agricultural engineering building at Princess Anne, was turned over to the Senate Rules Committee.

Both the Senate and House met for only a short time. The Senate passed measures to waive the auto titling tax for new residents transferring their registration from another state; to place responsibility for damage in the city or county whose police commandeer a private citizens' car; to require a clear statement of insurance coverage in installment contracts for car sales; and to legalize reproductions of ancient Baltimore city records.

10 Lose Lives In Plane Crash Near Spokane

EDWALL, Wash., Jan. 16 (AP) —A twin-engined passenger plane carried 10 persons to their deaths today as it hurtled down through the snow and crashed near an Eastern Washington farmhouse.

All aboard the Northwest Airlines plane died—seven passengers and three crew members.

Pilot Lloyd Rickman, Seattle, said in his last radio message he was at an elevation of 6,000 feet and "in trouble."

The plane—a Martin 202 capable of carrying 36 passengers—hit the ground and burned on the L. E. Bundy farm about 800 feet from the farmhouse. It had taken off from Spokane 15 or 20 minutes before on a flight to Seattle.

Airlines officials in Spokane said they couldn't tell yet what had happened.

No Complete Bodies Found

"There just wasn't anything left to see," a reporter said after visiting the scene 20 miles west of Spokane. "The plane just isn't there. Mr. Bundy, the farm owner, couldn't even tell it was a plane until he saw the largest piece left — an engine."

Sgt. William Todd, of the state patrol, said there were no complete bodies found, "all there was left was pieces, and small ones."

Bundy said he ran out to the scene of the crash and found little left.

"It looked then just like it does now (three hours after the crash), just pieces. x x x"

"I kicked around until I found a book that said Northwest Airlines on it—then I knew what it was.

Crash Is Described

This was Mrs. Bundy's description of the crash:

"I was in the house with my husband and two children. The first we heard was a roar, like it was trying to gain altitude. Then it started down. It flew right over our house and crashed just beyond.

"We didn't see it before the crash because it came so fast, we didn't know which way to look. It was snowing and blowing fairly hard.

"It was headed back toward Spokane. If it was flying toward Seattle it must have turned around to fly back to Spokane. It was awfully low over the house. It was frightening."

French Check Vietminh Drive

SAIGON, Indochina, Jan. 16 (AP)—French forces have temporarily checked the attack of 30,000 Vietminh troops in a toe-to-toe fight 30 miles northwest of Hanoi, army spokesmen announced tonight.

The contending armies, however, apparently were throwing their reserves into a crucial battle, which could end in breaking the back of Ho Chi Minh's Communist-led attack or the swift fall of Hanoi, capital of Northern Indochina.

Like the Chinese Communists in Korea, the Vietminh had large reserves, which the French could not match to fill gaps caused by casualties.

Attacking frontally for the first time in the four years of the Indochina war, the Vietminh first threw about 20 battalions, or about 20,000 men, into a narrow salient in the Vinh Yen area, 30 miles northwest of Hanoi, the French said.

Reported Marriage Of Girl, 12, Is Probed

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 16 (AP)—The reported marriage of a 12-year-old rural school girl to a 26-year-old rubber plant worker is being investigated by county officials.

The girl is Helen Ford. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Ford of nearby Clay Township. She left her sixth grade class and has started housekeeping in nearby Mishawaka.

The girl told newsmen she was married to George Ford at Alcorn, Miss., Dec. 23. She said Ford is a brother of her stepfather.

Donald Coleman, county attendance officer, said the girl's mother told him her daughter eloped against her will. Coleman said, however, "I gather that the mother did not object to the marriage."

Dewey Says Truman Is Playing Politics

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey accused President Truman today of playing "politics as usual" and endangering national safety by his proposed $1,400,000,000 increase in non-defense spending in the new federal budget.

Plane Crashes In Field, Disintegrates

The wreckage of a Northwest Airlines passenger plane is strewn over a snow-covered field near Edwall, Wash., after it crashed yesterday, killing seven passengers and three crew members.

Nation Moves Closer General Price Controls

Government Moves To Set Up Machinery

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The government sought to speed the creation of price control machinery today, amid new indications that a general price freeze will be ordered as soon as officials consider it feasible.

An official who was extremely influential in last week's decision against immediate issuance of a 30-day price freeze made it clear today that he is not opposing a freeze—but is concerned with the timing of it.

He outlined the conditions under which he would be willing to risk a freeze without having a large and experienced staff on hand.

Favors Out-And-Out Freeze

And he said that when the time comes, he favors an out-and-out freeze, rather than the sidetracked proposal which would have required business firms to give 30 days notice before raising prices.

This man declined to be quoted by name. Nevertheless his views are important to the public because of the weight he swings in the government on the critical question of price and wage controls

Meanwhile, other officials disclosed that the Economic Stabilization Agency expects to have its 13 regional offices open for business by Feb. 1.

They said no regional directors have been appointed so far, but that some competent federal official in each of the 13 cities is being asked to serve as acting director until a permanent head is chosen.

13 Regional Offices

It has already been announced that the regional offices will be in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Richmond, Atlanta, Cleveland, Chicago, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas, Denver, San Francisco and Seattle.

Existence of a field organization was one of the minimum conditions laid down for a general price freeze by the influential official who opposes a freeze immediately. He feels that a certain number of district offices should be opened, in addition to the regional offices.

Railroad Freight Rate Hike Asked

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today was asked to approve a $470,000,000 a year jump in the nation's railroad freight charges. It would be the ninth boost since World War II.

Some 466 lines joined in the petition, presented on behalf of the industry as a whole.

It asked for a general six per cent advance in the rates, but with increases on fresh fruits, vegetables and melons held to six cents per hundred pounds; on lumber and sugar to four cents per hundred; and on coal to 18 cents per net ton and 20 cents per gross ton.

The railroads gave notice that they will come before ICC next Friday to propose that the revisions be made effective at once, on an emergency basis.

Baltimore Waterfront Fire Destroys Decommissioned Troopship, $5,000,000 Pier

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16 (AP) — The old troopship which took Woodrow Wilson to Europe in 1918 was gutted tonight by a raging fire that swept Baltimore's south waterfront and injured seven persons.

The flames, swept by 40-mile winds, also destroyed a $5,000,000 empty ammunition pier, and burned a large tug and barges of equipment collected for work on the Chesapeake Bay bridge.

Only one of the seven was reported hurt seriously. Coast Guardsman Robert Long, 17, fell from the upper deck of the CGC Chinook while manning a hose. His head struck an anchor.

He was taken to Marine Hospital and was under observation for possible brain hemorrhage. He also suffered minor cuts and bruises on both arms.

The other six received minor cuts, bruises and burns and were treated on the scene.

The 40-year-old transport George Washington caught fire shortly after flames swept down the 1,000-foot timber pier from a small blaze in a shack at the head of the pier.

A tug trying to nose in between the burning pier and the George Washington caught fire itself and had to be abandoned.

Later efforts freed the ship and a sister transport, the Gen. Edmund B. Alexander. The Alexander was towed to safety in a nearby cove and did not catch fire.

Both the old vessels had been decommissioned.

It was the George Washington on which President Wilson traveled at the end of World War I to attend the Versailles peace conference.

The blaze began about 4 p. m. By the time the first fire-fighting equipment had threaded its way through the heavy rush-hour traffic the fire had eaten its way the length of the pier.

In all, there were 11 alarms sounded for the spectacular blaze.

At 9 p. m. the danger of further spread of the flames seemed past, but an all night fire lighting up the waterfront was in prospect.

It appeared that nothing could be done to save the old ammunition loading pier or any of the burning craft. The flames would just have to burn out.

Food Prices Reach New All-Time High

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—Retail food prices reached a new all-time high during the last two weeks of December, the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated today.

An increase of 1.2 per cent between Dec. 15 and Jan. 2 was enough to establish a record one per cent higher than the previous peak of July 15, 1948.

The price index on Jan. 2 was estimated at 218.9 per cent of the 1935-39 average, based on a survey of 50 foods in eight cities. That was 1.2 per cent above Dec. 15 and 6.9 per cent above June 15, prior to the Korean conflict.

The largest price increase was 4.7 per cent for fats and oils.

Enlistments Are Curbed By USAF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Air Force announced tonight the suspension of enlistments except for personnel with previous Air Force service.

A spokesman said the action was taken due to heavy enlistments and overcrowding of facilities at Air Force indoctrination centers. He said it is hoped the suspension can be lifted about Feb. 1.

There are three exceptions to the order, he said. Still being accepted are personnel with prior Air Force service, applicants for the Women's Air Force (WAF), and young men who have been appointed to aviation cadet courses for pilots and navigators.

The Air Force spokesman told a reporter that it is hoped to have the new Sampson Air Force base at Geneva, N. Y., ready for operation by the middle of February. He said this would greatly facilitate handling of enlistees.

Desperado Will Be Tried In Oklahoma

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Department of Justice said tonight that William E. Cook, 23-year-old desperado suspected of killing eight persons in western states, will be prosecuted in Oklahoma City on federal kidnapping charges.

A department official said U. S. Attorney Ernest Tolin in Los Angeles has been directed to transfer Cook to custody of federal authorities in Oklahoma.

"Ike" Reaches Lisbon On His Defense Tour

LISBON, Portugal, Jan. 16 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower arrived tonight on the southern leg of his tour of Atlantic pact powers after declaring in Britain that no free nation, no matter how strong, can afford an attempt to stand alone.

This statement was made at a news conference in London before the supreme commander of the Atlantic treaty organization took off for Lisbon and other capitals to view prospects for defense against Communist aggression.

Escaped Prisoner Caught After Wild 200-Mile Flight

WILLARD, Utah, Jan. 16 (AP)—An escaped Idaho prisoner took three hostages on a wild 200-mile flight today. But he couldn't fire his gun fast enough to prevent recapture when officers surprised him as he pulled into this little Northern Utah town.

Robert Lee Gilford, 35, used a butcher knife to threaten a guard and escape from the county jail in Twin Falls, Idaho. He gained possession of a gun, then forced a deputy sheriff and two city policemen to drive him away in a city police car.

Originally held on a minor charge, Gilford now faces a federal charge of kidnaping.

Three times on his flight Gilford used the car's police radio to warn officers against trying to stop him. He said he'd kill his three hostages if they did.

Federal, state and county officers were in on the arrest. Gilford was taken to Brigham City, Utah, and placed in the Box Elder County jail.

Combat Team Enters Suwon, Then Pulls Out

Takes Up Positions Just South Of Town

TOKYO, Wednesday, Jan. 17 (AP)—A fast-moving Allied combat team, paced by tanks and fiery air attacks, jabbed into Suwon, 17 air miles south of Communist-occupied Seoul, Tuesday to harass three Chinese Red armies massing for a new onslaught in South Korea.

Uncovering an apparent weakness on the west flank of the Chinese forces, the Eighth Army smashed a small Communist unit of 100 men inside Suwon's ancient walls, then pulled back after dusk to defensive positions south of the town.

It was the second straight day of sharp, aggressive actions which the Eighth Army termed "reconnaissance in force."

Armor-led infantry entered Osan, 28 air miles south of Seoul, Monday, then swerved northeast nine miles and captured Kumyangjang and nearby Chon.

Entire Front Fluid

The whole Korean front was so fluid that Eighth Army censors ordered correspondents to refrain from identifying any units below army level.

Apparently one purpose of the Eighth Army's lightning left jabs in the west was to throw off balance the typically slow Chinese buildup of an estimated 120,000 men south of the Han River.

Allied airmen struck this force and claimed 1,750 casualties in two days.

The strikes in the west coincided with the withdrawal of United Nations forces from the 16-day old Wonju salient in Central Korea.

American, French and Dutch troops, in hard fighting there for 11 out of the past 16 days, plugged the two best highways leading south through the snow-mantled Sobaek mountains.

The gallant Allied stand was intended to straighten Eighth Army lines, a communique announced Tuesday night.

Reds Dispersed In East

The communique also said a United Nations force had dispersed 200 Reds 20 miles northwest of Samchok, some 45 miles down the east coast from the 38th parallel. This was the first action reported in the east coast sector in almost two weeks.

Eighth Army tactics in Korea appear to be to pull back whenever Communist pressure gets too heavy. The policy covering the hard-hitting withdrawal is to preserve maximum Allied strength while sapping the enemy.

On the 17th day of the Communist offensive aimed at sweeping Gen. MacArthur's forces from South Korea, the Chinese and Korean Reds have advanced in force from 45 to 70 miles below the 38th parallel. The front lines extend 150 miles from west to east and run through the rugged central mountain spine.

Pravda Attacks U. N. Truce Plan

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru told newsmen today the United Nations cease-fire plan for Korea meets many of Red China's basic conditions for a settlement and Peiping has promised it a careful study.

However, word reached here from Moscow even while the Indian leader was speaking that Pravda had taken a long-distance swipe at the plan. The Communist Party newspaper declared the plan is a device by which the U. S. State Department intends to gain time in order to reinforce and reorganize the American troops in Korea for continued warfare. The article was written by Pravda's Lake Success correspondent, A. Rassadin.

Nehru's government, of all non-Communist governments which have missions in Peiping, is in close touch with the Red Chinese regime. He is understood to have sent a message to Premier Chou En-Lai urging acceptance of the plan, stressing the sincerity of its sponsors and arguing a Far Eastern settlement would help ease world tension.

Soldier Sent To Prison For Sex Attack On WAC

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16 (AP)—James L. Farrar, 23-year-old soldier from Clifton Forge, Va., convicted of a sex attack on a 41-year-old WAC sergeant, was sentenced today to eight years in federal prison.

The attack occurred last Sept. 30 at Fort Meade, Md.

The WAC, a native of Pittsburgh, testified she struggled with Farrar for 45 minutes. The soldier weighs 235 pounds and is six feet seven inches tall.

Seven City Engineering Employes Retire; Department Reorganized

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, has announced a program for reorganizing routine duties of employes in the Engineering Department.

At the same time, the commissioner said that seven employes at the city warehouse have reached retirement age and are no longer on city payrolls. One of the seven retired because of ill health.

Mrs. Roeder said the men will not be replaced as their duties will be absorbed by others. This will mean a saving of $17,774 a year, she added.

A change was also announced in the janitorial setup at City Hall and the Public Safety Building. One of the three shifts has been abandoned, occasioned by the retirement of W. A. Brubaker. His duties are incorporated into the other two shifts. One of the janitor jobs at the Public Safety Building has been abolished since the death of an employe and his duties incorporated into two other jobs.

The two moves mean a total saving of $4,092 a year, Mrs. Roeder said.

In the reorganizing of the engineering routine, Mrs. Roeder has prepared list of "duties" for each member of the department.

Here are three examples: Draftsman—1. Repair maps which are in bad condition; 2. If maps are too bad, tracings are to be made and old maps destroyed; 3. Fill in for crew members, if necessary; 4. Look up information for crew when they call or come in to get same; 5. Look up information regarding bench marks, elevations and profiles in reply to requests for same; 6. Procure information for the public regarding establishing plumbing connections, depths of sewers, etc.; 7. Post plan of work on bulletin board and check off when completed. (Mrs. Roeder notes that there is enough needed work on map repairs and tracings to last for years.)

For the assistant city engineer and his crew the following is designated—1. Upon request, make survey and establish grades for streets, alleys, sewers, water lines and gas lines; 2. Upon request, run true courses for different streets; 3. Establish more bench marks and inspect old ones; 4. Establish grades on unpaved streets for future paving; 5. Cut brush on city limit line; 6. Notify the office of any persons on the crew off sick or on vacation; 7. Responsible for safety measures of crew on job; 8. Responsible for use and care of instruments and vehicles in Engineering Department; 9. Responsible for six months inventory report of instruments and supplies under his jurisdiction; 10. Post daily plan of work on bulletin board in Engineering Department; 11. Design construction jobs and projects; 12. Inspection of construction works; 13. Make lists in accordance with the order of their importance, of dirt streets which should be improved with gutters and curbs and have engineering plans completed before July 1, 1951 on most urgent ones.

For the construction foreman, the duties listed include—1. Receive all requests for construction jobs; 2. Responsible for carrying out work on all construction jobs; 3. Responsible to supervise men working on construction jobs; 4. Get design from Engineering Department for all construction jobs before starting; 5. At the conclusion of each construction job, request and see that an inspection of the job is made by a member of the Engineering Department and date of inspection marked on design sheet by engineer; 6. Report to Engineering Department any changes in any construction job which has already been completed; 7. Turn in to warehouse clerk the daily time sheets for his men; 8. See that emergency requests on construction jobs are taken care of first. 9. Set up a schedule of jobs or projects for future construction and discuss with the street superintendent and commissioner, and when agreed upon, to send a list to Engineering Department for design and basic engineering work; 10. At least two days in advance, notify Engineering Department of requests for placing of stakes (since this cannot be done any longer ahead); 11. Train men in safety measures on job.

Containers Are Placed As Polio Drive Begins

Canisters for the 1951 March of Dimes drive were distributed to business establishments, social, fraternal and veteran organizations over the weekend, according to John M. Robb, chairman of the Allegany county campaign.

The campaign got underway yesterday and will continue until January 31.

A miniature reproduction of a respirator, or iron lung, the coin collector is an improved version of the initial container of this type first used last year, Robb stated.

For counter display the coin collector is equipped with an easel bearing the picture of Larry McKenzie, Jr., 1951 March of Dimes poster boy, whose arms were affected by polio.

and informed the jurors of each move of the defendant from before the accident until he was taken into custody December 20 at 11 p. m. in his opening statement yesterday morning.

At one point in his statement to the jury Fletcher said that Darr, after the accident, had another man drive his tractor-trailer cab to Cresaptown where he (Darr) drank a doubleheader of whisky and then purchased a fifth of whisky.

"When he was taken into custody about five hours after his wife was fatally injured Darr was thoroughly under the influence of intoxicants," Fletcher declared.

Fletcher said the state would show by witnesses that Mrs. Darr had crossed the highway near her home and was standing three or four feet off the right side of the road when Darr's vehicle struck her.

One of the front wheels of the truck ran over her and her body was "rolled along by the dual rear wheels for some distance," Fletcher stated.

James Alfred Avirett is attorney for Darr.

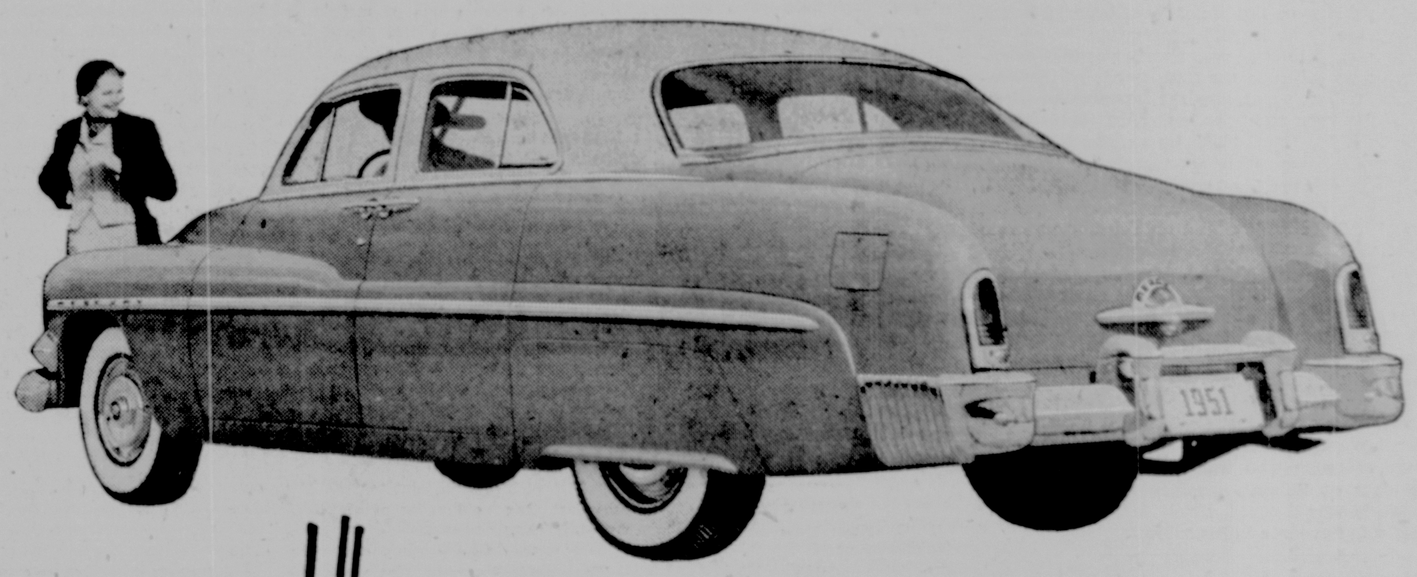
"Nothing like it for a Buy!"



These days it's only smart to put your money in an all-new 1951 car—and the 1951 Mercury is the buy of the year. "The buy of your life" in fact! Steady, trouble-free running, low operating costs, long dependable service, high resale value—there's nothing like the new Mercury!

Nothing like it for enduring beauty!

Admiring glances follow when the new Mercury whisks by—for the 1951 Mercury look is long and lovely. The kind of practical stylishness that will stay popular for years! And the Mercury rides as sweet as it looks.

Nothing like it for lasting power!

Mercury owners will tell you the wonderful story of thrift, power, and performance with Mercury's great, 8-cylinder, V-type, "Hi-Power Compression" engine. But get the facts for yourself—drive the new 1951 Mercury!

New 1951 MERCURY

Nothing like it on the road!

3-WAY CHOICE!

Mercury now has a triple choice in transmissions. Merc-O-Matic Drive, the simpler, smoother, more efficient automatic transmission—or thrifty Touch-O-Matic Overdrive are optional at extra cost. There's also Silent-Ease synchronized standard transmission.

Red China's Appeal

Copying from the book of Hitler, Red China has established a commission to engage in propaganda among Chinese living outside China. These total approximately 10,000,000, most of them in southeastern Asia but a sizable number in America and elsewhere.

This commission calls upon these scattered Chinese to establish strong united fronts against "imperialist" aggression. It promises them relief from "inhuman arrests and mass exile" when the great day comes and China, along with Russia, stands astride Asia and the world.

Letters from China are received by American Chinese reading like this: "When the liberation of America comes, the Chinese in America will also be liberated. Then, I believe, I will be able to return to a free, liberated America and be with you again."

Hitler shed tears of anguish over the "herrenvolk" whom he pictured as oppressed in other lands. Since they belonged to a race of "supermen," they would be rescued and placed in control over the common herd.

Red China's introduction of racism into world turmoil is as frankly aggressive as Hitler's scheme, and it will meet with the same lack of success. Currently a Chinese daily newspaper in New York follows the Pravda line and daily attacks the United States.

Few Chinese in the U. S. would willingly return to China today. But Dictator Mao may succeed in stirring up more trouble by convincing a few Chinese they are oppressed. If so, they will pay for their gullibility as the Germans have suffered for Hitler's fanaticism.

Better Tanks On Order

The United States will soon be producing tanks "far superior to anything known in their class anywhere," according to Army Undersecretary Alexander. They will contain several radical improvements, which he declines to describe.

Probably he was talking about the light tanks expected to start coming off the assembly line in the spring. America's tank program, he said, aims to make light U. S. tanks able to knock out enemy medium tanks, and medium U. S. tanks able to knock out enemy heavy tanks. "Our heavies go on from there," he added.

Those are encouraging words, but many Americans wish the armament of U. S. forces in Korea had included some of these new tanks. American tanks used in Korea did not compare favorably with the tanks the Russians have today.

The new tanks the U. S. will start producing a few months from now may or may not prove radically better than the new tanks the Russians will have later on. In any case, Russia is so far ahead of the U. S. in numbers, if not in quality, of tanks, that it may require years to overtake the Reds' lead.

But it is good to hear Mr. Alexander's news, for all that. It is better to have tanks on order than not to have them, period.

Man Of Three Lives

A man of three lives is the chosen subject of Harold Epstein of Falls Church, Virginia. He announces that he is working on the life of Ray Stannard Baker, and is on a search for helpful information.

Baker came into fame as a member of that extraordinary group which in the first decade of the century made McClure's magazine the foremost American periodical. Its keen scent for important timely topics and the unfailing pains which its authors took to be accurate and to be complete have rarely been equaled. Among the grouy were Ida Tarbell, relentless historian of the Standard Oil Company, and Lincoln Steffens, exposer of civic corruption and philosopher who saw deep into men's hearts. Baker, as a portrayer of industrial conditions and a biographer, added to the luster of the magazine.

An unappreciated side was his love of quiet country life, which came out in his "Adventures in Contentment" and its successors, published under the pen name of David Grayson. They are worth reading today.

Finally Baker was the disciple and official biographer of Woodrow Wilson. As such, he will be consulted by everyone who wants to know about the stirring days of Wilson's presidency and America's part in World War I.

Epstein is fortunate in his subject.

Burtonwood Again

Air Force veterans of World War II who remember Burtonwood, England, as a seat of maintenance and supply would once more feel at home there, for it is now fulfilling the same function for American planes used in Europe.

This base began to function anew with the beginning of the Berlin airlift. With the addition of the wives and children of the Air Force personnel, it now forms a compact, self-sufficient community with schools, Scout troops, day nurseries, chapels, mess halls and theaters for each of its six divisions. Relations with the British people in the nearby city of Warrington have settled down into an attitude of friendly give and take.

Such a nucleus of Americans, including women and children, affords an opportunity for the British to become acquainted at first hand with the everyday living habits of Americans. It will doubtless provide an effective antidote to the false ideas said to have been generated by some of our tourists and some of the movie exported from Hollywood.

Wool Shortage

Belgium, Italy, France and other European countries are outbidding the United States for Australian wool, according to H. J. Devereaux, South Dakota wool man, who has returned from a two months' trip down under.

Australians cannot understand, Mr. Devereaux says, why the United States has asked that it be favored in exports of wool at the same time that it is furnishing money for other countries to outbid it for the fleece. His observations leave no doubt that wool prices, now at unprecedented high levels, will go still higher.

Australia today has 6,000,000 more sheep than the United States and Australian sheepmen are highly prosperous. The Australian wool clip, worth $16,000,000 in 1932, jumped in value to $168,000,000 in 1949 and an amazing $420,000,000 last year.

NEWS—EDITORIAL—WEDNESDAY .. ..

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

"Morning Sickness"

MORE THAN ONE-HALF the women who become pregnant suffer from nausea and vomiting in the first few months. In fact, these symptoms occur so often their presence lends weight to the diagnosis of pregnancy. The condition is popularly called "morning sickness" but this is hardly apropos as it may appear also in the afternoon or evening.

The sensation of nausea resembles seasickness. It is aggravated by motion and as a result many women are a bit hesitant about riding in cars, buses, and elevators. In addition, a common accompaniment is increased salivation, described as "cotton spitting." When the feeling comes on, milady swallows and gulps as fast as she can in an effort to avoid vomiting.

The complication generally develops between the fourth and fifth week of pregnancy but may start as early as the second. It lasts until the third month and then disappears spontaneously except in the more severe cases. Some encounter nausea on arising; others feel good until after breakfast. As soon as vomiting is over with they are able to proceed with their work and spend the rest of the day in comfort. When vomiting is pernicious it may continue thruout the day and malnutrition and acidosis are the usual aftermaths unless treatment is started immediately.

The medical profession never has been able to come to any definite conclusions on the cause. Some believe that the behavior of the stomach is caused by a reflex stimulation to pregnancy. Others are of the opinion that toxemia is responsible. Many favor the neurotic theory. It is likely that all three factors are capable of producing morning nausea. In some, toxemia is playing the leading role, whereas in others the reflex or neurotic aspect predominates. Many sufferers are nervous, high-strung, and easily upset; in these instances, the nervous system may be the culprit. Now and then something in the home life is irritating; arguments with husband or in-laws or financial difficulties. The pregnancy merely is aggravating existing conditions. As a matter of fact, even the husband can suffer from "morning sickness."

• — • — •

In days gone by, the neurotic origin received priority and treatment was directed along these lines. The husband was told not to worry; that his wife would get along fine provided he did not shower her with pity. Serious cases were hospitalized and isolated in a private room, with no visitors permitted, not even the husband. The woman literally was starved until vomiting subsided. Nowadays we recommend a dry breakfast consisting of a biscuit, toast, or cereal, and liquids later in the day. Smaller but more frequent meals avoid over-loading the stomach but provide ample food. In addition, greasy and fatty dishes are forbidden because they are more difficult to digest and may cause nausea. The expectant mother with marked vomiting still is hospitalized but is given nourishment by vein to avert dehydration, weight loss and weakness. In addition, sedatives are administered for their quieting and calming effects.

VARICOCELE

D. C. writes: Does varicocele call for operation?

REPLY

Not as a rule, because a support usually relieves symptoms. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on varicocele.

SENSITIVE FINGERS

V. T. writes: The ends of my fingers are so tender and sensitive that it is agonizing to touch anything. How can I get rid of this soreness?

REPLY

A problem of this nature requires examination to solve. Let me suggest, therefore, that you visit your family physician.

MIGRAINE

L. R. writes: Is migraine caused by a mental condition?

REPLY

No, but the personality plays a part. The person who is a perfectionist, or overly sensitive is more likely to be afflicted. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on migraine.

NICOTINE AND THE HEART

L. N. writes: Where does the nicotine go when a person smokes?

REPLY

It is absorbed by the membranes of the mouth, throat, and lungs, and ultimately collects in the heart, liver, spleen, and kidneys, according to research workers. A recent experiment indicated that the heart does not have an unlimited capacity to absorb this substance. Animal experimentation showed that the organ stops absorbing nicotine after a few minutes and it may be that the human ticker is affected in a similar way. In other words, the heart may be able to protect itself from too great an intake.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Underworld Cheats U. S. Of Potential Tax Windfall; Treasury Sidesteps Investigation Of Gangster Returns; Fischetti Follows Pattern Of Al Capone

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Jumpin' Joe McCarthy, the "MC" from Wisconsin, has been alternately calling me a liar and accusing me of being too accurate in publishing army cables estimating Chinese strength in North Korea at about one-quarter of the 1,000,000-man army announced by MacArthur. However, here is another document which Jumpin' Joe also won't want me to publish.

It is the income-tax story of Gangster Charlie Fischetti, cousin of Ralph Capone of Mercer, Wisconsin, at one time a McCarthy political booster.

Fischetti, who is now ducking Senate crime investigators, took over much of the underworld empire of his cousin Al Capone, after the latter was jailed for income-tax evasion. Fischetti's domain extends all the way from the ritzy North Shore of Chicago where he maintains a penthouse at 2300 North Sheridan Road, to Florida, where he has a winter place on Allison Island off Miami Beach.

In addition to Chicago and Miami, Fischetti has gambling operations in Kansas City, St. Louis, East St. Louis, Indiana, Arizona, and in Jumpin' Joe's own bailiwick of Southern Wisconsin.

Yet Charlie Fischetti only reported an income of $23,342.50 for 1949. Every cent he made, he swore, was by "self-speculation," probably a polite name for gambling.

Other gangsters, perhaps more honest (if there is any degree of honesty among gangsters) reported much more income than this. Tony Accardo, one of the top mob in Chicago, reported a total income of $110,000. However, Charles and Ann Fischetti, filing a joint tax return last year, paid a tax of only $4,981.48—mere peanuts.

T-Men Ignore Mob

The public has the idea that modern racketeers are extremely careful in making out their income-tax returns. In order to avoid what happened to Al Capone. That, however, is by no means the case. In the first place, the gangsters operate on a strictly cash basis. Second, internal revenue makes no great effort to check on gambling profits.

Though Treasury field agents are honest and diligent, at least one potent official inside the Treasury has shied away from going after the taxes of modern-day racketeers; and this columnist has too many headaches at the moment to risk a libel suit by naming him.

However, it remains a fact that while the average taxpayer sits up nights trying not to forget any part of his income, the big gangsters fill out blanket returns which obviously are underestimates. They give no source for their revenue other than "self-speculation," "wagering," or just plain "income," and they estimate their profit at just about whatever they want to make it.

220 Club

In 1943, however, Fischetti was more specific. He listed $908.25 from the 220 Club and another $1,000 which he attributed to "sundry wagering." The 220 Club, located at 220 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago, was a favorite hangout for hoodlums and was where Big Gus Winkler of the St. Louis Rats was killed. Fischetti showed that he believed in enforcing the law on at least one occasion in 1942 when he and his brother Joe, with Paul De Lucia Rizzi, got caught in a faling elevator in the building at 220 Wabash. The gangsters sued the owner of the building because of the elevator accident, and collected.

An income of only $3,891.25, it should be noted, is suspiciously small for a gangster who lived as lavishly as Charlie Fischetti in the war boom year of 1943.

Fischetti's 1942 income, however, was even more incredible. He listed a $778.02 profit from the 220 Club, another $1,240 from "sundry wagering," and took deductions of $240.86.

In 1940, Fischetti reported a profit of $7,645 on the 220 Club, but reported a loss of $1,134.69 on the Blackhawk Club, another hangout for gamblers above the Blackhawk Restaurant in Chicago.

Lush Gambling Profits

Internal revenue agents so far have done little about checking on the profits of gambling clubs. Though they have access to the books, the U. S. Treasury has not taken the trouble to post men in gambling casinos at the time the money is counted—which is after business closes every night.

Managers of the big gambling establishments are careful to have watchers in rooms above the roulette wheels to look down through holes in the ceilings and make sure no money is stolen by the casinos' own employes. But the Treasury, which could increase its take by millions, has not yet bothered to count the thousands raked in at the close of a casino's business.

This is one of the quickest sources of revenue available to Uncle Sam, at a time when the rest of the American people are going to dig deeper into their tax pockets than ever before.

Fischetti's Record

Fischetti's police record shows he was arrested April 30, 1928, with Ralph Capone, for questioning about the killing of three men—McGuigan, Doherty and Duffy—in Cicero, Ill. They were discharged on a habeas corpus and turned over to federal authorities in connection with a machine gun found in Ralph Capone's apartment.

On Dec. 26, 1928, Fischetti was arrested again for carrying a concealed weapon, and was held until Jan. 22, 1929. In Nov. 1, 1932, he was arrested with Murray Humphreys and other mobsters for questioning about labor rackets. On Jan. 8, 1935, Fischetti finally received a one-year sentence and $500 fine for carrying a concealed weapon. On July 22, 1943, he was arrested for disorderly conduct; on Oct. 9, 1944, he was arrested in a gambling investigation by Cook County bullway police; and on Feb. 14, 1945, he was arrested again for disorderly conduct.

At present, Fischetti is reported in Acapulco, Mexico, running himself on the beach until the Kefauver Crime Committee loses interest in him.

It's quite a life if you can get away with it.

"Great Debate" Will Bring Re-Examination Of Policy

By MARK SULLIVAN

AMERICA is in a great debate—the term has passed into headlines, it is habitually used as if it were the name of a historic event or era. In fact this debate is comparable to the Lincoln-Douglas one on the issue of "popular sovereignty" and states rights three years before the Civil War. While the subjects of the two debates differ, this one like the Lincoln-Douglas one, covers preservation of the nation; and the interest and earnestness of the people in this debate is comparable to what went on in the Lincoln-Douglas one.

The debate was joined recently. It had been opened by ex-President Hoover on Dec. 20, in a nation-wide radio-television address which, whether or not contemplated as the beginning of a debate, was made so by the public reception of it. Newspapers grasped its importance instantly, within 24 hours it was under intent discussion by them; excerpts from 51 important newspapers in cities from Massachusetts to California, collected by the Associated Press, were printed as a symposium the following Sunday in the "New York Times." Letters and telegrams in thousands deluged Mr. Hoover's desk. Very seldom has a single speech of any public man evoked such spontaneous and wide-spread reaction.

Truman's Role Complex

Mr. Hoover's speech evoked sporadic speeches in response from a few public figures, none of them as a rule either wholly opposing or wholly approving. But the really important response would come in President Truman's annual State of the Union message to Congress, Jan. 4. Mr. Hoover had entitled his address "Our National Policies in This Crisis," and it was mainly a factual survey and critical consideration of our foreign policy, with recommendation of partial change. Mr. Truman had to defend his policy and he did. The debate was joined.

In the debate, President Truman can have no such detached objectiveness as Mr. Hoover. Indeed Mr. Truman's role is peculiarly intimate and peculiarly complex; it is three folds combined. He must defend the foreign policy as a foreign policy, and at the same time must defend the administration of the policy in the past by himself and the State Department. Finally, since Mr. Truman is to be in office for two years to come, part of his role must be that of pleader. Partly in all events and often expressly, he is in the position of asking Congress and the country for support in courses he must decide upon now; in the swift swirl of changing conditions, infinitely far decision presses upon him and the country with utmost urgency.

Some of the decisions President Truman must make are military, one of them has to do with the sending of troops to Europe. About this type of decision, difference of opinion has arisen; a school of thought strongly voiced by Sen. Taft holds that the President, before sending troops abroad, should get approval from Congress, that he ought to have got approval before sending troops to Korea last June. "The President" said Sen. Taft, "simply usurped authority in the teeth of the laws and the Constitution."

Deals With Survival

Argument on this point has already itself to the great debate. But the authority of the President to send troops abroad and the question about the relation of this to the constitutional authority of Congress about declaring war, has been an intermittent issue for many decades. This, however, is merely a constitutional question. If "merely constitutional" seems a startling phrase, the implication of minor importance arises from the supreme importance of what is involved in the great debate. The great debate deals with the survival of the nation, no less.

The depth of the people's concern is in proportion to the supreme importance of what is involved. They have passed beyond the stage at which many persons react emotionally and ephemerally to single events. When there was victory in Korea they reacted in a spirit of elation. With disaster, while there was initial emotion then too, it was followed by something thought. The people came to see, vaguely as yet but earnestly, that events are parts of long courses running back into the past. In this condition of the public mind the Administration cannot expect that there will not be thorough re-examination of our foreign policy during the past five years. Such re-examination will be an important factor in the great debate. For while the great debate is about present foreign policy and what policy in the future should be, this portion cannot be grasped without understanding what foreign policy in the past has been. To advocate present foreign policy, the Administration must explain past foreign policy, including basic admission of mistakes.

Interpretations Of Korean News Marked By Emotion

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—There is altogether too much panic and emotion in some of the interpretations being placed on the Korean news. Despite the fact, for instance, that members of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff have been making periodic visits to the Far East during the last six months, the latest trip of General Collins, chief of staff of the Army, and General Vandenberg, head of the U. S. Air Force, has been widely misconstrued.

Some observers have intimated that the purpose was to curtail the authority of General MacArthur's headquarters, and others have hinted that a withdrawal from Korea is really contemplated.

The presence of two high-level intelligence officers from the United States merely coincided with the visit of General Collins and General Vandenberg and had nothing to do with the mission of the two members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Surveying Problems

The truth is that planning in the Korean operation is never on a day-to-day but on a month-to-month or even on a two-or three-month basis. The reason that Generals Collins and Vandenberg went to the Far East, while the third member, Admiral Sherman, and the chairman, General Bradley, stayed behind, is that the Joint Chiefs must continue as a functioning body in Washington. In place of Admiral Sherman, there are high naval officers in the Far East to represent the Navy with reference to any naval problems connected with the fighting.

The purpose of Generals Collins and Vandenberg in flying to the Far East—they will be back in a few days—is to make a survey of the progress made to date and to take a look ahead as to manpower requirements and other problems.

The Defense Department has just announced that troop replacements are on the way and that some of them will arrive in Korea in February and some in March. The very mention of next month as the time when replacements are due is a quiet hint to the skeptics that the United States plans to keep on fighting to hold Korea.

There was some speculation here that the possibility of Chinese acceptance of the UN "cease fire" plan might have occasioned the trip to the Far East by Generals Collins and Vandenberg, but this is not so. The Joint Chiefs of Staff was familiarized three weeks ago with the technical detail of the various "cease fire" plans then being offered before the UN. The decision of the American government, however, to support the "cease fire" resolution before the UN was not made with the consent of or the objection of the Joint Chiefs, as they were not consulted on what was regarded by the Department of State as purely a diplomatic decision.

When Generals Collins and Vandenberg return to Washington, they will have completed further plans for the carrying on of the military operations in Korea and they will bring back their impressions as to how the UN forces are progressing.

Immediate Decision Unlikely

The Korean problem is one that could change only after weeks and weeks of fighting but it is not likely to change overnight. If American losses should become prohibitive, withdrawal would be considered. If American losses are such that from a military viewpoint there would be an advantage in sending heavy reinforcements and pressing the attack northward, this will be done. So everything depends on the tide of battle in Korea and a decision is not likely to be made for several weeks.

Meanwhile a "cease fire" or a failure of the UN to declare Communist China an aggressor could bring about a decisive change. The latter could mean that the U. S. Air Force and Navy will be released to bomb targets and ports in Communist China. For it is inconceivable that the United States would fail to press the battle against the Communist Chinese on its own if the UN gets bogged down on the matter of declaring the Communist regime an aggressor or declines to follow this up with steps to punish such aggression.

It is natural that more and more of the command operation should be transferred to General Ridgway in Korea and less and less responsibility should be carried by General MacArthur. Since fairly large-scale operations are in progress and more may come later, it is important that General Ridgway have the authority of a theater commander who also reports directly to the Joint Chiefs of Staff. This is a normal military procedure and doubtless was recommended to General MacArthur himself, who, as a former chief of staff and various commander, understands fully the difference between trying to run a war in Korea and trying to run it simultaneously from an office building in Tokyo 200 or 300 miles away.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Foreign Aid

A TOGETHER, between July 1, 1945 and June 30, 1950, the American taxpayer expended, after taking repayments into account, close to $28,000,000,000 in foreign aid. This amounts to about $172 for each man, woman and child in the United States.

Of the $28,000,000,000, Great Britain received $3,900,000,000; France $3,700,000,000; Germany, $2,000,000,000; Italy, $1,800,000,000.

During this five-year period, China received $1,700,000,000. Regarding this figure, it would be interesting to see a breakdown as to precisely what China received. For instance, Greece and Turkey were charged nominal prices for exactly the same kind of military supplies for which we charged China replacement prices. At any rate, that is what the figures seem to look like. It would be beneficial all around if some congressional committee went into this question in detail to discover precisely how this figure was reached.

Korea is an attractive case in point. During this five-year period, Korea received $200,000,000, which is the amount that all the American republics put together received from us.

The entire subject of foreign aid needs to be studied closely to see how the money was spent, what our bookkeeping procedure is, for instance, if we charge China one price for an airplane and Great Britain another price, the aid is of different value. Most of the aid was given in the form of commodities, rather than money, that of it was really commercial credits.

Of the $28,000,000,000 spent in this way, the ERP countries received $10,000,000,000. It would again be interesting to have that figure analyzed by a body that could subpoena the books of ECA. For whom, as no one questions the integrity of Paul Hoffman or his associates in ECA, the policies pursued would make a tremendous difference.

Let me put it this way: those figures do not include any aid to Soviet Russia, and the assumption must be that none was given by the United States. However, Great Britain has been doing a roaring business with Soviet Russia and the satellite countries.

To what extent have American credits to Great Britain made it possible for the British to engage in this trade? Is it not possible that by the indirect means the British actually released American credits to our enemy, Soviet Russia?

We know from Korean references that the Russians and Chinese Communists supplied the North Koreans with munitions of American origin. If we have been supplying neither the Russians nor giving them credits to do here, where did they get the stuff? It could not all have been done by American mercenaries and American doomship lines, some of which are on the Nationalist blacklist, by exclusive of Hongkong business with Soviet China and with other anti-American groups would not surprise the old China hand, but it should excite the admiration of British justice in this country.

We need to be sure that American aid is not being used to kill Americans in Korea or anywhere else. The British in Hongkong have been selling American goods to Chinese Communists. They did a flourishing business in that town and are now using their ships that they are no longer permitted to do it. The rail of Hongkong bears by itself.

The British managed to build a going concern of $1,000,000,000 out of the trade with they developed with our aid. It is therefore startling to read the following in the

Sun Glass Makers Get Wrought Up Over Regulations For Advertising

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The sun can see straight. They're all wrought up over these four little words:

"And thereafter thermally curved."

If you bought one of the 40,000,000 pairs of sun glasses made in this country last year, the chances are you never thought much about whether they were thermally curved. Be honest with yourself: Did you?

It may not fret you, but it does the sun glass people. They met with the Federal Trade Commission to see if changes should be made in the rules for advertising ground and polished sun glasses.

Here is the argument:

Some sun glasses are made by grinding and polishing the glass, as regular eye glasses or camera lenses are made. The proponents of this method say this is the only one that's any good, and they don't want to change the rules.

Other sun glasses are made by taking ground and polished glass, and then heating it and bending it into shape. The proponents of this method say this is as good as the straight grind-and-polished system. They want the rules changed permanently — (they have temporary permission to use it now) — so they can advertise:

"Ground and polished and thereafter thermally curved."

No decision was reached, but before the meeting ended there were comments:

From Henry Cheatham of the Pennsylvania Optical Co., Reading, Pa., (a non-thermally curved man) — "Those who want this change have a relatively crude process, a cheap method of arriving at a curved lens."

From Robert Watson, a Washington attorney for the thermally curved crowd — "The absurdity of this is exceeded only by its audacity."

Incidentally, sun glasses have been around for years, but they really didn't catch on with the customers until Hollywood cuties took to wearing them.

What started as a fad turned into a necessity for many people. The war, with huge purchases by the armed forces, put sun glasses in the big leagues.

Well, the talk went on for about two hours, which adds up roughly to 30 minutes for each word.

Finally one lawyer said:

"The trouble is that when you invite a lawyer to talk he doesn't know when to stop."

"Hear, hear," said a voice from the rear.

On this, at least, there appeared to be complete unanimity. Including me.

It is estimated that every unit copy of a newspaper is read by three persons, on an average.

WHEN COLD WEATHER COMES—

When your feet get soaked from sleet and slush, watch out for a cold. Many people develop colds after exposure because their diet lacks Vitamin A. In such cases Father John's Medicine helps build resistance to these colds. It supplies rich, natural Vitamin A and also eases coughs and throat irritations resulting from colds by its soothing effect.

Installation ceremonies were conducted by Mrs. Josephine Biggs, assisted by Mrs. Fae Lee Burner and Mrs. Agnes Love.

A Past Pythian Sister ring was presented to Mrs. Thelma Poland.

Concluding the evening refreshments were served by Mrs. Blake and her committee.

Knights of Pythias No. 60 were guests.

Workaday Charm For Rosie The Riveter

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Take a cue from those war plant days—if you answer the call for defense work, don't forfeit your femininity.

The boys will work in a pal-like manner with you during the day, but at night they'd like to see you revert to womanly charm.

You can embark on this double life whether as an engineer, taxi driver or financeer, if you will just keep in mind the two C's—cleanliness and charm.

Here are some good rules to follow whether you head for the drill press or the file cabinet:

1. Make a habit of taking a warm shower before you start out in the morning. Even if you have to set the alarm 15 minutes earlier, it will be worth it.

2. Choose attractive ,durable clothes for daytime wear. If you work in a factory and wear a uniform during the day, make sure it is washed and pressed frequently. Office workers can wear smart suits with pretty blouses which would be presentable, also, for a five-o'clock date.

3. Keep your underthings neat and clean. Wash panties, bras and slips in hot sudsy water every evening unless you can do your weekly laundry over the weekend.

4. Wash your hands frequently during the day so that you do not carry dirt from machines or dusty tables to your face. If you will dig your nails in a bar of soap before beginning your work, they will still be clean when you scrub them at the end of the day.

5. Be sure you continue to get your vitamins even after you start a 9 to 5 routine. A good substantial breakfast doesn't have to be fattening. Fruit, boiled eggs, and whole wheat toast will start you off right without too many calories.

6. If you take your lunch, be sure to include nourishing foods. Don't just slap a greasy piece of meat on a couple pieces of white bread. Plan your lunch so that you get maximum vitamins for strength and energy. Tuck a carrot, whole tomato, celery or hard boiled egg wrapped in wax paper or aluminum foil in your lunch basket. This will give you a good bulky appetizer to begin your lunch. Sandwiches should be put on the thinnest bread possible. Top cream cheese with water cress or jelly; ham sandwiches with tomatoes, peanut butter with bacon for new flavor and energy value.

7. Wear a kerchief around your hair during the day to protect it from dust and grease, if you work in a factory. You can pincurl your hair in the morning, hide it under your bandana, then remove the kerchief at night and comb out your pin-curls.

8. Leave your locker at night looking like a lady. No matter how anxious you are to get home, spend that extra five or ten minutes in primping hair and face, brushing your street clothes and putting stocking seams straight. After all, you might meet that man of the future on the bus or subway or just passing with a friend. Be prepared for the unexpected. And, if you are a married working girl, do some extra primping before you greet your husband.

Mrs. W. O. Sangler and Mrs. J. D. Eisenberger will be hostesses to the Spangler-Conrad Circle of First Presbyterian Church at 8 tomorrow evening in the church house.

Majority Association Plans Monthly Get-To-Gethers

Owen Morris Assumes Duties

Cumberland DeMolay Majority Association formulated plans for a monthly social for members, their wives and potential members of the organization.

The affairs, which will be informal, were discussed and planned at the meeting last night at Ali Ghan City Club, and are to be inaugurated in February. Edward Eyler, James J. Kave, Raymond Dorn and Charles Dick were appointed the committee in charge of arrangements, of selecting the dates and place for the monthly get-togethers.

Owen Morris assumed his duties as president of the association, replacing Dr. Warren Cook, who has enlisted for service. He was installed by James J. Kave.

Dr. C. N. Foose, Jr., was appointed chaplain.

Almost 100 percent membership attended the meeting.

Personals

Mrs. John P. Stump has returned to Great Neck, Long Island, after visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Hughes, The Dingle.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Maybert, and sons, Alaviste, Va., visited the former's foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Wertz, 222 Bond Street, prior to his transfer to Greensboro, N. C., where he has been promoted by the Burlington Mills by whom he is employed. Mr. Maybert is a former employe of the Celanese Corporation.

Mrs. Mary Cook, 409 Central Avenue, is spending the remainder of the Winter visiting in Birmingham, Ala.

John F. Wempe, 523 East Oldtown Road, is reported in a "satisfactory" condition in Allegany Hospital, where he is a patient.

Mrs. T. F. Bailey, Arch Street and Mrs. W. M. Bailey, Kent Avenue, have returned from Martinsburg, W. Va.

Mrs. Stephen Parrish, Gephart Drive is a patient in Allegany Hospital.

Mrs. Robert Davis, Williams Road, is a patient in Allegany Hospital.

Miss Gertrude Ranck, Browning Street, has returned from Memorial Hospital where she was a surgical patient.

Woman's Civic Club To Meet Tomorrow

The Woman's Civic Club Choral Group will meet tomorrow morning and the general meeting of the club is to be held in the afternoon. The former will meet at 11 o'clock and the latter at 2. Both will be in the Emmanuel Episcopal parish house.

A talk on "Behind the Scenes" by Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, will feature the general meeting. The Civic group is in charge of the program and Mrs. Albert S. Faye, chairman, will introduce the speaker. Mrs. A. W. Keight will preside at the business session.

Members are asked to bring their year books for insertions.

The Latin name for the cacao tree—from which chocolate is derived—is Theobroma cacao, meaning "food of the gods".

Flintstone Club Plans Activities

The Flintstone Homemakers Club discussed its program for 1951 and introduced officers and chairmen, at the meeting Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Ferdinand Franchi. Mrs. Guy Thompson conducted the business session and roll call was answered with suggestions for a better program in 1951.

Announcement was made that February 17 Miss Adah Mae Marshall, a pattern representative, will be in the county. Each club to study the song, "Be Still My Soul," which is to be sung in the "Contest of the Counties" being held at the University of Maryland, during the Rural Women's Short Course week, in June.

The club voted to pay $5 to the March of Dimes campaign. Miss Maude A. Bean explained the Blue Shield Insurance and Mrs. Curtis Nash gave the story of the Junko or snow bird. The group repeated the Homemakers Creed and sang the song of the month, "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind." Mrs. Rebecca Gilson gave the story of the song.

Miss Catherine Robinette was appointed Sunshine chairman and a discussion of the duties of the chairmen was held.

Mrs. Guy Thompson was presented as president; Mrs. Russell O. Dolly, vice president; Mrs. Blaine C. Robinette, secretary; and Mrs. Chester Robinette, treasurer.

Chairmen are Mrs. William Perrin, Mrs. H. V. Bender, Fair and Exhibits; Mrs. J. S. Roland, International Relations; Mrs. Howard Willison and Miss Catherine Robinette, Membership; Mrs. Roland, Parliamentarian; Miss Pearl Wilson, Publicity; Mrs. H. V. Bender, Radio; Mrs. Gilson, Mrs. H. K. Cheney, Music; Mrs. Mary Howard, Reading; Mrs. Curtis Nash, Miss Lena Twigg, Mrs. Katherine Smith, Recreation and Nature.

Mrs. Chester Robinette, Mrs. Howard Robinette and Miss Catherine Robinette, Clothing; Mrs. Curtis Nash, Health; Mrs. Russell O'Dolly, Home and Yard Beautification; Mrs. Chester Robinette, Mrs. Howard Robinette, Home Furnishing; Mrs. Roscoe Ash, Mrs. Herman Barnes, Home Management; Mrs. Leah B. Twigg, Mrs. Kalle Oster, Nutrition; Mrs. Chester Robinette, Blue Cross Hospitalization; Mrs. Ferdinand Franchi, Mrs. J. S. Roland, Family Life; Miss Pearl Wilson, Rural Women's Short Course; Miss Ruth Perin, 4-H Clubs and Mrs. H. V. Bender, Art.

Ninteen members attended.

The February meeting is to be held in the high school, and will be under the direction of the Clothing chairman.

HANDBAG WELL STOCKED IN MAKEUP ESSENTIALS WILL ASSURE PERFECT GROOMING THROUGHOUT THE DAY

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Keep your handbag as well stocked with makeup as your cupboard is with groceries and you'll look perfectly groomed even if you get lost in a blizzard.

You can get complete kits holding two-weeks supply of makeup essentials in minature containers. Or you can select individual containers to suit your particular needs. Most cosmetics these days are made in compact fashion to eliminate bulk, so that the handbag is not weighed down, yet assures the fastidious girl of a perfect makeup during the day.

One girl noted for a particularly neat handbag carried every beauty essential important to daytime loveliness or evening splendor. Her handbag revealed a miniature comb and brush set, a compact-lipstick-perfume combination all in one unit, a pattisize foundation cream and cold cream, collapsible eyelash curler, mascara, collapsible toothbrush with capsule of tooth powder, cleansing tissues in a small pocket, bobby pins in a tiny bottle with screw top.

There was no loose powder or tobacco spilled in her bag. A cigaret container kept tobacco intact. No scraps of paper listing addresses and memos were evident. Notes were jotted down immediately in a small combination address-note book, ideal for the purpose.

This very well organized young lady said it was easy to transfer these articles from one purse to another—not so when that inner sanctum is cluttered and messy.

You may not find it necessary to be as well supplied with grooming aids as was this girl who happened to be a model. But there are very few working girls who have not received a last minute invitation to dinner. Even if she owns all the essentials necessary to that 5 o'clock makeup, she might find that in transferring things from one handbag to another that morning some were left in a pile of cluttered papers at the bottom of the other bag.

To do a fast makeup you will need at least a comb, cleansing cream, tissues, foundation cream, powder, lipstick and perhaps eyebrow pencil and mascara. Add to that an eyelash curler and a skin freshener or witch hazel pads and you have a fairly complete emergency makeup kit.

An eyelash curler can do wonders when your eyes are tired. Rinse your eyes with warm water, then cold, then apply the curler for a "new-woman" look.

Keep your beauty essentials in the little pockets at the side of your handbag, or put them in a small makeup case, easily available at all times.

Here's another secret of what makes a Powers Girl's walk so beautiful. Make it your own!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

THE perfect walk is one of the most beautiful of all movements. It has a completely effortless flow with never a trace of a ripple. The woman who achieves such a gliding movement is the epitome of gracious femininity—and a joy to behold.

Unlike other women, the control she has over her body muscles enables her to propel herself forward without any unnecessary movement of the hips.

Causes of Hip Sway

The slightest sway in the hips ruins any woman's carriage. It is caused either by muscular flabbiness in the hip region or incorrect walking habits. There's a sure cure for both. Let's start work on the weak muscles with this exercise:

Sit on a stool with your feet flat on the floor. Place your hands on the stool behind your hips. Now (this is difficult but worth it) by pushing up with your arms, raise your hips off the stool as you contract the hip muscles—hard. Hold for a count of five if you can and then resume your normal sitting position. Start with five times daily and gradually increase to twenty-five. Also practice holding your elevated position until you can count to ten. In no time at all, you will firm your muscles so that they automatically remain still when you walk.

The walking habit that causes a hip-sway results from unconsciously throwing your entire weight from one foot to the other with each step. To detect such undulation, walk across the room with your hands on the fleshy part of your hips. Let all your weight plunk down on the forward foot. That is the wrong way to walk!

Now, try it letting only half of your body weight fall on the forward foot. The remainder must be held suspended in the dead center of your body. (Think of how the egret stands on one leg for long periods of time, without ever letting its weight get off center!)

With your shoes off, take slow steps, practicing the transfer of only half of your weight as you walk. Keep your hip muscles tense, so that you gain greater control over them at the same time you improve your balance.

You will soon have the walk others envy and admire!

The lady says she just came over to see the sights but her friends say she really came to see him and to set her sights.

Come on McCarthy, where's your broom? You've still got some house-cleaning to do . . . While William Remington's buddy, Thomas Blaisdell, resigned from the Commerce Department the other day, what about those buddies of Blaisdell's in the Office of International Trade? . . . They should be quietly sneaking out, too—sneaking out before they are cleaned out.

*A little asterisk like this , you know what that means? . . .

It means a mate.

They may have wedding rings, too, but the married members of the Press Corps have an asterisk * beside their names in the Congressional Directory . . . The idea is purely social . . . To make sure that when a newspaper man is invited to an official function the card will include the Little Woman.

Not long ago a lady reporter who had married one of her colleagues in the Press Gallery, laid down the law to Colonel Beckley who edits the listings . . . She wanted to be sure that an asterisk note be put beside the name of her recently-trapped husband.

"That's how I got my man," she stated frankly. "When I first came down to the Press Gallery, I checked up on all the newspaper men without asterisks. If a man didn't have an asterisk he went on my list. That's what all the girls do—go after every correspondent if he has no asterisk. Now I want everybody to know my husband is mine. A girl's got to protect herself and her property!"

Not just because they guard their husbands, but because they are guardians of the truth, Senator Taft complimented the press women the other night when he spoke at their party . . . He said he had tremendous respect for "the woman political reporter" . . . That she makes a very successful report of what is actually going on in Congress.

He said he used to think the ladies asked dumb questions.

But nowadays if a lady reporter comes up to him and says, "I see that a columnist writes that in the Republican conference day before yesterday you said you'd like to kick the President in the teeth, is that an accurate story? And, Senator, was it his teeth that you mentioned?"

Amidst laughter, Taft explained that when he hears a question like that from a newspaper woman he knows there is method in her madness.

Taft's imaginary description of a newspaper woman pinning him down got much applause . . . But all his kind words about the truth-

NEW YORK (INS)—THE PASSING show:—

Pope Pius XII will next make news by appointing a number of new cardinals, including perhaps two Americans. The College of Cardinals, fixed at 70 members in 1586 A. D. to correspond with the 70 elders of Moses, has been reduced in recent years to 52.

Cardinals constitute a Pope's senate or council and on the death of a pontiff they meet to elect his successor. The word "cardinal" comes from the Latin "cardo" which means hinge. They acquired the right to elect popes in 1179. Before that, the popes had been elected by lesser clergymen, members of the nobility and laymen. A cardinal may be excommunicated if he is in good health and does not at least attempt to reach Rome for a conclave that elects a pope.

Cardinals must be of legitimate birth. No male relative of a living cardinal, to the first cousinship, may be made a cardinal. There have been many cardinals who were not priests. The last one, Cardinal Mertel, died in 1899, and the law now militates against such elections. Each cardinal through the world receives title to one of the 75 ancient churches in Rome, and is expected to contribute to its upkeep.

Cardinals' rings feature sapphires. They wear their pontifical hats—red, broad-brimmed and with a low crown—only when elevated. The hat is placed at the foot of the cardinal's casket when he dies, and after the burial is suspended in his cathedral above his tomb.

The first of 12 American cardinals, John McCloskey, had trouble with his own parishioners as a young priest (on lower Sixth Avenue in New York City). They refused to pay his salary at first because they had not been consulted before his arrival at the church. When he received his red hat in 1875 the Pope's representative at the ceremony was Archbishop James Roosevelt Bayley of Baltimore, a former Anglican minister and ancestor of F.D.R. Cardinal McClosky's timeless monument is St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City.

The proponents of a union of the Atlantic democracies believe that the presence of semi-powerless Gen. Eisenhower in Europe will enhance their chances of sealing the deal. They would unite the Atlantic pact powers into a single democratic government comparable to the union of the 48 American states.

The General, said Sen. Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) on reintroducing the Atlantic union resolution in Congress, "has no effective civil power to which to report; nothing but the 12-headed Atlantic council with power only to recommend." He pleaded for an Atlantic alliance that would give the free nations "the power that there is in the union of our own states. No general can take orders from 12 nations."

Kefauver, and 19 other senators, say, "neither old-fashioned isolation nor old-fashioned intervention can solve the problems of the modern free world. Isolation spells strangulation for free people. Intervention is not adequate in the face of a United Communist population of three quarters of a billion people, controlling an area of 15,000,000 square miles and producing two atomic bombs per month.

"We need union of the democracies as a means of speeding up defense measures already under way. Free people must unite to guarantee their own survival against advancing hordes of barbarism."

The pangs of an a-bomb are endless. Dr. Shields Warren of the Atomic Energy Commission recently revealed a portion of the continuing study among the survivors at Hiroshima and Nagasaki:

"We are finding an increased incidence of cataracts in those survivors who were within the zone where they were exposed to the neutrons. There have been some 71 well recognized cases found among approximately 1,000 survivors studied."

"Darkness At Noon," Sidney Kingsley's new play from Arthur Koestler's book, is a stark, stunning unveiling of the secret purge of a rugged and pitiless old Bolshevik who deviated humanely from the Communist line he helped to found.

PIN-WORMS GO! Jayne's P-W Gets Real Results

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. At the first sign of Pin-Worms, ask your druggist for genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . the small, easy-to-take tablets perfected by famous Dr. D. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm remedies for over 100 years.

IS THAT A FACT! by Ches Peake

A FORTUNE FROM THE THIMBLE. The first thimble ever seen in England was made in London some 200 years ago by a metal worker named John Lofting. He founded a great English fortune on its manufacture. The thimble was first worn on the thumb. Since it was shaped like a bell, it was natural that the first thimble should have been called a "thumb-bell." Over the years, its name has softened into "thimble."

A NOTE FROM THE CHINESE. The oldest bank note probably in existence dates from the year 1399 B.C., and was issued by the Chinese government. It bears the name of the imperial bank, date, and number of issue, signature of a mandarin, along with a list of punishments inflicted for forgery of notes.

IT IS ALSO A FACT THAT . . . the YELLOW PAGES of your Telephone Directory save you time and trouble. Suppose, for example, you've forgotten the name of a firm, but know the address. Just look in the YELLOW PAGES, find the right heading, and presto, you've got the firm you want. Works just as well, too, when you know the name, but not the address. Use the YELLOW PAGES of your Telephone Directory often. You'll find it—pays!

Leland E. Spencer Becomes NPA Official In Washington

Leland E. Spencer, 119 North Allegany Street, vice-president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, has taken up his duties as director of the Rubber Division of the National Production Authority in Washington, D. C.

Spencer is on leave from the local company to take the federal post. He has been vice-president here since September, 1949.

That Spencer was being considered for the position was announced in Washington in December by NPA officials.

Until Spencer assumed his new position, the Rubber Division of NPA had been supervised by acting directors.

Prior to coming to Cumberland, Spencer had directed commerce and industry in the United States and British occupation zones in Germany.

Spencer was manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's Topeka, Kan., factory at the time he was given a leave of absence to assume the international role following World War II.

A member of the Goodyear organization for the past 24 years he started with the company in its Akron plant, serving in production control statistics and forecasting department until 1939.

He was then made manager of merchandise planning. In 1945 he was appointed manager of the Topeka plant, newest and most modern tire factory in the nation. That appointment followed a three-year tour of duty with the government during the war years. There he served as deputy director of the Rubber devision of the War Production Board working in Washington.

Skylight Bandit Robs Restaurant

Cumberland's "skylight" intruder made another haul early yesterday.

Authorities said $81.25 was stolen from a metal cash box in Lena's Rainbow Restaurant, 47 North Centre Street. Co-owners of the business are Mrs. Lena S. Belfourse and Anthony W. Scarpelli.

Detective Thomas J. See, who investigated, said entrance was gained by climbing to the roof, removing a screen covering a ventilator and dropping about 20 feet to the kitchen floor. The establishment closed at 2:30 a. m.

Investigation revealed the thief apparently knew the whereabouts of the money since he went directly to a counter in the restaurant section of the building, picked up the metal box and returned to the kitchen. The cash container was under the counter.

After removing money from the box, See stated, the intruder left through a rear door. Meager clues were being checked.

In recent weeks police have been plagued by several other skylight robberies. However, no arrests have been made.

W. Va. Governor's Budget Ideas Criticized By GOP

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 16 (AP) — Republican legislators criticized the extent of Gov. Patteson's budgetary suggestions today, but found no one item to label unworthy.

Democratic members generally found in the Governor's biennial message "a very able, courageous and forthright statement of the state's affairs," as House Majority Leader J. Hornor Davis (D-Kanawha) described it.

The Governor, speaking for 80 minutes, reviewed the work and the needs of the various state departments, proposed some specific new taxes and suggested the need for others, and outlined other proposed legislation for the session.

Strongest recommendation by Gov. Patteson was for establishment of a four-year medical and dental school within the state—an issue which cut through party lines in the 1949 session.

Gilchrist To Speak

Continuous Flight Record Set By B-36

FORT WORTH, Tex., Jan. 16 (AP) —A Convair test ship, believed to be the latest-type B-36 with jet-pod power added to its six propellor-motors, was believed today to have set a new record for continuous flight without refueling and for miles flown.

The giant bomber took off here Sunday morning and was expected to land some time today.

Convair officials stated that the B-36 was a test ship belonging to their corporation, but that at the present time they could not reveal any figure on the length of time the plane had been in the air or the number of miles flown.

Bomb Red China Or Quit Korea, Byrnes Declares

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 17 (AP)—Gov. James F. Byrnes, in an inaugural address devoted mainly to the dangers of war, called today for the bombing of Communist China, and said that if such action is not authorized, American troops should be pulled out of Korea.

He urged, even more emphatically, that American soldiers and military supplies should be sent to shore up Western Europe.

The ceremonies inducting the former Supreme Court justice and one-time "assistant president" into the governship of South Carolina brought an estimated 64,000 people into the State House square and packed the streets for eight blocks around it. In the audience were scores of nationally-prominent figures, officials and policy-makers.

They listened in careful silence but burst into wild applause when the former Secretary of State said:

"If the United Nations is unwilling promptly to declare China an aggressor, authorize our air force to attack the supply bases of the enemy, and join in blockading China, then our forces should be withdrawn from Korea."

34 "Slots" Are Seized In Hagerstown Raids

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Jan. 16 (AP) —City police raided a dozen clubs here today and confiscated 34 slot machines.

The raids were conducted simultaneously by Police Commissioner M. E. Ellinger and 33 patrolmen. Ellinger said the slot machines were picked up in trucks and brought to police headquarters.

He said the money hadn't been taken out of the machines, and that no charges had been made.

Officers found the machines at seven of the 12 clubs raided. The Moose Club had seven, Red Men Club, seven; UAW-CIO Club hall, six; Woodmen of the World, five; Eagles, four, Knights of Columbus, four; and Veterans of Foreign Wars, one.

Shortages Will Lower Morale, Executive Says

CHICAGO, Jan. 16 (AP) — Americans are used to so much of everything that shortages will lower their morale and produce inflation much worse than in World War Two, a Chicago sound equipment executive said today.

Truman Housing Plan Meets New Opposition

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. (AP)—Fresh opposition arose in the Senate today to President Truman's proposed $3,000,000,000 housing program. Sen. Robertson (D-Va) questioned whether the nation can afford to risk "ruinous" inflation by superimposing such an outlay on a $60,000,000,000 defense budget.

"Inflation might be as ruinous to us as defeat on the batlefield," Robertson said as the Senate Banking Committee opened hearings on the new bill which—like most of the items in the President's budget—carries a defense label.

Promotion Program Fund Thief Booked

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (AP)—Paul Neil Lewis, 32, was booked today on charges of forgery and grand larceny for allegedly stealing $82,000 of a Lipton Tea Company sales promotion program.

Housewives by the hundreds of thousands sent in 50-cent-pieces and Lipton tea labels for a "chef's saw" advertised last year on Arthur Godfrey's television program.

Police said Lewis spent most of the $82,000 on "horse racing bets, expensive automobiles, high living and various girl friends." They said at Belmont Park once Lewis put $12,000 on a horse named Baby Comet, which failed to live up to its name.

Former Sen. Tydings Confers With Truman

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—Millard Tydings, former Democratic senator of Maryland, conferred with President Truman today.

"I just stopped by for a little friendly chat," Tydings told White House reporters. "We talked over the general world situation."

Tydings, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee in the last Congress, said he is practicing law in Baltimore and Washington and has not changed his mind about not wanting a government job.

6 B-36 Bombers Fly 7,000 Miles To British Base

LAKENHEATH, Eng., Jan. 16 (AP) —Six American "global bombers"—giant B-36s which can freight an atom bomb 10,000 miles—roared into this air base today from Texas.

They took off Saturday from Carswell base, Fort Worth, paused at the Limestone air base on Main's northeastern tip and then flew a dog-leg course across the Atlantic, dropping practice bombs en route, the U. S. Air Force said.

The flying time was about 24 hours for the 7,000-mile distance, though the six gas engine-driven propellors and four underslung jets are capable of pushing a B-36 435 miles an hour at top speed.

It was the first time the enormous long-range warplanes had appeared on a mission to Europe. Though they were to return to their home base within four days, their presence revived persistent rumors that such bombers may soon be based in Europe. The group is commanded by Col. Thomas P. Gerrity, commander of the U. S. Eighth Air Force's 11th Bomb Wing.

To Play In Bowl

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 16 (AP)—Wake Forest and William and Mary today were signed to play in Richmond's third annual Tobacco Festival football game next fall.

The two southern conference foes will clash October 13 in city stadium. It will be the eighth meeting between the Deacons and Indians in a series which started in 1921.

Army To Recall 26 Nurses From State Into Service

Maryland was asked yesterday to supply 26 of more than 700 nurses in the Second Army area for voluntary recall to active duty.

Monday 24 physicians and nine dentists under 50 years of age registered at draft headquarters here in compliance with a Presidential proclamation, according to P. Emmett Fahey, clerk co-ordinator.

Fahey, who estimated that between 40 and 50 would sign up, said at least 20 per cent of all medical men in Cumberland were found to be over the 50-year age limit and did not have to register, in addition to those in reserve components of the Armed Forces.

The 724 nurses to be sought from seven states and the District of Columbia will be part of the 3,650 being recruited around the country.

The Second Army's quota includes 614 general duty nurses, 10 supervisors, 38 anesthetists, 28 operation room nurses and 34 psychiatric nurses. In announcing its state-by-state breakdown, the Army released these quotas:

Pennsylvania, 311; Ohio, 208; Delaware, 5; Kentucky, 15; Virginia, 27; West Virginia, 63, and District of Columbia, 68.

Snow Removal Cost Is Heavy

The semi-monthly report of J. Walker Chapman, supervisor of the County Roads Department, shows a total expenditure of $7,545.13 for the department for the period between December 16 to 31.

One large item was $4,700.05 for snow removal. This has been a heavy expense for the department since the first snowfall late in November.

Labor costs accounted for $5,192.99. Material costs were $812.61 and equipment charges were $1,233.03.

An additional report was made on the cost of distributing surplus foods to over 6,000 persons in Allegany county during December. The total expense for this was $797.12. Cutting and packaging of butter and cheese and storage costs are included.

The county board also received a letter from the Allegany County Chapter of the Maryland Arthritis and Rheumatic Fever Association thanking it for a $250 donation in the recent fund raising campaign.

Remington Not Red, Correspondent Says

NEW YORK Jan. 16 (AP) — A foreign correspondent, testifying for William W. Remington today, said he didn't think the former Commerce Department economist had ever been a Communist.

The witness, Bernard S. Redmont, Paris correspondent for U. S. News and World Report, also denied he'd ever belonged to the Communist Party.

Remington, 33, is on trial for perjury, accused of lying when he denied he'd ever been a Communist. He was ousted from his $10,000 government job after his indictment last summer.

Elizabeth Bentley, self-avowed Red spy courier during the last war, put the Communist tag on both Remington and Redmont.

County 4-H Club Enrollment Is Near 1,500 Mark

There are 1,473 boys and girls enrolled in 4-H clubs in Allegany county, according to the annual report of the offices of Joseph M. Steger, assistant county farm agent in charge of boys' club work, and Miss Thelma Allin, assistant home demonstration agent in charge of girls' club work.

The bulk of the members are students in public and parochial schools with only 23 boys and three girls being out of school.

Almost all of the boys reside on farms but only about half of the girls are farmerettes. Of the 446 boys enrolled in 4-H Clubs 322 are farm youths while 484 out of 927 girls in 4-H Clubs are farm girls.

Training in judging cattle, vegetables and other farm products was received by 318 boys and girls. There were 366 members of 4-H clubs who gave demonstrations, 182 took training in recreational leadership and 354 in health.

A total of 403 members took training in fire prevention, 409 in wildlife conservation, 33 in keeping personal accounts, six in the use of economic information, 394 in soil and water conservation, and 394 in forestry. There were six clubs which engaged in community activities such as improving school grounds and conducting local fairs.

Raising of poultry and swine had the largest participation in this plan of activity by 4-H members.

Poultry raising was engaged in by 89 boys and girls. They handled 3,362 birds including turkeys.

There were 105 boys engaged in swine production and they handled 114 animals during the year. Rabbit raising interested 16 boys and two girls. They had 143 animals in their projects.

Home gardens interested the largest number of members with 197 boys and 18 girls having plots. Total acreage of these projects was 65½ acres.

It took 40 years to progress from the simple Wright brothers' engine to one of 3,000 horsepower.

Ex-Asiatic Relief Worker To Address Church Group

Griffith G. Levering, vice-president of Lumberman's Mutual Casualty Company and a member of the Board of Directors of the American Friends (Quaker) Service Committee, will address a dinner meeting of the Cumberland Chapter, Council of Presbyterian Men, at First Presbyterian Church January 24 at 6:15 p. m.

Levering was given a leave of absence in June, 1945, by his Chicago company and went to China to head the Friends Ambulance Unit of London, consisting of about 100 British, Canadian and Chinese relief workers. He served there for two years, returning to the United States in 1947.

The main activity of the unit was to deliver and administer medicines to civilians on both the Communist and Nationalist sides of the battle line—principally to children.

Transportation across the battle line was provided by the U. S. Air Forces and the unit was flown thousands of miles over China both north and south. Levering had an opportunity to talk to high officials of the Nationalist and Communist governments and to visit and live with civilians in many parts of the country.

A musical feature of the program will be an appearance by the Elks Quartet of Lodge No. 63, this city.

A capacity crowd at Lonaconing last night saw Barton High School's Braves upset the cagers of Central High in an important W.M.I. League contest by the score of 50 to 44.

Fort Hill's Sentinels made it two straight in the league and eight in a row for the current campaign by spilling Bruce High in Westernport, 64-28, while Allegany High also made it 2-0 in the league by winning a close one from Beall High at Campobello, 41-34.

In the contest at Lonaconing, Barton held a one-point lead at 38-37 with three minutes to go then sewed it up by ringing up an even dozen markers in the closing minutes. Central led at the quarter, 14-8 but trailed at intermission, 27-20, and at the close of the third stanza, 34-27.

Bill Kirk, Bok Kirk and Garland Tichnell banged in 41 of Barton's 50 points. Johnson and Burt led Central with 14 and 12 markers.

Three players went out on personal fouls in the final period—Bob Kirk, McKenzie and Johnson.

Central's Jayvees defeated Barton in the opening game, 39-19.

Tied For First Place

Fort Hill and Allegany, conquerors of Central and Barton last week, went into a deadlock for first place place as a result of their victories last night.

The Sentinels easily took Bruce as 10 of the 12 players sent into action by Coach Bobby Cavanaugh crashed the scoring column. Beightol and Cage had 10 points each. Shimer and Marple registered eight apiece for Bruce. It was 35-14 at the half.

Mike Nofsinger scored 14 points in leading the Bruce Jayvees to a 35-32 win over Fort Hill in the opener of the twin bill. Bruce led throughout, the quarter scores being 14-3, 26-12 and 29-22.

Ronnie Lease and Fred See tossed field goals in the closing minute to give AHS a seven-point decision over Beall after the Mountaineers had pulled within three points of the pace-setters.

Beall trailed at the half, 26-21 and also at the conclusion of the third period, 32-26.

Phares Gets 15 Points

Frank Phares was Allegany's high scorer with 15 points. McClintick and Blank marked up 10 apiece for Beall.

WVU Frosh Play At Frostburg

Bobcats Oppose "100" Point Quint Tonight

Coach Quentin Barnette's West Virginia University Freshmen will make their only appearance of the season in this section tonight when they conclude their two-game series with Frostburg State Teachers' College at Frostburg at 8 o'clock.

The Mountaineer Plebes have a powerful aggregation and should find no trouble handling the winless Bobcats their 10th setback.

West Virginia has scored over 100 points in three games this season, whipping the W. & J. Freshmen in an overtime scoring marathon, and trouncing Frostburg Teachers 104-47 and Potomac State 110-86.

Leon "Mac" Isner, former Elkins High all-stater, and Eddie Becker, Wheeling High all stater, are the scoring aces of the W.V.U. yearling quint. Other stars of the team are Bob Kupchak of Wheeling and Ralph Holmes of Charleston.

In a Potomac Valley Conference game set for tonight, Capon Bridge will play the West Virginia School for the Deaf at Romney.

Everett's Jayces are billed to play Hyndman High School at the latter place.

Accident Whips Kitzmiller High

Scores Third Victory In County, 33 To 27

ACCIDENT, Md., Jan. 16—Coach Charley Strauss' Accident High School floormen took the measure of Kitzmiller in a Garrett County High School League game here tonight by the score of 33-27.

Accident has a 3-0 record in county competition.

Hamilton topped the AHS scorers with 13 tallies while Harman played a nice floor game. Hershberger was Kitzmiller's best bet.

Kitzmiller Junior High defeated Accident in the preliminary game, 31-20. Sullivan led the victors with 11 points. Hamilton led the locals with 10 markers. Lineups:

Bill Holland Is Suspended

DETROIT, Jan. 16 (INS) — The American Auto Association tonight suspended race drier Bill Holland, winner of 1949's Indianapolis speedway race, for one year because of a rules violation.

Holland was found in violation of Triple-A regulations for participating in a stock car race in mid-November, 1950. His suspension dates from the time of the event.

He was a major figure in all four of the Indianapolis races in which he was entered. In addition to winning the 1949 race, Holland placed second in 1947, '48 and '50.

The AAA contest board, meeting in Detroit, also announced that no plans are being made to curtail auto racing because of the war.

A spokesman emphasized, however, that the board is prepared to gear its activity to any national emergency—and will cut down on racing if and when the national welfare demands it.

Long Island Wins

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (INS) — Long Island University's unbeaten skyscrapers rolled to their 12th straight win of the season tonight when they humbled Duquesne, 84-52, in the feature of a Madison Square Garden basketball doubleheader.

Manhattan College overcame an 11-point deficit to upset DePaul, 62-59 in the first game before approximately 11,000 fans.

Ivy League Foes Snub Penn For Scheduling Irish

Boycott Statement Issued By Stassen

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16 (AP)—President Harold E. Stassen said today the University of Pennsylvania's difficulties in scheduling Ivy League football opponents arose from Penn's plans for a 1951 game with Notre Dame.

The Penn president issued a statement after reading a sports column by Joe Williams, of the New York World Telegram and Sun, which said the staid Ivy League schools, except Cornell, were boycotting Penn's football team.

"It is my understanding that the real reason for the scheduling difficulty is that some athletic officials object to Pennsylvania's anticipated game with Notre Dame in 1952," Stassen said.

"I do not believe in boycotting Notre Dame or any other American college team whether they are weak or strong, north or south, east or west."

Stassen would not elaborate on why the other Ivy schools objected so strenuously to Notre Dame but a reliable source said it was tied up with the question of scholastic standards.

This source, who declined to be identified, said Notre Dame's eligibility code was not on the same level with that of the Ivy institutions and that Penn by playing the Fighting Irish thus condoned the South Bend school's policy.

Notre Dame Indignant

At South Bend, Ind., Notre Dame athletic officials reacted with indignation.

Ed (Moose) Krause, athletic director, said "our academic requirements are equal to, if not better than, those of the Ivy League or any other institution in the country.

x x x x

"Our starting football team, I feel, could be matched academically with that of any other school in the world and do as well scholastically as it has done on the field.

x x x

Krause said that he "admired" President Stassen's attitude. "It is typically American," Krause said. "He wants to play the good teams where he finds them; he wants to compete against the best there is."

Stassen said that in spite of the present Ivy scheduling difficulty Penn will continue to try and maintain the "maximum relationships athletically, academically and scientifically with all other Ivy schools.

"It will continue to be Pennsylvania policy to strictly abide by the president's agreement of the Ivy group and the eastern collegiate athletic code," Stassen added.

Yale Snubs Penn

The president's agreement is a scholastic and athletic policy adhered to by the Ivy group of Penn, Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Columbia, Brown, Darthmouth and Cornell.

The source disclosed that efforts have been made by Penn athletic officials to schedule Yale for 1953, but that the Eli athletic board will have none of the red and blue grid legions because of the Notre Dame game. It also has been understood for years that the Yale alumni resented the 1943 game in which Penn ran up a 41 to 7 score on a Howie O'Dell-coached Eli eleven.

Penn Athletic Director Francis Murray said the 1953 schedule was not complete and that he still was trying to book at least four Ivy League teams and possibly five on a nine game schedule.

Williams said he had learned of the projected boycott while attending the convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association in Dallas last week.

"Unless Stassen apologizes," Williams wrote, " x x x Penn will have to to strike out for itself as an independent power."

He added all Ivy teams would join in the snub except Cornell which will continue the rivalry because "the Penn-Cornell game is history-packed and solid box office."

St. Mary's Is Victor Over St. Patrick's

St. Patrick's suffered its fourth straight defeat in the K. of C. Youth Basketball League when it dropped a 30-19 decision to St. Mary's yesterday on St. Mary's court.

The victory gave St. Mary's a 2-2 record in the four-team circuit.

Don Newcombe Signs

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (INS)—The Brooklyn Dodgers announced today that Don Newcombe, their right-handed pitching ace, has signed his 1951 contract.

The huge fireball artist won 19 games while losing 11 last season.

Newcombe is the 14th Dodger to agree to terms for the coming season.

"Babe" Talk Of Loop • • • The Lights Went Out

Diz Fanned The Side • • • Mounties Shake Jinx

By C. V. BURNS

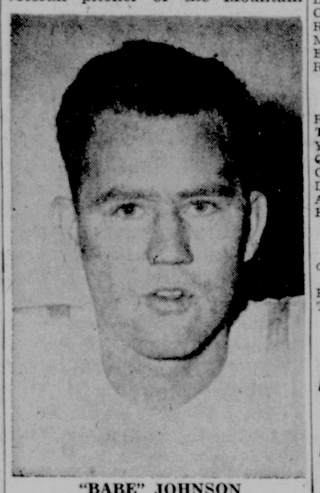
Robert "Babe" Johnson, the former Cumberland Dukes' player, is going great guns for the Denton Club of the Eastern Shore Basketball League, according to a dispatch out of Salisbury, Md.

The item says:

"The 25-year-old Lonaconing (Md.) resident has been the talk of the league during recent games with his steady point-making and his rugged backboard play. His 12-game scoring output totals 170 tallies."

Ed Athey is a member of the same team and has racked up 160 tallies in 11 contests.

Johnson, a native of Pekin, is a brother of "Farmer" Johnson, of the Westvaco Club; Urban Johnson, veteran pitcher of the Mountain



"BABE" JOHNSON

Top League, the Johnson sisters who starred for Central High School (Lonaconing) basketball and field ball teams in bygone days, and he played for Central High, Potomac State and the Lonaconing American Legion before joining the Dukes several years ago.

"Babe" is now a Washington College student and was declared ineligible by Mason-Dixon Conference officials this year because of his previous professional baseball experience with the Rocky Mount (NC) Coastal Plains League team.

Other teams in the Eastern Shore circuit are Chincoteague, Harrington, Salisbury, Lewes, Georgetown, Rehoboth, Federalsburg and Salisbury.

Rehashing old happenings the other day, a former Fort Hill basketball player recalled the night the Sentinels were playing out-of-town and the lights went out.

The Fort Hill players learned that the principal doused the lights. He was irked because his team was taking a trouncing and he never had any love for Fort Hill, anyway.

When the lights were turned on the crowd got a good chuckle out of the Fort Hill player sitting on the ball in the middle of the floor.

• — • — •

Fay Keiser also had a "lights out" story crowded into his boxing career.

He had Bob Martin, the A.E.F. heavyweight champion, on the verge of a knockout in Baltimore and all of a sudden the lights went out.

The delay enabled Martin to recuperate sufficiently to stay the limit. Keiser won the "duke."

Many stories are told about "Dizzy" Dean, former St. Louis Cardinals' pitching ace, but one we like best is told by Arthur Daley, New York sports columnist.

Dean was the freshest busher imaginable when Manager Gabby Street first had him. The Cardinal pitchers were getting shelled unmercifully by the great Athletics' sluggers in an exhibition game.

"I jes' wisht Ol' Diz wuz a pitchin'," murmured Ol' Diz softly on the bench.

"Get in there and pitch," screamed Street, suddenly turning on his tormentor. "I hope you get your brains beat out. Maybe it will teach you a lesson.

"Nonchalantly the kid strolled on the mound without a warm-up to find the bases full and Al Simmons, Jimmy Foxx and Mickey Cochrane waiting to bat. The 19-year-old Dean struck out the side."

• — • — •

Daley feels that Dean should be in Baseball's Hall of Fame. He adds that in the past twenty years there have been just two pitchers who have performed the rare feat of winning 30 games in a season. They are Lefty Grove and Dean.

Grove is on the inside and Ol' Diz is knocking on the door.

All-American Basketball League teams have won only 7 of 33 games played away from home this season.

The now defunct Johnstown Club had the worst record of 0-5 while Cumberland is next with 1-7.

Wheeling (5-0), Erie (5-0) and Altoona (4-0) have yet to lose a game at home. And Wheeling has played .500 ball in six road games which makes the Blues the "club to beat."

Petersburg Beats Thomas, 76 To 50

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 16—Petersburg High School's Vikings notched their 7th victory in nine starts by downing Thomas High of Tucker county in a non-conference game here tonight, 76 to 50.

Oakland Legion Takes Salisbury Five, 90-41

OAKLAND, Md., Jan. 16—Oakland's American Legion basketball team scored its third straight win in the Bi-State League tonight, defeating the Salisbury (Pa.) Legion passers by the score of 90 to 41.

Nicola and Wilson were the chief scorers for Oakland with 29 and 20 points. Cable and Brown topped Salisbury with eight points each.

We note that Joey Maxim, who is recognized as the light-heavy champion, is matched to fight Bill Peterson, of Illinois, in a 10-rounder at Indianapolis on January 27.

In 1948 Maxim whipped a Bill Peterson twice and we presume he's the same tanker who has been in the ring wars since 1940 and has been belted out 14 times.

Jim Mutscheller, captain and end of the Notre Dame football team, will speak at the sports banquet of Altoona Catholic High School, January 29.

The Beaver Falls native set the all-time Irish record for pass receiving during the past season when he snared 35 aerials for a total of 426 yards. This total almost doubled that of Leon Hart, the previous record holder.

275 Will Attend Dinner Honoring Fort Hill Eleven

Affair Set Thursday, Wise Will Come Here

Two hundred and forty-two persons have purchased tickets for the banquet which will be held tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club in honor of Fort Hill High School's undefeated and untied football champions, H. Clifford Spiker, president of the Fort Hill Boosters' Club, sponsors of the affair, announced last night.

Spiker expects 275 reservations by today at noon, the deadline for purchasing pasteboards.

Jim Tatum

Reservations can be made by contacting Spiker at the Truitt Drug Company, phone 364.

Jim Tatum, head football coach and director of athletics at the University of Maryland will be the principal speaker. He will be accompanied here by Bill Meek, assistant coach; John Alderton and Donald Decker, former Fort Hill gridiron stars. Alderton played end on the varsity eleven last season and Decker was with the Terp freshmen.

Carl Wise, backfield coach at Washington and Lee University, is also coming here for the banquet. George Barclay, head coach at W. & L., however, has sent regrets because of the fact that he has a speaking engagement at Beckley (W. Va.) High School.

Dr. George Simons, an alumnus of Fort Hill, will be the toastmaster.

Last year's Fort Hill eleven, coached by William P. Hahn was the first undefeated and untied football team in the history of the local school. Nine victories were registered by the Sentinels and the team closed the season with a string of 17 wins over two years.

Kluszewski, Stallcup Signed By Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 16 (INS) —First baseman Ted Kluszewski the Cincinnati Reds baseball team signed a 1951 contract today with The Cincinnati Reds baseball team for what officialls described as "a considerable boost in salary."

The 26-year-old Kluszewski batted .307 last season, hitting 25 homers and driving in 11 runs. He said he was "very happy" with his new contract.

Reds President Warren Giles also announced that Shortstops Virgil Stallcup and Roy McMillan had joined the fold.

The 29-year-old Stallcup batted .251 last season. McMillan, 22, and a slick fielder, hit for .275.

Moorefield Scores 7th PVC Win Over Romney, 71 To 53

Piedmont, Circleville Rack Up Victories

Keyser High School tied Petersburg for the runner-up spot in the Potomac Valley Conference last night by handing Ridgeley High's Blackhawks their first setback of the season in the 17-school cage circuit in a game played at Keyser before 450 spectators. The score was 67-51.

The triumph was Keyser's 5th against a single loss in the conference. Ridgeley now has a 3-1 record.

Keyser led at the quarters, 17-12, 27-23 and 51-35 and held a 21-point advantage in the final stanza when the count was 64-43, following a scoring spree that netted 11 consecutive tallies.

The teams were tied at 3-3, 5-5, 7-7 and Keyser took the lead at 11-10 on Porters fielder and was never headed.

Andrew Porter was the "big gun" for John Shelton's team with 11 field goals, six for six at the foul line and 28 points. Carl Hartman was the "whole show" for the Blackhawks with nine fielders and 22 markers.

Jackets Cop Seventh

Moorefield High stretched its winning streak to seven games in the conference by walloping Romney High's Pioneers by the score of 71-53 before the season's largest turnout at Moorefield.

Coach Johnny Paugh's Yellow Jackets, unbeaten in the P.V.C., led throughout, the scores being 23-14, 41-31 and 54-44.

Gene Baldwin topped the Moorefield offensive with 23 points, including 10 field goals. Bob Petry banged in 10 fielders and 22 points to pace Romney.

Romney High's girls defeated Moorefield in the prelim, 41-32. Sirk scored 15 points for Romney and Hedrick had 13 for the home team.

Piedmont Is Winner

Coach "Huck" Miers' Piedmont High Lions' cracked a six-game losing streak by sinking Elk Garden High on the Piedmont court by the score of 46-37.

Jimmie Bell played an outstanding game for the winners and chalked up 16 points to spark the offensive. Becker was Elk Garden's leading scorer with 11 tallies.

Piedmont held the long end of a 19-13 score at intermission.

Indians Top Franklin

Circleville's Indians upset Franklin High's Tigers at Circleville, 39-37.

The Tribe led at the half, 21-16, and at the close of the third period, 35-28

Bennett scored 17 points for Circleville while Wimer contributed 10 for the Panthers.

Opens Meeting Today

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 16 (AP)—Hialeah race course launches its 40-day midwinter meeting tomorrow with the $7,500 added inaugural Handicap split into two divisions.

Decision to run the six-furlong test in two sections was made today when 20 entries remained after scratches. Each division will carry the $7,500 added purse.

It is the first time since 1946 it has been necessary to run the sprint in two sections and the second time in the event's 21-year history.

Tropical Park Wagers Top 23 Million Mark

Grass Fire Scores In Final Feature

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 16 (AP) — Palatine Stable's Grass fire raced to his third straight triumph in the $5,000 Tropical Park today as the Gables Racing Association closed perhaps the most successful winter meeting in its history before a crowd of 10,452.

The gelded son of Firethorn-Hattie Kat overhauled Hampton Stable's Alerted in the final seventy yards of the six-furlong trip, clicking by a half-length. Irene Martin's Ogre was third, while George D. Widener's Platoon, launching his winter campaign, finished fourth before three other sophomores.

A. F. Plock's Valdor, the favorite, came out of the race nodding badly, which probably accounts for his disappointing effort. He was placed in third position to the turn, then dropped back when he went amiss in his front right foot.

Grass Fire, which completed a riding double for Joe Culmone, paid $10.60, $5.20 and $4.10 across the board. Under 114 pounds, he singed over the three-quarters in 1.12 1-5.

Grass Fire has won all three of his starts for Frank Rosen, owner of Palatine, since the Philadelphia sportsman claimed him for $10,000 on Dec. 29. This was Rosen's second victory of the day, having taken the sixth race through a disqualification with Delphy. Wolf Whistle was placed last after finishing first in this event for sharply impeding Mr. Ace in the stretch.

Unofficial totals show that the betting during Tropical's 41-day session will exceed $23,000,000, an increase of more than $5,000,000 over the play registered for the same number of days last winter.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (INS)—Nothing like a good hearty laugh to relieve tension in these troublesome times.

Wherefore, our thanks go forth to Frank Solomon of the Florida Boxing Commission who is worried because Omelio Agramonte, the Cuban canvass kisser, might permanently injure Joe Louis when they meet in Miami Feb. 7.

Can you tie that one? And can you top the consummate gall of the International Boxing Club in inflicting such a match on the long-suffering fight fans?

Mind you, this is the same Agramonte who absorbed such a thorough beating from one Clarence Henry in Madison Square Garden last Friday night.

Clarence even had Agramonte on the canvas in the first round and only the ringing of the bell at the count of five saved him.

Now we don't like to see a nice fellow like Solomon worrying himself sick over what Agramonte may do to poor Joe Louis and so we are going to let him and you in on a little secret.

A couple years ago in the course of one of Joe's exhibition tours he landed in Havana. Joe needed a party of the second part and Agramonte was duly elected.

But Agramonte was reluctant to take a chance even with the pillow-like exhibition gloves until assured by the Louis camp that Joe would go easy on him.

If you ever attended a sports event in Cuba you must have seen the natives bet. They will race up and down the grandstand at a baseball game shouting odds while waving dollar bills. They crowd around the ring at a fight doing the same thing.

Somehow the word got around among some of the Cubans that Agramonte was going to put Louis on the deck in their four round exhibition. Not knock Joe out, you understand merely knock him down.

Well, Joe went easy in the first round and so did Agramonte. But in the second Agramonte suddenly whipped over a hard right which caught the unsuspecting Louis on the whiskers.

Joe did not go down but he was rocked back on his heels. That punch made Joe mad and for the next two rounds he gave Agramonte a good shellacking even with the big gloves.

The other day we asked Louis to name his next opponent and he promptly said Agramonte. Then we asked Agramonte if he wanted to meet Louis and he replied, somewhat hesitatingly, "I hope so."

Next we asked Al Weill, matchmaker for the IBC, how he had the gall to make such a match and he told us the match was already in the bag before Agramonte was licked by Henry. He added:

"The match was made on a win or lose basis. Of course, if Henry had knocked out Agramonte we would have found somebody else."

So now you know how much Louis has to fear Agramonte and also what is wrong with the fight racket.

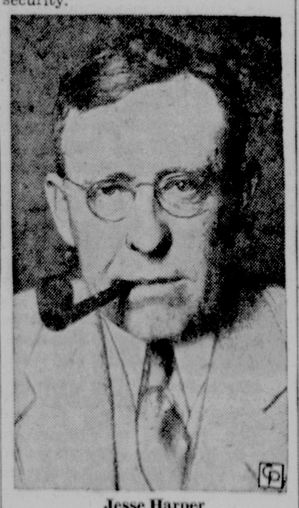
Ex-Irish Football Mentor Raps Grid Coaching Jobs

By FRED J. WALKER
Central Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO—Jesse Harper, whose 1913 Notre Dame football team started the Irish on the road to football greatness, feels sorry for present day coaches.

"The football situation today is ridiculous," said Harper. "Most coaches are up against pressure from alumni, students and any old grad who has lost a five dollar bet—to win, or else.

"I certainly wouldn't advise a young fellow to go in for coaching. Common sense would tell him to go in for something else if he would have peace of mind and job security."



Jesse Harper

Harper came to San Francisco from his large ranch at Sitka, Kan., to attend a national cattlemen's convention.

As football coach at Notre Dame from 1913 through 1917 Harper is credited with developing nationally-famous passing teams in a day when emphasis was on smashes at the line.

Harper's 1913 team, captained by the great Knute Rockne, stunned the nation's sports fans with its decisive 35-13 defeat of Army, then, as now, a recognized contender for top honors.

The passing combination of Gus Dorais to Rockne literally left Army flatfooted in one of the great upsets of that era.

Notre Dame then was relatively unknown in football and went to West Point for a guaranteed $1,000, paying its own traveling expenses.

"We took along only 18 players," recalled Harper. "To save money we left Cap Edwards, my assistant coach, at home.

"There was no paid gate to the game so the guarantee was all we got. We barely broke even, but there's no telling how much Notre Dame eventually profited from the victory.

"It spread the school's name throughout the country and the ultimate return probably would have to be estimated in the millions. Some say it stands as the most financially significant win in football history."

The 18-man squad that made the trip wasn't needed.

"Eleven men played the entire 60 minutes," chuckled Harper, "without taking a time out."

The famous Notre Dame shift as well as a devastating passing attack was introduced to the east in that game. The same shift, refined by the immortal "Rock," later became known as the "Rockne shift."

One of Harper's first moves when he reached San Francisco was to telephone Marchmont Schwartz, resigned head football coach at Stanford university. Harper went back to Notre Dame in 1931 for a two-year stint as athletic director. Schawartz was All-America halfback at Notre Dame in 1931.

"I told Marchie," said Harper, "that I'd known him for quite a spell and favorably, too, and that I thought he was getting smarter by giving up coaching.

"I told him I thought he'd made the right move and not to let them talk him into going back until it's all changed."

Harper, now a white-haired 67, said coaching in his day was a reasonably attractive occupation.

"Sure," he remarked, "they fired coaches from time to time but nothing like today when a coach is called a bum if he doesn't win 'em all."

Harper went to Notre Dame after playing football under Amos Alonzo Stagg at University of Chicago, and coaching five years at Wabash college.

In 1914 Harper made Rockne his assistant.

"It didn't require any mentality on my part," remarked Harper. "Rock was a standout in every way. Anyone could see he was marked for greatness.

Dorais, the other half of the great Notre Dame passing combination, also became a successful coach. He was in the game until three years ago when he left the Detroit Lions.

"Gus felt badly about leaving the Lions," continued Harper. "To him it was a personal tragedy, no doubt, but it turned out to be a blessing.

"He went into the automobile business in Wabash and recently he told me how happy he was and what a fool he'd been to take all of those headaches.

"Marchie Schwartz will be saying the same thing. Football coaching today is just no good."

Piedmont City Employes Get Pay Increase

Boost Of $10 Given To Salaried Workers

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—Wages of Piedmont city employees were ordered raised, effective January 1, at the regular meeting of Mayor Harold Fredlock and the City Council Monday. Salaried workers will receive a $10 boost per month and hourly workers an increase of five cents an hour.

The owner of the land where the Piedmont disposes of its garbage appeared before the city officials requesting the lease be renewed for a year at the same rate as at present and to reserve the right to salvage all refuse placed there.

It was ordered the lease be renewed as requested as the present lease expires in March.

Thomas Walsh, police officer, discussed parking problems at the meeting and it was ordered that owners of any vehicle parked in meter violation may report to the city clerk's office within one hour after tag has been placed and place five cents in the parking meter installed there. The rate goes up after two hours to 10 cents and after that the present fine of $1. The deposit may be taken to the police station if the clerk's office is closed.

Keyser To Mark Day Of Prayer

KEYSER, W. Va. — The World Day of Prayer will be marked Friday, February 9, at 2:30 p. m. in the Presbyterian Church. The day is sponsored by the Keyser Council of United Council of Church Women in conjunction with other Christian groups all over the world. The purpose is to unite Christians around the world in prayer.

This year the basic service was written by Christian women of Germany.

The offerings taken at this service are divided into two groups, one to the home missions which include the American Indians, the sharecroppers and the migrants; the other half is given to the Foreign Missions Conference of North America to be allocated for work in America and abroad.

Mrs. Charles Steiding is general chairman of the service in Keyser. Mrs. Charles Ludwick is president of the council. Mrs. Alice White, English teacher at Keyser High School, will direct the program at the school, while Mrs. Frances Hartman will have charge of the program for school children to be held at Grace Methodist Church. Miss Madalyn Bazzle, principal of Limestone school, will have charge of the program there.

GETS NEW WINDOWS—New stained glass windows are adding beauty to the Welsh Memorial Baptist Church in Frostburg. The new windows were a project of the church's Pioneer Club. They cost $140.

Stained Glass Windows Beautify Frostburg Church

FROSTBURG—A project of the Pioneer Class of Welsh Baptist Memorial Church, the installation of stained glass windows to add beauty to the interior, is nearing completion.

Twelve windows have been installed by R. L. Robyler of the Art Glass Company, Cresap Park, with the result that church interior presents an impressive appearance that was lacking with the older type windows.

The windows were purchased at $140 each, with the Pioneer Class paying one half the cost and the other half paid by individuals or families.

Sponsors of the windows, besides the Ladies Aid Society and the Pioneer Class, are: Mr. and Mrs. George McLuckie and family, the family of the late David and Jemima Williams, the family of the late John and Sarah Lindsay, Mrs. John Edmund Davies in memory of her husband, Margaret Walsh and Howard Hanna, Mr. and Mrs. David Jenkins and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Beach in memory of their daughter, Norma, the Hughes family in memory of the late Griffith and Ann Hughes, Mrs. Edward Davis and family and Mrs. Jonathan Jenkins, in Baltimore, in memory of her husband and an additional window purchased by Mrs. Jenkins.

Each window is decorated with a different religious symbolic design, such as an open Bible, cross, crown, dove and others.

Plans are being made to dedicate the windows at a special service to be held in the near future. Rev. Karl Kauffman is the present pastor of the church, which is located on the corner of Beall and Charles Street.

KEYSER, W. Va. — The Keyser Navy Recruiting Station has announced that all applications received at his station will be classified as to qualifications. The men will be selected according to grades, thus limiting the number of selections. He said that applications are still being taken by the Keyser office, and the men will be called according to dates and qualifications. This announcement has put all Navy recruiting on a selective recruitnig basis.

Keyser's Irate Mayor Leaves Council Session

Freeland Refuses To Make Apology

KEYSER, W. Va.—It was a stormy session that the Mayor and City Council held here yesterday afternoon, closing with Mayor John C. Freeland withdrawing from the meeting, after an argument over claims of three citizens of Keyser, made to Councilman Elmer Hartman, that the Mayor had publicly insulted Dyke Shaffer, a B & O. railroad company employee.

Hartman named those who claimed to have witnessed an altercation between the mayor and Shaffer and the mayor denied that he had said things charged to him.

Council took the view that a letter of apology should be sent to Shaffer by council, but the mayor said he would have no part in the matter as he refused to apologize to him. At this point he put on his hat and coat and walked out, leaving a vacant chair. As he left, he turned to Hartman and said "I turn the meeting over to you and you may act as mayor."

The meeting was continued until adjournment with Councilman Hartman in the Mayor's place.

City Employes At Keyser Ask Wage Increase

Action Taken On Ice, Excavations

KEYSER, W. Va.—Mayor John C. Freeland and the Council yesterday received a communication from city employes, exclusive of council and clerk's office, asking for an increase in pay due to the rising cost of living.

The council turned the communication over to the financial committee to investigate and see how far the city can go in the matter and to report back at the next meeting.

The Council acted yesterday to clear up difficulties experienced in the past of having snow and ice left on sidewalks and street crossings, and served notice that all who make excavations in sidewalks or streets will suffer heavy penalties.

The city clerk was instructed to notify the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company to close several excavations in streets and sidewalks, especially the one on the "Hill" at the head of South Main Street, that has been left open since before the first snow fall.

The city governing body adopted a resolution in a motion that a patrol system will be used in the future with the City Street supervisor William Kesner, making a check following each snow storm, and report back to the council.

However he was given instructions to see that street and alley intersections are cleared of snow within the 12-hour period following a snow, and the sidewalks, which are the responsibility of property owners or tennants, must be cleaned by themselves or have them cleaned or the city will take over.

Tri-State Deaths

Mr. Beckman was the son of the late Daniel E. and Sarah Lohr Beckman.

Survivors include his widow, Elsie Howell Beckman; four daughters, Mrs. Scott Grove Piedmont, Mrs. Skirl Dodge, Westernport, Mrs. Harry Coddington and Miss Elizabeth Beckman, Oakland; four sons, Irvin Beckman, RFD 1, Swanton, Lloyd, Carl, and Luther Beckman, all at home; one brother, Ray Beckman, Meadow Mountain; and seven grandchildren.

THOMAS S. LANTZ

BAYARD, W. Va.—Thomas S. Lantz, 77, retired Preston County farmer, died here Saturday at the home of his son, Delbert Lantz.

Mr. Lantz was a lifelong resident of the Lantz Ridge section until he became ill six months ago and moved to the home of his son. His wife, Hattie Wiles Lantz, died 20 years ago. He was a son of the late David and Lyda Beatty Lantz.

Surviving besides the son are a daughter, Mrs. Nellie Burkhalter, Huntington, W. Va., and a brother, Lucien M. Lantz, Rowlesburg.

A funeral service was held yesterday afternoon at the Mount Olivet Lutheran Church, Lantz Ridge, near Rowlesburg, with the Rev. Ward Harvey officiating.

MRS. VICTORIA GRAHAM

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—A funeral service for Mrs. Victoria H. Graham, widow of D. F. Graham, who died Saturday at the Potomac Hotel, Ashfield Street where she resided was conducted yesterday morning at the St. James Episcopal Church Westernport, with Rev. G. Stanley Schwind, rector, officiating. Burial was in Philos Cemetery, Westernport.

Pallbearers were George Boyd, Tracy W. Whitworth, Arthur Arnold, Raymond C. Hudson, Donald Mellor, T. J. Martin, Dr. James H. Wolverton, Sr. and Dr. James H. Wolverton, Jr.

Survivors include three sons, Klein H. Graham, Gainesville, Florida; Robert Graham, Fairfax, Va and Paul Graham, Richmond, Va.; one daughter, Mrs. Helen Bigger, Asheville, N. C.; one brother, Frank Harrison, New York City, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Helen Graham Jones, Piedmont.

Mineral Grand Jury Returns Six True Bills

Alleged Taxi Theft Among Court Cases

KEYSER, W. Va.—Six true bills were returned by the Mineral County grand jury yesterday in opening the January term of Circuit Court.

Five of the true bills are felonies and the other is a misdemeanor count. Two others, one felony and one misdemeanor, were returned as not true bills.

Calvin A. Landis was indicted on a charge of theft of a taxi from Mac's Taxi Stand, operated by John McDonald, on Armstrong Street.

Robert P. Viney and Ira M. Davey were jointly indicted on a charge of theft of a gun valued at $68, the property of Haven Martin, while the gun was in possession of Eston McAvoy.

James E. Barkley, Ernest G. Ashenfelter, Charles Hardy and Walter W. Martz, were jointly indicted for a felony on a charge of breaking and entering a store owned by Jesse Johnson and operated by Austin Judy. The four persons indicted are youths of Wiley Ford. Two true bills were returned against the four youths.

Harry F. Fertig was indicted on a charge of removing a car encumbered with a lien of a conditional sale, from Mineral county. The car was purchased from Robert E. Smith in April, 1949. Fertig was returned here on a warrant issued by the county several months ago.

A misdemeanor indictment was returned against Luther T. Cook and Donald A. Marke, charged with contributing to the delinquency of a 13-year-old Mineral county girl.

The grand jury, headed by John E. Umstot, as foreman, also includes James W. Carskadon, Jr., E. Wayne Miller, G. B. Shank, Edgar Landis, Russell C. Ross, Louis Grant, Arthur Jones, A. R. Evans Leo Ellifritz, S. K. Mountford, Russell Kitzmiller, C. B. Hott, John K. Williamson, James Peters and Raymond Murray.

Pioneer Club To Give Play

FROSTBURG—Meeting Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Mary Reidler, Mt. Pleasant Street, with Mrs. Helen Harvey, as co-hostess, the Pioneer Club of Welsh Memorial Church completed arangements for the presentation of a comedy drama, "The Old Fashioned School," to be held Friday evening, February 2, at 8 o'clock, in the recreation room of the church.

Following the play, there will be a sale of refreshments, with proceeds added to the church improvement fund.

The club will meet for a full dress rehearsal January 26 at the home of Misses Mary Beth and Sarah Jane Davis.

The responsibility for holding the annual St. David's Day observance, a traditional at this church, will be assumed by the club and plans are now underway to present a special program in honor of the Patron Saint of Wales in the church auditorium March 2 at 8:15 p. m.

Moorefield Preacher Gets Appointment

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—Rev. J. B. Dryfield, pastor of the Duffy Memorial Methodist Church, has received word of his appointment to be guest preacher in the Pittsburgh Area United Evangelistic Advance to be held in the Pittsburgh churches beginning February 17 and lasting through February 25.

The appointment, which was made by Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke, resident bishop of the Pittsburgh Area, was announced by Dr. Ross Linger, district superintendent of the Moorefield District. The pastor of the local church recently held this same position in the Syracuse Area of the Methodist Church and spoke in the Elmira District churches for a similar evangelistic advance.

POSTER BOY of the 1951 March of Dimes, 12-year-old Robert Lawrence McKenzie of Detroit and Windsor, opens the District of Columbia drive by dropping his contribution in a bottle in front of a Washington theater. Joining him in the ceremony are Georgia Neese Clark, treasurer of the United States, and Bill Lawrence, singer on the Arthur Godfrey radio and television shows. (International)

Barton Girl Recent Bride

BARTON — Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Mary Angela Winkler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Winkler, Barton, to Cpl. John D. Ritchie, son of Mr. and Mrs. David W. Ritchie, Lonaconing.

The ceremony was performed New Year's night in the Presbyterian manse by Rev. Chalmers Goshorn, pastor of the Presbyterian Church.

Miss Mary Jane MacDonald, Cumberland, served as bridesmaid and David Lee Ritchie, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

The bride, a 1949 graduate of Barton High Schol, was attired in a blue velvet dress with lace yoke and wore navy blue accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The bridesmaid chose a wine brocade dress with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Cpl. Ritchie, a graduate of Central High School, class of 1948, is with the U. S. Air Force and is stationed at the Pentagon in Washington.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom. A three tiered wedding cake centered the refreshment table. Assisting his mother in serving were Mrs. James Howard, Mrs. Harland Ritter, Mrs. James Mitchell and Mrs. James Burke, all aunts of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Mildred Bradley.

Piggie Gets Lost Going To Market

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (AP)—This not-so-little piggie apparently got lost on the way to market. And, though in the prime of life, it appears she'll wind up on the farm of the home for the aged and infirm.

The sow is at the Bourbon livestock yards market here. She's eating them out of house and home. Despite prices pork is bringing, they can't sell her. They don't know her owner.

Policemen found her wandering the streets during the noon hour traffic not far from the stockyards. They took her there.

"We can't impose on the stockyards' hospitality much longer," said Police Chief Carl Heustis as efforts to find piggie's owner remained fruitless.

"If her owner doesn't call for her we'll give her to the welfare department for the home for the aged. They raise pigs on the farm. Piggie, I understand, is going to have little pigs."

But Gen. Mgr. George Tomes of the stockyards said he believes piggie, a black and white 200-pounder, became a mother recently and the little ones are at her former home.

"She just eats and rests and eats some more," said the manager. It's not that he begrudges her a few bushels of corn—"a pig has got to live but she's a little irritable."

The only reptile native to Ireland is a type of lizard.

Use of a special type window glass, known as Golden Plate, will reduce fading of fine rugs and other materials which are subject to the sun's rays in the home. The glass, developed by Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Company, cuts down the ultra-violet rays which cause fading.

Horses were unknown on this continent until the coming of Europeans.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 16. (INS)—There has been almost as much talk about Jose Ferrer's future Hollywood plans as there are polls about this-and-that these past weeks.

Now, I can tell you this morning that Jose has just signed a contract with William Perlberg and George Seaton to star in "Anything Can Happen," the George Papafhvily comedy.

Jose Ferrer

Jose, who looms up as a strong contender for male Oscar honors for his performance in "Cyrano de Bergerac," plays a Georgian immigrant who has trouble getting his U. S. citizenship papers—all comedy, of course.

This will be the third picture on the Perlberg-Seaton schedule following "Rhubarb" and "Aaron Slick from Pumpkin Creek"—so Jose must be coming back here right away.

Stanley Kramer not only did himself some big business when he bought "Death of a Salesman" and "Happy Time," he also has the inside on "Member of the Wedding," another top Broadway play.

I met Stanley in Chicago with George Glass on their way back from New York and, at that time, the deal for "Salesman" and "Happy Time" had not yet been closed. But, over the weekend, the sales went through on a cash and percentage basis.

Arthur Miller, author of "Death of a Salesman," who had planned to make the picture, himself, was influenced by Kramer's past screen successes such as "Champion," "Home of the Brave," "Cyrano", etc., in selling Stan his play.

• — • — •

Sir Laurence Olivier will receive an offer from Evan Frankle, producer of the film version of "The Medium," to star in a movie version of "King Lear." I'd say off hand that Frankie will get a big refusal.

Larry told me when he was here that there were no more Shakespearean plays that he wanted to do. He said he would like to do a Shakespearean comedy, but there none he felt were right for him.

Louis Calhern's tremendous hit as King Lear has put a new interest into that particular Shakespearean classic, because heretofore it has not been considered particularly good for the stage or screen. However, even that will not influence Larry—at least in my opinion. I could be wrong, I have been before.

• — • — •

Several weeks ago I told you that Joe DiMaggio and Dorothy Arnold were on the verge of a reconciliation and I suppose it's official now—or what do you make of this, Watson?

When Lou Costello started work on "The Real McCoy" on Monday—there was a big magnum of brandy from his pal, Joe, wishing him good luck on the picture.

And the card was signed, "Dorothy, Joe and Joe Jr."

If that isn't a reconciliation—it's awfully close.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

The pretty blonde with Jack Dempsey one, two, three nights at the Wilshire Seacombers was Marie Ainslee.

Rise Stevens, whose eye was so badly cut by a broken champagne glass in a scene on the stage at the opera, has been told not to use that eye for a week.

George Jessel met Garbo for the first time when Harry Crocker introduced them. George was so entranced with her, he at once started talking a movie. I ran into Greta in a doctor's office and she seemed less shy than when I had previously seen her.

Rodgers and Hammerstein would like to get Doris Day to replace Mary Martin in "South Pacific." Well, who wouldn't like to have Doris in a musical? The signing of George Sanders for the Ezio Pinza role, starting June 1, started quite a ripple of talk. George is a good actor as his performance in "All About Eve" proves.

That's all today.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Where Do We Go From Here?

ABC IS RAPIDLY running out of television comedians. When you get down to Abbott & Costello which NBC recently did on its Colgate Comedy Hour, you are getting pretty close to bedrock; they'll have to drill some place else pretty soon. Abbott & Costello are not the oldest comics around but their material is old enough to be tinged with history.

John Crosby

On their television show, for example, they opened with that non-sequitur routine: "Suppose you're at Grand Central depot. You're buying a ticket. Where are you going?"—"I dunno."—"Well, what are you doing there?" My favorite historian, Fred Allen, said the non-sequitur routine was originally developed by Moss & Frye way, way back; it was later brought to a high polish by Moran and Mack about 25 years ago. The Marx Brothers used to be experts at it in their movies.

• — • — •

Later the two zanies went into their shell game act played with lemons: "Have you got two tens for a five?" You must have seen that somewhere or else you've stayed awfully close to home. And these days even that isn't much protection. This is a real comic masterpiece right out of the east wing of the museum and I have no objection to it being displayed from time to time anywhere than I object to the revival of Shakespeare. But where you could enjoy it once a year in burlesque, you are going to get pretty tired of it once a month on television.

Naturally, no Abbott & Costello show would be complete without the Dr. Abbott Sanitorium sketch where Costello goes to get peace and quiet and finds nothing but utter pandemonium. It's an old, old burlesque sketch but it's good enough to get into Broadway revues from time to time. Jack Haley did it years ago in something or other. More recently he did a modified version of the same thing in "Inside U.S.A."

Not long ago, Danny Thomas revived the ancient sport of analyzing songs. You take a song like "Give Me a Home Where the Buffalo Roam," break off in the middle with some remark like: "Now isn't that ridiculous? Who wants Buffalo roaming through the living room." Most any popular song is susceptible to ridicule of that sort. Historian Allen — not Frederick Lewis, just plain Fred — tells me that routine was originated by Clinton Crawford, a comic from overseas, many, many years ago. Later Frank Fay did it in vaudeville for years. Abe Burrows' song parodies — "The Girl With The Three Blue Eyes" — are really a refinement of the same thing.

• — • — •

"Every generation rediscovers the comedy routines of the generation ahead of it," says Allen. That's a normal, probably healthy rebirth provided its confined to a generation ahead of it," says Allen. That's a normal, probably healthy rebirth provided its confined to a generation. I'm not sure the television viewer will be especially happy to rediscover the same comedy routines every week.

The shortage of comedy and of comedians is going to become really acute next year. This was the year when all the major comics — except Bing Crosby who isn't essentially a comedian — got into television. As I say, when you hit Abbott & Costello, you are pretty well at the bottom of the barrel. Each comedian has recklessly torn through material which kept him alive for years. Jimmy Durante has pretty well burned up 27 years worth of his best stuff in three television appearances.

Where do we go from here? It's Allen's theory, a novel one, that Ed Sullivan has found the secret of perpetual motion in television. "He has no talent. He points at people. You could get a dog to do that by rubbing meat on the actors. But he has stumbled on something — simplicity." Along with simplicity he fears there will be a relaxation of every standard of show business to the point where there won't be any standards at all. Talent will be replaced by pure, distilled personality. You'll just look at them; you won't expect them to do anything.

"And people will accept it," says Mr. Allen. "People accept Wednesday because it comes up every week. People accept Godfrey for the same reason."

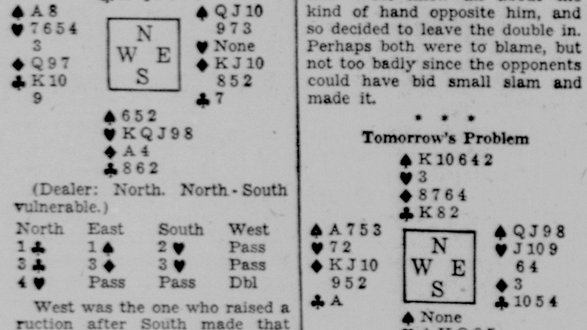
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

CANCEL YOUR BIG CARDS

AS YOU re-value your hand as one bid after another is made around the table, you sometimes wind up in a situation which impels you to do what amounts to canceling the trick-taking value of your best-looking cards. That operation should often be performed when the opponents have bid a couple of suits and your partner had bid the other two. If they were the side that opened the bidding, it is extremely likely that your partner's action was based mainly on extreme distribution. In that case, not only may you find his high cards useless on defense, but the same may be true of yours.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♥	Pass
3 ♣	3 ♦	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Dbl

West was the one who raised a ruction after South made that doubled contract with two overtricks. Perhaps he was making what seemed like an attack on his partner's judgment, whereas really his action was what might be called a "defensive attack" to make sure East did not impugn him.

"Here I had a hand of average strength containing one ace, one king and one queen," said West, "plus five cards of their trump suit, and I had a partner who was strong enough to bid two suits, one of them at the height of three. Certainly I expected to beat their contract. You are the one who knew about your freakish and weak hand, so you should have taken my double out to 4-Spades."

East calmly pointed out that West could count South as having five trumps from his rebid, and North the remaining three from his eventual support, naturally including all trumps higher than West's. Also North's two bids of clubs rendered West's K of that suit null and void, where it could be finessed. East felt that West knew all about the kind of hand opposite him, and so decided to leave the double in. Perhaps both were to blame, but not too badly since the opponents could have bid small slam and made it.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

How should South play for his 5-Clubs after West leads the diamond J?

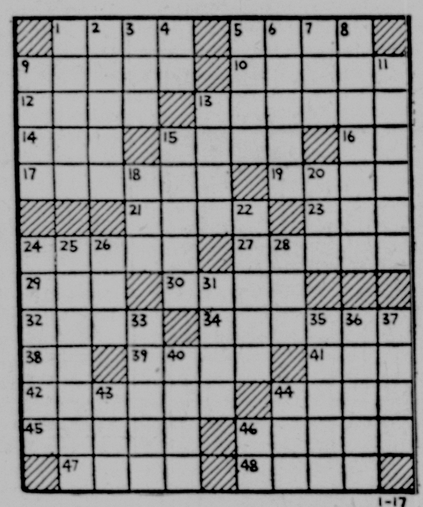
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Cards of Thanks

We wish to thank our neighbors, friends and relatives for their sympathy and helpfulness following the sudden loss of our beloved husband and father, Francis Jerome Brailer. We also wish to thank Rev. Father Smith, those who loaned cars and those who sent floral tributes, cards of sympathy, and helped in any way to lighten our burden.
Mrs. Alma M. Brailer and Family
Mt. Savage, Md.

We are taking this means to thank our friends and neighbors for the kindness extended to us during the illness and following the death of Larry Albanese, Sr., Piedmont. We also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes, cards and donated the use of their automobiles for the funeral.
Albanese and Mayolo Family

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, Wilbur I. Tysinger, who died two years ago today, January 17th, 1949.
Your memory is as dear today,
As in the hour you passed away,
To have to hold and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of our hearts.
Although your soul is now at rest,
And free from care and pain;
This world would seem like Heaven
If we had you back again.
Sadly missed by Children
and Grandchildren

Property Sales Involve $36,000

Transfer of ownership of three pieces of residential property for a total of $36,000, was recorded in three deeds filed yesterday in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

Builders Paint and Supply Company sold property at 621 Montgomery Avenue to Lee A. Green and Pearl E. Green for $15,500, according to one of the deeds.

Harry B. Klosterman and Frances B. Klosterman transferred ownership on the southeast side of Nationol Highway, three miles west of Cumberland, in LaVale, to Andrew H. Mauer and Goldie E. Mauer for $13,000, according to another deed. In the third transaction, Edward P. Maybert and Mary V. Maybert sold property at 222 Columbia Street to William E. McDaniel and Mildred V. McDaniel for $7,500, the deed showed.

Safety Council Offers Service In Civil Defense

The Western Maryland Safety Council decided at a meeting last night to offer its services to the director of Civil Defense here, according to Lynn Walker, president.

Walker said the Council also endorsed the city's proposed parking facility as a step to solve the traffic problem in Cumberland.

A number of complaints have been received because operators of motor vehicles fail to dim their lights for approaching vehicles, Walker explained, pointing out that each driver must recognize this as his own responsibility in helping to make the highways safer for himself and others.

Lt. E. R. Lilya discussed the problem of overloading school buses and the measures that have been taken to correct it. The Council decided to study and to discuss the problem further, Walker added.

general chairman of the fund-raising campaign, Mrs. W. H. Eliason of the Women's Division, Lynn Lashley of the Advanced Gifts group and George Martin of the Classified section for their successful work. Robertson told the guests the amount raised was the largest ever received by Cumberland's Red Feather agencies except for campaigns during World War II.

The number of contributors advanced from 8,471 to 10,564, Robertson related, and $4,379 was realized over the previous campaign. The adoption of the payroll deduction plan made it possible for the average employed person to give a fair share in an easy way, the speaker noted, and increased acceptance of this plan would make the Community Chest more successful than ever.

loving press gals were undone the next day . . . At the White House press conference Mrs. Vera Clay of Newsweek Magazine got a bit mixed up . . . She told the President that Taft had said he'd like to kick Truman in the teeth.

By deliberately misquoting Mr. Republican, Mrs. Clay, a good-looking gal of White Russian descent, got a laugh and even got herself a mention on some front pages . . .

But she was called to task by the Women's National Press Club president, Ruth Montgomery. "Your story was untrue, Vera, and you know it. You ought to call the White House and correct it," said Mrs. Montgomery.

The irresponsible Vera Vague Clay merely shrugged. Yes, she knew it wasn't true, she said, but "Even if Taft didn't say it, that's probably what he meant to say, anyway. Besides, it makes a cute box on the front page for me."

Thereby setting the lady reporters back 25 years!

Prices Rise As Scramble For Stocks Hits Fast Pace

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (AP)—The inflation-born scramble for stocks hit a red-hot pace today and prices rose all along the line.

Brief selling flurries at the tag-end of the day pulled some issues below their top levels for the session. Nevertheless, the list was heavily larded with gains ranging from $1 to $3 a share—and higher. A far greater number, of course, produced gains below a dollar.

Railroad stocks—fortified by a possible rise in freight rates—spearheaded the advance. Close behind in strength and activity were steels, motors, rubbers, distillers, radio-TV, chemicals and airlines.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 90 cents at $92.90—a new 1950-51 high and a peak since the index stood at $93.40 on Oct. 3, 1930. The industrial components of the average was $1.10 higher, rails ahead $1 and public utilities 30 cents.

Of the 1,238 individual stocks that changed hands, 671 were priced higher and 316 retreated. Moving to new 1950-51 highs were 187 issues, while three dropped to new lows.

Trading amounted to 3,740,000 shares—second highest of 1951—compared with 2,830,000 Monday. Demand held at an even pitch through most of the session, although on three occasions the ticker tape fell behind. Each time the snarl was unraveled quickly.

One of the outstanding performers was B. F. Goodrich, which jumped $6 at $138. A three-for-one stock split of Goodrich becomes effective Friday. Standard Oil (N. J.) advanced $2.12 at $97.37 on rumors of a possible split.

These Days

Sunday Times of London, on December 24, 1950:

". . . Giving up Marshall aid (by Great Britain) was a gesture of magnanimity approaching genius."

Why was it magnanimity? The Marshall Plan was an aid; in effect, it was charity. It was a tax on every American household to help an ally in distress. If he no longer needs the aid, why is it magnanimous to give it up? The word, magnanimity, in this instance, is little less than an insult.

Mr. Denis W. Brogan, who used that word, did not mean it that way, as the remainder of his article clearly shows—but the slip in language indicates a state of mind. He says, for instance:

"To a nation under this strain, complaints from Hongkong that the new American embargo will ruin trade sound untimely. There are more important things, the Americans think, than trade in Hongkong, and if Communist China gets away with it, there won't be any British interest in Hongkong or Singapore to suffer."

Too true—but not magnanimous!

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Do you "mean what you say" when you're angry?

Answer: Yes. The unkind things that you say to someone when you "blow your top" may not represent your total feeling toward him—in fact, they may be unconsciously intended for someone else. But they express feelings which you actually have, however little you may want to realize it when you've calmed down. So even if others accept your assurance that you "didn't really mean it"—as they seldom will completely—you had better for your own sake find out what your rage is all about and what can be done to control it.

Can we recognize an "agitator"?

Answer: Yes, say Leo Lowenthal and Norbert Guterman of Columbia University in their book, "Prophets of Deceit." The typical agitator starts with a distorted version of some actual social evil, but his attacks are directed, not at abuses, but at people. He terrifies audiences with the threat of vague or exaggerated dangers and represents any criticism of himself as "persecution." He has no real interest in curing social ills, but uses the paranoid fears of his followers to make them feel he is their sole hope of safety.

Should you be glad your child is a bookworm?

Answer: No. Fondness for reading may become a priceless asset, but it should not be developed too soon or too strongly. For one thing, a child's main interest should be in doing things, not in reading about them; for another, living too much in the realm of imagination retards the development of his ability to distinguish reality from daydreams. But most serious of all, a child who would rather read than play with other children is avoiding the great problem of learning to get on with others of his own age.

Fatal Crash Witness Testifies Darr Could Have Missed Wife

Manslaughter Case Continues Today

Paul Livengood, 24-year-old Pinto plumber, who was driving immediately behind the truck of William R. Darr, 43-year-old Rawlings lumber mill operator, when Darr's vehicle struck and fatally injured his wife, testified in Allegany County Circuit Court late yesterday afternoon that Darr could have avoided the accident by swerving to the left instead of to the right as he did.

Livengood was the last of eight prosecution witnesses heard yesterday as Darr's trial got underway on a manslaughter charge. Darr has pleaded not guilty to the charge, placed against him after his wife, Mrs. Mary Catherine Darr, 40, died about 11 p. m. December 20 at Allegany Hospital.

Associate Judge George Henderson, who is presiding at the trial, called a halt to proceedings at 4:07 p. m. yesterday after admonishing the jurors not to discuss the case with anyone except other jurors. The trial will resume at 9:15 o'clock this morning.

The young Pinto man said he was driving along McMullen Highway the day of the fatal accident because he and two other men had been working that day in Maysville, W. Va. Livengood told the jurors that Darr's truck—the tractor portion of a tractor-trailer truck—pulled out of a driveway beside his lumber mill and turned to the left in the direction of Cresaptown.

"As we drove a short distance down the road, I saw a woman hurrying across the road," Livengood testified. "I had no idea there would be an accident because I felt sure the truck could swing to the left and avoid her. However, the truck turned to the right and I saw snow fly as the truck hit the woman. I learned later it was Mrs. Darr," Livengood related.

More Witnesses Summoned

First witnesses expected to be called this morning are Carl Moreland and David Dayton, who were riding with Livengood. Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis also is scheduled as another prosecution witness.

Just before Livengood was called to the witness stand the jury heard the testimony of Frank Martz, of Rawlings. Martz, who is employed at Darr's mill, said that he and Darr attempted to fix a saw the afternoon of the fatal crash. He explained that while they were working they drank a pint of whiskey. However, he credited himself with drinking more than Darr. At his suggestion they got into the truck, with Darr driving, and were preparing to drive to Cresaptown to purchase another pint of whiskey when the fatal accident occurred. Martz, who lost a child in an accident on McMullen Highway some years ago, said that he became nervous, got out of the truck and went home.

Witness Admits Drinking

Martz admitted that he and Darr were both under the influence of alcohol at the time of the fatal accident in front of the Darr home, but asserted they were not drunk.

Other witnesses heard yesterday as State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher began presentation of his case were Dr. H. V. Deming, county deputy medical examiner; State Trooper William Baker, Guy Elmer Shook, Niles B. Shook and 15-year-old Wayne M. Shook, all neighbors of Darr, and Walter J. Gordon, also of Rawlings, who brought Mrs. Darr to Allegany Hospital after the accident, which occurred about 5:30 p. m. December 20.

Permits Issued For Church And Two Homes Here

Cost Estimated At Over $68,000

Building permits were issued yesterday by the city engineer for the construction of a church, two homes and an addition to an apartment building.

Grace Baptist congregation yesterday secured a permit for the construction of a chapel and educational building on 211-13 Greene Street. Ground for the project was broken several weeks ago.

The permit lists the George Construction Company as contractor for the work.

The building will be of concrete block faced with brick upon a concrete block foundation with an asphalt shingle roof.

Cost of the construction is estimated at $50,000.

Lee Green, 621 Montgomery Avenue, yesterday secured a permit to construct a home on lots 7-10 Greenway Avenue.

The one-story home is to be 40 by 50 feet, with a stone foundation, stone walls and rubberoid roof. Estimated cost is $14,000.

William P. Roeder secured a permit for a one story house, 26 by 40 feet, on lot 810 of Elmwood Lane.

Plans call for a concrete block foundation, frame walls covered with asbestos shingles and a rubberoid roof.

Work is to be done by the owner at an estimated cost of $4,500.

Roeder also secured a permit for an addition to the second floor of an apartment at 811 Elmwood Lane at a cost of $250.

Civil Service Group To Act On Appeal

The Civil Service Commission will meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. in City Hall to reach a decision on the appeal case of Officer Leo E. P. Law, H.Clifford Spiker, chairman, announced yesterday.

A hearing on the appeal of the officer following a seven day suspension on a charge of sleeping on duty was held last Friday.

Spiker said a formal report of the decision will be given to the Mayor and Council following the meeting.

News In Brief

The Cumberland Optimist Club will hold its regular weekly meeting today at 6:15 p. m. at Central YMCA.

A report of the Rayon Advisory Council meeting held in Washington over the weekend will be given at a membership meeting of Local 1874, TWUA-CIO tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

The Cumberland Lions Club will hold its regular weekly luncheon meeting at 12:15 p. m. today at the Central YMCA.

The Greyhound bus line resumed service through Romney, W. Va., Monday after drivers ended a two-day walkout.

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will hold a meeting Friday at 12:15 p. m. at the Central YMCA.

Central firemen answered a call yesterday at the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company, 116-20 Wineow street after fire broke out in a doorway. Damage was slight.

McKeldin Gives Prisoner Clemency

Patrick Dentinger, sentenced in Allegany County October 18, 1949, to two years for burglary, yesterday received executive clemency from Governor McKeldin, who is completing his first week in office, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Annapolis.

Man Breaks Arm

Jacob H. Brown, 434 Williams Street, chief clerk to superintendent of the B&O Bolt and Forge plant, sustained a broken left arm Sunday night when he slipped and fell on ice. He was treated in Memorial Hospital.

Rodda Is Injured When Hit By Car

Robert Rodda, 36, 303 Columbia Street, was admitted to Allegany Hospital yesterday at 4:15 p. m. for treatment of injuries suffered when he was struck by a car on Winchester Road.

He was reported in a satisfactory condition, suffering from a right shoulder injury and a laceration on the lip.

Driver of the car was listed as James Hill.

Maryland State Police said they were told Rodda was injured as he was directing a furniture truck to the highway. Trooper Jack Browning is investigating.

Testimonials Presented

Arthur B. Gibson presents testimonial plaques to Frederic W. Eiler, general chairman, and Mrs. H. W. Eliason, chairman of women's division, in appreciation for their successful efforts in helping raise $88,535 during the 1950-51 Community Chest Campaign. The testimonials were presented last night at the annual chest dinner held at the Central YMCA. Gibson was guest speaker at the affair.

Greater Community Chest Aid From Business Sought

Earl C. Robertson told members of the Community Chest last night at the annual meeting at Central YMCA the main difficulty of the organization arises from the indifference of some of the city's business leaders who are not convinced that a strong, successful Community Chest is important to the life of Cumberland.

The president of the local Red Feather organization said he proposed holding meetings with various groups and individuals and "laying the problem squarely and specifically before each of them so they will recognize that this is their responsibility and their stake in Cumberland."

Robertson thought "every merchant, banker and business man in Cumberland should be deeply concerned about the Community Chest and should be willing and even anxious to do their share and more if necessary.

Support Needed

He plans to show each of them how much their active support is needed and how to adjust their thinking and giving to a plane more in line with the needs to be met in the community.

"The present indifference and lack of appreciation of what the Community Chest and the services of its nine agencies mean cannot be permitted to continue," he remarked. "We earnestly solicit the cooperation and assistance of all those who can help us correct and change this sad state of affairs."

Robertson told those attending the testimonial dinner the Chest feels "we have done well in the past in spite of these handicaps but such a situation can not continue. We are now in a dangerous position because of our dependence for so large a proportion of our money on three or four very large gifts. The loss of any one of these could cause us to have a miserable failure."

The disbanding of the Community Chest here could be a possibility, Robertson said, if the disinterest remains, and this would throw the burden of nine campaigns on the local community. This expensive, extra work would "hit the hardest those who by their disinterest caused it to come about, he related.

$100,000 Raised

The Chest president revealed the "facts are that almost every city the size of Cumberland is raising just about $100,000 and many of them are raising quite a bit more, as much as $150,000."

He pointed out he did not believe that he thought Cumberland should give these amounts just because other cities have done so but "our goal should be to give our agencies the kind of support they need and deserve to carry out even better programs for the benefit of the entire community."

Robertson emphasized the City of Cumberland should "be raising so much more than we do and yet every one knows the terrific struggle it has been to raise something in the $80,000's." The chest's goal last year was $87,000 and the final tabulation, according to Robertson's report, was $88,535.

Praise came to Frederick W. Eiler,

Board Requests Fire Co. Reports

All 22 volunteer fire companies in Allegany county which received funds during the past fiscal year from the Allegany County Board of Commissioners are being requested to submit to the board on or before February 15 an accounting of appropriations made to the companies in the period between September, 1948, and October, 1950.

Board Clerk James G. Stevenson has prepared a letter which the board yesterday authorized him to send to all 22 companies. "This request is made in lieu of requesting officers of the various companies to appear before the board in person to make such accounting," Stevenson's letter states.

A detailed statement of expenditures made for the purchase, repair or maintenance of fire-fighting equipment and buildings is sought by the board.

Several weeks ago the companies requested that the county commissioners increase appropriations to the various fire fighting units. During the past fiscal year the departments obtained a total of $15,675 from the county commissioners.

City Asks Action On Housing Plan

The Mayor and Council has asked the Public Housing Administration to expedite public housing plans for this city.

In a telegram to Gilbert Zeiler, of the PHA in Washington, the city requested approval of Development Program Md-5-1 submitted by the Housing Authority of the City of Cumberland "as expeditiously as possible so construction may be started to alleviate unemployment and substandard housing in this area."

Community Chest Selects Five Board Members

Campaign Leaders Honored At Dinner

Five directors were named at the annual dinner meeting of the Cumberland Community Chest last night at the Central YMCA at which the general chairman and workers were honored.

James W. Bishop, Roy W. Eves and Clarence Lippel were re-elected to the board of directors while new members are Mrs. H. W. Eliason and Clarence E. Gehr.

The nominating committee selected 10 persons for the office of Board of Directors of the local Red Feather organization at its meeting January 2. Lewis J. Ort declined the nomination because of press of other business. Others nominated included George A. Caswell, David T. Davis, Robert L. Ebert and George M. Martin.

Arthur B. Gibson, principal speaker at the 24th annual dinner, made presentation of testimonials to Frederic W. Eiler, general chairman of the 1950-51 campaign, and Mrs. Eliason, chairman of the women's division, in appreciation of their efforts in helping raise the $88,535 contributed to the Community Chest's campaign.

Gibson said "the success of the Community Chest in the past years has been one of the greatest deterrents to further socialism movements by our national government" and called the chest campaign "more than just a collection of dollars—it is an institution."

Gibson told the gathering the chest was a means for individuals to get together and carry out a program to take care of unfortunate and indigent in the community as well as support those organizations which lead to character building of the community's youth.

Teamwork Is Keynote

In accepting the testimonial in behalf of the various chairmen of all the sections of the campaign organization down to the best worker and contributor Eiler credited the success of the campaign to teamwork and specifically commended those employer and employe groups which adopted a payroll deduction plan. Eiler stated the acceptance of this idea "was perhaps the greatest single factor in the raising of the $88,535 secured this year." He expressed the hope this plan would be taken up by many other labor-management groups in 1951.

Financial Report

The treasurer's report of Chest activities showed receipts from October 1, 1949 to November 30, 1950 amounted to $80,606.23 including pledges and that disbursements amounted to $80,541.07 over the same period, leaving a balance of $65.16. Actual receipts received during this period amounted to $77,262.54 or 92 per cent of the amount pledged. Additional receipts after November raised the fund to $84,275.

Soldier Thanks Organization Here For Christmas Package

A letter from a soldier in the Pacific area has been received by Allegany County Chapter American Red Cross, expressing his thanks for a Christmas package prepared by local organizations and delivered by the Red Cross, according to Mrs. Lee Witherup, executive secretary. The letter follows:

Dear Friends:

My name is Jasper E. Crawford and I hail from LaPorte, Indiana. On Christmas Day I was somewhere in the middle of the Pacific Ocean aboard the USNS Marine Lynx troop ship. The day was topped by the large Christmas package I received from you.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your very nice Christmas gift. I hope you can realize how much enjoyment I received from that Christmas cheer.

The candy, cards, set of dominoes, comb, pocket size books, soap, and stationery were very nice. I especially appreciated the books as they afforded a pleasant past time.

Thanking you again for your thoughtfulness, I wish your organization the best of luck.

Sincerely yours,
Jasper E. Crawford, Pfc.

The gifts were boxed locally by the Auxiliaries of veterans organizations with the cooperation of Mrs. Nat Guggenheimer and Mrs. Hammond Amick. Contribution for the gifts, were made by the Navy Mothers, Gold Star Mothers, Eight and 40, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the American Legion, Mrs. Witherup said.

Board To Study Fire Safety At Old Infirmary

Commissioners Get Recommendations

Allegany County's Board of Commissioners will inspect the old County Infirmary building Tuesday, January 30, to study recommended fire safety measures at that structure.

This action was taken at yesterday's meeting after the commissioners received a letter from Hunter B. Helfrich, head of Wright, Richardson and Company, Inc., in which he set forth three specific fire safety recommendations. He asked for an opportunity to explain the proposals to the commissioners in more detail at a later date. The commissioners decided that he should meet with them for the inspection in two weeks.

Helfrich said the recommendations were concurred in by Cumberland City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer, Acting Fire Chief William L. Lindner and Fire Inspector R. Paul Reid, who inspected the building with him.

The recommendations:

(1) Remove existing second floor porch from the east end of the building and install necessary steel or concrete fire escape together with panic bolt and other improvements.

(2) Cut away certain existing portions of the second floor porch at the west end of the building and install steel or concrete fire escape.

(3) Cover stairway at the west end of the building and two central stairways with fireproof material and provide fire proof doors at each of these three stairways. This fire proofing should consist of material that would retard drafts for approximately one hour.

Auto Tag Bill Progresses In State Assembly

Whitworth Hits U. Of Md. Plan

A favorable report on an automobile tag bill for Allegany County was submitted yesterday by the House Ways and Means committee in the Maryland General Assembly.

The action means that the bill authorizing the Board of County Commissioners to appoint an agent, other than the county treasurer, to distribute license plates in Allegany County, will be printed and go to its third reading.

Delegate Horace Whitworth said he will try to hold up all General Assembly appropriations for the University of Maryland until someone explains how a building got started ahead of time at Princess Anne College, the Associated Press reported.

The college is a Negro branch of the university. Charles E. Brohawn, Cambridge contractor, has done about $30,000 worth of work on a new $271,000 agricultural engineering building there. The State Department of Public Improvements has declared it gave him no authorization to start the project and the board of public works voted last week to reject Brohawn's bid.

"I will ask for an investigation of the whole matter and a publication of the findings before any appropriations are acted upon," said Whitworth, who is a member of the House Ways and Means Committee.

"The use of public funds is a public business. The people are entitled to know how their money is being spent. All the cards should be put on the table."

Then, referring to Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University, Whitworth said: "Dr. Byrd has such unlimited control over special funds of the university that he may find some way to pay for this work without the sanction of the legislature or the board of public works.

"If Dr. Byrd didn't authorize this work, he at least knows who did."

Dr. Byrd said he "has no more authority than a jack rabbit" to order Brohawn to proceed with the construction. He has promised to make a report in writing to the Board of Public Works.

Brohawn has declined to say on what authority he went ahead with the work.

Delegate Whitworth was elected acting minority House floor leader yesterday to take the place of Delegate Rudolph Lofstrand (R-Montgomery county) who is ill and has been hospitalized in Washington.

Delegate Whitworth will be acting floor leader until Lofstrand resumes his duties.

Bills Introduced

House bills introduced yesterday included:

HB53—by Balto 6th delegation—to make it mandatory that all corporations employing wage earners and engaged in mining, manufacturing, operating an electric railroad, street railway, telegraph, telephone or express company shall pay such employes weekly (Ways & Means).

HB56—by Acker—to require employers to pays National Guardsmen in their employe the difference between their regular wages and salaries and their field training pay when they go to summer camp (Veterans, Militia and State Police).

HB59—by Luber—to increase the retirement pay of state employes forced to retire because of injuries suffered in line of duty to two-thirds of their former annual pay (Ways and Means).

Auxiliary Police Organize For Civil Defense

Plan Swift Action For Emergencies

Auxiliary police of this city, many of them veterans of Civilian Defense work during World War II, last night began plans for a swift reorganization to meet any eventuality in civil defense needs of today.

Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn, chairman of the meeting called last night in City Hall, pointed out the time is at hand when Cumberland must make some preparation for a war which "is almost sure to happen."

"It is the responsibility of the Police Department to protect the lives and property of its citizens and we must organize and be ready for any eventuality," he added.

Chief Flynn congratulated members of the organization who served during World War II for the splendid work during that crisis in assisting the regular police.

"You never grumbled, Chief Flynn said," and you gave of your time without fanfare. That is why America is great. Her people stick together in time of distress without regard to race, color or creed.

Must Carry Load

"This war, if it comes, will require a supreme effort of all of us if we are to survive and maintain our freedom from the communist countries which threaten to envelop all the free peoples of the world," he observed.

Full cooperation of the Cumberland Police Department was offered by John J. Long, commissioner of fire and police.

Pointing out that fast and efficient action will be needed if adequate civil defense needs are to be met, Commissioner Long said the department is depending upon the auxiliary policemen to carry the additional load of civil defense work, which is far too great for the staff of the regular department.

Auxiliary police, Chief Flynn pointed out, will be badly needed for civil defense in the impending war in crises involving panic, rioting, looting and traffic regulation.

Other speakers at the meeting were Harold Armbruster, president; Joseph Harrison, chief of the Cumberland Auxiliary Police, Inc.; Graydon S. Dunlap, assistant chief; Eugene Kressing, first aid specialist for the group, and Tech. Sgt. John H. Newhouse, adviser.

Some 75 members of the auxiliary police attended, with some 30 calling in to report they were unable to attend because of work.

Chief Flynn said some 150 auxiliary police are available at present in Cumberland and that the organization may be enlarged to meet the needs imposed by civil defense.

Plan First Aid Work

Action taken at the meeting included a decision for all members to take either the standard, refresher or advanced First Aid courses offered through the American Red Cross.

A large number of the auxiliary police reported they had taken the course during World War II but desired to brush up on first aid before emergencies may arise.

Auxiliary police in this city formed an organization in 1942 which has been kept intact for just such emergencies as the present civil defense program.

Perhaps 50 members of the auxiliary police are uniformed and additional uniforms will be available soon.

Officials announced that captains for districts in the city will be named at the next meeting of the auxiliary.

The captains, Chief Flynn said, will then select assistants to protect their sections.

Kauffman To Speak To B'nai B'rith Tomorrow

Western Maryland Lodge B'nai B'rith will hold its regular meeting at 8:30 tomorrow evening in the vestry rooms of B'er Chayim Temple.

David Kauffman is to be the guest speaker for the evening. His topic will be "The Economic Development in Cumberland."

During the business session action will be taken on the Western Maryland Lodge's contribution to the Hillel Foundation for the University of Maryland at College Park; and for George Washington University, Washington.

Assistance in the March of Dimes campaign will be discussed also.

Concluding the evening refreshments will be served by a committee headed by Harry Stein.

Demand For State's Cabins In Garrett County Heavy

There have been over 300 applications received for renting cabins this summer at the State's two recreational areas in Garrett County, according to H. C. Buckingham, state forester.

Although there are only 13 cabins at Herrington Manor and 11 at New Germany, 279 applications were received the first two days this year. About 75 per cent of these applications requested cabins for the last two weeks in July, and Buckingham pointed out that it is impossible to accommodate all of them. Cabins are alloted in the order the applications are received.

Cabins are rented for a minimum of one week and a maximum of two weeks. Built by the Civilian Conservation Corps in the late 1930s and opened in 1940, the areas were developed originally to develop the recreational area of Garrett County and to attract people to buy, rent, and live there.

The cabins are owned by the State of Maryland and are completely equipped with hot and cold water, electricity, etc. They are maintained out of revenue collected from patrons and Garrett County is given 15 per cent.

Picnic facilities include a 50 acre lake at Herrington Manor and a 10 acre lake at New Germany. A life guard is on hand at all times that swimming is permitted. There is no charge for picnicing nor swimming.

Buckingham said Garrett County has cooperated by building a hard surface road from Oakland to the area. Pointing out the beauty of the area, Buckingham said there are colonies of beaver on the streams, deer is plentiful, wood ducks, sea gull and other animals and birds around there.

Nearby are many falls—Muddy Creek Falls, Swallow Falls, and Tolliver Falls — each having picnic areas.

The Department of State Forests and Parks maintains the areas, the state forester said, adding that William H. Johnson is in charge of them here.

Organize For Civil Defense

Officials of the Cumberland Police Department and the Auxiliary Police Department are seen last night as plans were formulated for a swift organization of auxiliary police for civil defense needs in this city. They are (left to right) Joseph M. Harrison, chief, C. S. Browning and Edward B. Wright, of the Auxiliary Police; Tech. Sgt. John M. Newhouse; Police Chief R. Emmett Flynn, T. E. Carder, of the auxiliary force and Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long, who promised full cooperation in the program.

Receipts At Post Office Show Decrease Last Year

Employes at the local Post Office worked 2,345 hours less in 1950 than in 1949, according to Thomas F. Conlon, postmaster.

Conlon pointed out that in 1950 postal workers were paid for 146,623 hours and in 1949 they were paid for 148,968 hours. He attributed the decrease to a decrease in carrier service in the area.

Total postal receipts, including the sale of stamps, second and third class mailing, box rents, and meter mailings, for 1950 amounted to $377,939.46. In 1949, they amounted to $381,493.02.

Conlon pointed out that during the last two quarters, of 1950 postal receipts were greater than in 1949. During the last quarter of 1950 postal receipts were $6,000 greater than during the last quarter of 1949.

Further statistics show that in 1950, 102,999 money orders were issued at the local Post Office, whereas 108,751 were issued in 1949. The number of money orders paid or cashed in 1950 was 96,204 and in 1949 there were 95,224 cashed.

There was an increase of 1,289 postal notes issued in 1950 over 1949, with 6,856 being issued last year and 5,567 in 1949. Postal notes that were cashed or paid also increased, with 8,930 being cashed in 1950 compared to 7,319 to 1949.

The sale of savings bonds decreased in 1950 compared to 1949. In 1950, sales amounted to $71,456.25; in 1949, they were $89,175.

At the end of 1949 there were 503 depositors with $377,535 in the Postal Savings System at the local Post Office. There were 489 depositors $367,827 at the end of 1950.

Postmaster Conlon said the present trend seems to indicate that conditions with the Post Office during 1951 will be similar to those in 1950.
